Half Billion Further Rise In Taxes Seen By George

Total of 13 Billions For Next Year Is All Country Can Stand, Georgian Declares

Business and financial leaders last night prepared to call today for revisions in the huge defense tax bill as Chairman George, of the Senate Finance Committee, predicted increases in the bill's total revenue to at least the three and one-half billion dollar goal abandoned by the House.

Following testimony last week by Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau, who urged broadening of the income tax base, restoration of the provision for joint returns by married couples, and other changes in the bill, Harcourt Amory, of Boston, representing the Investment Bankers' Association will testify today on that group's proposed revision. A dozen other witnesses are scheduled to be heard today. Later in the week Treasury experts are expected to submit proposals that would add close to a billion dollars to the measure's yield.

Senator George expressed doubt last night that his committee would restore the joint return provision unless it were possible to do so in some greatly modified, uncontroversial provision. House elimination of the joint return requirement cut the bill's total by approximately 300 million dollars.

Puts Top at Half Billion

The chairman was quoted by the Associated Press last night as saying the amount to be added to the bill in committee would not exceed 500 million dollars.

George said he regarded the proposed tax increases as of "staggering" proportions, but that even with the contemplated boost, the 13 billion dollars in revenue would fall nine billion dollars short of the 22 billion dollars estimated cash expenditures for the current fiscal year.

"It has become more and more apparent," he added, "that we must effect some reduction in nondefense spending, although there appears to be nothing on the horizon now on which to base any prediction that such outlays will be cut."

Hearings to Continue

The House Banking and Currency Committee, meanwhile, will resume its hearings on the Administration proposal to establish price and rent controls as a means of checking inflationary tendencies which it is now trying to combat through the Office of Price Administration and

Navy Is Silent On President's Movements Now

The rumor-filled mystery of President Roosevelt's cruise in northern waters of the Atlantic increased last night when both the Navy and the White House said they had no word for the public on the President's movements. Heretofore the Navy has issued a brief daily message from the Presidential cruising craft, the Potomac. There has been no confirmation or denial, however, of reports that the Chief Executive and Prime Minister Churchill of Britain had met at sea.

Word last night that Vice President Wallace had cut short his vacation in Colorado and was flying to Washington raised in the minds of some persons the possibility that Mr. Roosevelt is returning to the Capital very soon and had summoned the Vice President to a conference with himself and other officials. Mr. Wallace is due here early today.

Still Hears Those Bombs

Chinese Girl Makes and Sells Dolls Here to Aid Home Folk

She's Already Raised $55 for the Cause, With Trade Booming

Marian Jan, 14, two years away from her Chinese city, Toy Sun, was thinking of airplanes when she went to a store to buy some wool.

Back home from the store she began, brows solemnly wrinkled, to fashioning dolls from the wool. Airplanes roamed Chinese skies in her recollection and her fingers flew, fashioning the dolls—200 of them. She wanted to sell them, to help Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek take care of the people the airplanes' bombs fell on.

"In our village I saw the Japanese airplanes flying overhead," she said here yesterday . . . "My school was located in another village. One day as I was going home for lunch, I saw six airplanes coming toward us. We were very frightened and we lay down flat on the road until the airplanes had passed. We ran home. But there were some more airplanes coming."

She found her mother cooking lunch. "So, I carried my little brother and ran to the mountainside where there was a great deal of hay and the Japanese thought there were no people there . . . I wrote my father in San Francisco that I was too scared to stay in China and that I would like to go to school in America for a change."

She thought about it, while fashioning the wool dolls. She had no trouble selling them in Chinatown. Some people paid 25 cents, some more. One man paid $5. So far,

Marian has raised $55 in American money, equivalent to $1000 in Chinese, she said, and sent it to Madame Chiang-Kai-Shek. She will send more, remembering the airplanes. She is staying with Dr. C. C. Hung, pastor of the Chinese Community Church, at 1011 L Street Northwest.

"When I have a nice home to stay in, good food to eat and pretty clothes to wear, it seems to me that this country is a beautiful dream," she said.

House Action On Draft Bill Due This Week

Rutherford's Death Expected to Adjourn Chamber Today

The House last night was set to provide the climax early this week for the long battle over keeping Army selectees in service beyond the contemplated one year.

Assembling at 11 a. m., an hour earlier than usual, with the intention of rushing action on the measure, the chamber faced the probability of a one-day adjournment out of respect for Representative Albert G. Rutherford (Republican), of Pennsylvania, who died last night. Postponement of the voting, however, was not expected materially to affect the outcome.

The weekend saw leadership pleading with wavering or uncommitted Representatives, activity that brought from Chairman May, of the Military Affairs Committee, a prediction that retention of the selectees, National Guardsmen and Reservists for the period of the emergency would be voted before adjournment at night. The Senate has voted an 18-month extension of service beyond the presently provided year.

But there was ample evidence that a long, hard struggle was ahead for the Administration forces, with Republicans holding the balance of power though they, like the Democrats, are split over the issue.

Various compromise proposals are ready to be thrown into the floor fight, with extensions of 6 months, 12 months and 18 months to be voted on following 2 hours of debate.

Other proposed amendments would provide pay adjustments for any increase in the length of service. The Senate, just before passing the bill, voted a $10-a-month bonus for all service in excess of one year.

Okla. Warden, 3 Others Slain In Prison Break

Trapped in Gunfight, Felons Kill Official Taken as Hostage

By Francis E. Borden
Associated Press Staff Writer

McAlester, Okla., Aug. 10.—Warden Jess Dunn, of Oklahoma State Prison, two convicts and a county jailer were slain today in a bloody bid for liberty by four long-term prisoners who shot the warden, held as a hostage, when officers closed in.

J. H. Fentriss, an Oklahoma City telephone engineer, who was seized with Dunn, was stabbed; a prison guard was shot in the shoulder and the fourth felon was wounded when Deputy Sheriff Bill Alexander and two other officers trapped the fugitives at the east edge of town, a short time after the break.

The other dead were Tab Ford, county jailer, who was shot in the head when the convicts answered commands to surrender with a blaze of fire from guns which they forced guards to throw down from the wall, and these convicts:

Claude Beavers, 39, leader of a 23-man break from the prison in 1936, who was serving life for the slaying of a guard in that escape attempt.

Roy Magee, 37, serving 15 years for armed robbery after a parole from Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary.

Bill Anderson, 36, under 27-year sentence for armed robbery and who also figured in the 1936 break, was at first believed dead of bullet wounds when examined by the prison physician, but it was announced later that "a spark of life remained." His condition was described as "very, very critical."

The engineer suffered wounds inflicted by prison-made dirks after the convicts had shot down Dunn

Papal Choice

Bishop Corrigan Again Named Rector of Catholic University

With authority of Pope Pius XII, the Vatican at Rome yesterday advised the Most Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, Titular Bishop of Bilta, of his reappointment as Catholic University rector.

Bishop Corrigan, who on March 27 completed his first five-year rectorship term, was notified of his selection through a cablegram conveyed by the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, with offices here.

It was signed by G. Cardinal Pizzardo and the Right Rev. Msgr. Ernesto Ruffini, prefects of the Sacred Congregations of Seminaries and of University Studies, to which Catholic University is subject.

Several major achievements have marked the administration of Bishop Corrigan. These included the papal approval of a permanent constitution for the university, and the creation of the Commission of American Citizenship, which is now actively engaged in preparing courses of study and text books for the inculcation of Christian and American ideals of citizenship in Catholic schools, colleges, and universities.

During the first year of his service as rector, the then Papal Secretary of State, Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, now Pope Pius XII, visited the university, and Bishop Corrigan was host to the distinguished churchman, who has since demonstrated his interest in the university, notably by a broadcast from the Vatican directly to the university gymnasium on November 13, 1939, when his words concluded the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the institution.

Laborer, 34, Confesses Park Attack

10-Hour Questioning Leads to Admission He Assaulted Girl, 15; Father Lauds Police

A 34-year-old unemployed construction laborer confessed in a signed statement last night that he raped the 15-year-old daughter of a Government official in Rock Creek Park Wednesday.

The confession was announced at 8:30 p. m. by Capt. Ira Keck, acting chief of detectives, after the suspect had been questioned continuously for ten hours at the Sixth Precinct Police Station.

Confronted by a mass of circumstantial evidence which he could not explain and rattled by rapid-fire questions of detectives, the man broke down and said:

"Well, I might as well tell you all about it."

Father Congratulates Police

As soon as he had signed a statement detailing the attack and his movements before and after it, the rapist's victim and her father were called to the station.

There they faced the confessed attacker, and when he was led away the girl burst into tears. After reading the confession, the father said:

"I am glad it's all over for the present and that the fiend is in the hands of police. It has been a terrible ordeal for all members of my family. I want to congratulate the police for their fine work in the case."

After his confession, the prisoner declared:

"I am sorry I did her wrong. I was drunk."

Tipped Off by Foreman

The prisoner, William Isaac Robinson, of 1249 Irving Street Northwest, a Negro, was arrested Friday by Detective Sergts. John Caton and George Cook and Precinct Detective H. E. Moore when he appeared at a construction job in Silver Spring, Md., to collect his pay check. The foreman had informed police that the man answered the description of the attacker and was expected to come to Silver Spring for his check.

Police are also holding his wife, Mary Olivee, 28, as a material witness. She gave them information on a number of matters that led them to believe her husband was lying before he confessed.

In his confession, according to Keck, Robinson gave this information:

He was fired from the Silver Spring construction job Tuesday, the day before the attack, and stopped on his way home to buy two pint bottles of wine in a liquor store at Alaska Avenue and Kalmia Road Northwest.

Set Out to Find Work

Early the following morning his wife read two classified advertisements in a newspaper mentioning jobs at 5061 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest and 1721 Rhode Island Avenue Northwest, and he left

Russians Admit German Gains In Ukraine; Vichy Prepares To Centralize Rule in Africa

Weygand, Powers Already Restricted, Spends Day at Races With Marshal Petain

By Ralph E. Heinzen
United Press Staff Writer

Vichy, Aug. 10.—Vital consultations fixing the future status of Gen. Maxime Weygand and bearing on the defense of France's African Empire were held in Vichy today, in preparation for tomorrow's session of Marshal Petain's council of ministers.

The council of ministers is expected to act on a reorganization of the Vichy government and decide the extent of Weygand's authority as the chief of France's defense forces in Africa, without utterly destroying his position as pro-consul there.

There is no doubt that the final authority regarding the defense of overseas France will remain in Vichy, rather than at Weygand's headquarters in Algiers, in view of last week's decree which gave Vice Premier Admiral Darlan "supervisory authority" over Weygand's political decisions and directed Weygand to refer departmental matters to the ministers concerned.

Weygand, who flew to Vichy from his Algiers post last week, conferred with Petain during the day, but will return without delay to Africa. He will not attend tomorrow's council of ministers, scheduled for 5 p. m. after being postponed from Saturday.

Generals Attend Races

Members of the Petain cabinet held an unofficial meeting at 5 p. m. after Petain returned from an afternoon at the Vichy racecourse, where he was constantly with Weygand, and where he also saw Jean Capini, special Vichy envoy charged with attempting to obtain the release of French war prisoners still held in German prison camps. Capini had just returned from Berlin.

As far as could be learned in Vichy tonight the French government leaders have taken no decisions which might provoke a break in diplomatic relations between the United States and France, as threatened on August 2 by U. S. Under-Secretary of State Sumner Welles.

Nazis See Far East Move

London, Aug. 10 (INS).—Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt have reached a decision regarding Anglo-American action in the Far East crisis after a long conference aboard the Presidential yacht Potomac, the Nazi-controlled Paris radio announced tonight.

The decision regarding Japan will be announced Monday, the Paris station predicted.

Foiled in Persia

By the United Press

Cairo, Aug. 10.—A plot allegedly engineered by German agents to overthrow the government of Iran in an uprising scheduled for next Friday has been crushed by Iranian secret police, according to unofficial reports reaching Cairo tonight.

Among those arrested, it was said, were several cabaret girls of foreign nationality, alleged to have been in the employ of the Nazi agents, and a group of young Iranian army officers.

There was no confirmation of the plot report but usually reliable unofficial quarters in Cairo said that they had received in detail an account of its frustration.

On July 30 British Foreign Secretary Eden revealed in the House of Commons that Britain had warned Iran against the menace of "excessively large numbers of Germans" infiltrating into the country and that the Tehran government had been advised to stamp out the danger quickly.

Advices from Turkey have stated that German agents were moving constantly into Iran and that between 4000 and 5000 of them were believed to be in the oil-rich country.

Russia was said by Eden to be working in close cooperation with Britain in opposing the Nazi menace in Iran, a possible by-route for a German attack on Russia's Baku district.

All of the alleged conspirators will be tried by court martial, it was stated.

Iranian reports said there were about 2,000 foreign cabaret girls working in Iran and that many of them were suspected of being in the pay of the Axis secret services.

U. S. Awaiting Vichy Decision On Colonies

Clearing Office Set Up Here to Expedite Exports to Latins

FEDERAL Security Administrator McNutt last night declared that the United States "will not tolerate" seizure of Thailand by Japan. Page 5.

Eyes on France

Close scrutiny of developments at Vichy, where decision is imminent on te extent to hich the French government will collaborate with the German program of conquest, and further steps toward hemisphere defense strength marked yesterday's official activities here.

As word from Vichy was awaited without comment in foreign service circles, Brig. Gen. Russell L. Maxwell, Administrator of Export Control, created a central clearing office to ex; edite exports to Latin American countries and issued an appeal for granting of all possible priority to meet the needs of those countries "in the interest of hemisphere defense."

Officials privately deprecated reports that a break in diplomatic relations with Vichy was likely if the French government yielded to current German demands believed to include Nazi use of strategic Atlantic bases on the ranch African coast, from which South America might be menaced. It was said here that there has been no occasion for drafting such a step, as no decision by the French cabinet is expected to be reached before late today.

It was pointed out that this Government's attitude was set forth by Undersecretary of State Welles, who served notice ten days ago that American friendship for Vichy

By the Associated Press

Melbourne, Australia (Monday), Aug. 11.—Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies declared the Pacific situation was "more full of danger than ever" today in a statement before a special meeting of the Australian cabinet.

The prime minister had canceled a tour of South and West Australia to return to Melbourne for the cabinet meeting, declaring that in view of the gravity of the Far East position the cabinet would discuss the question fully without delay.

"While we desire peace in the Pacific, we are not disposed to run away from the geographically-plain fact that Singapore is a part of Australia's frontier," he told the cabinet.

"Australia is prepared to defend herself with her forces," he added, "including thousands of the Australian imperial force."

At the same time the prime minister canceled his tour, Navy Minister William Hughes said in a statement:

"Whether there is to be peace or war in the Pacific is for Japan to decide. The situation has deteriorated but it is none of our doing.

"We want peace but we are inflexibly resolved to defend our interests, which march side by side with those of Britain."

Alexandria Mother Is Rescued As Husband, 2 Children Drown

Log Hits Family Launch in Occoquan Run; Gaithersburg Youth Perishes in Potomac

An Alexandria father was drowned in an unsuccessful attempt to rescue his two young children yesterday in one of two boating accidents that claimed four lives near Washington.

Francis Sayre, 38, of 20 East Walnut Street, Alexandria, service manager of the Gladney Motor Co. at Alexandria, and his children, Joe Ann, 5, and Leroy, 3, lost their lives in Occoquan Run, near Manassas, Va. The children's mother, Mrs. Lillian Sayre, 35, was rescued.

Rodney Costello, jr., 17-year-old Gaithersburg, Md., high school student, was drowned near Seneca, Md., after a companion had risked his life in an attempted rescue.

The Sayre family had been picnicking on the stream's banks and were heading back to Davis Ford Bridge, five miles east of Manassas, when their outboard motorboat began to fill with water. It evidently had struck a log.

Despite their efforts to bail out, the boat sank. Shouting to his wife to cling to the log, Sayre tried to save the children but all three were caught in the current.

R. W. Hall, Occoquan funeral director, organized a squad of volunteers which recovered the bodies. Mrs. Sayre was rescued by two fishermen.

Sayre had been connected with the Alexandria Motor Co. for three years. Previously, he worked as a mechanic in Washington, where he came from Rochester, N. Y.

The Costello youth was drowned while canoeing in the Potomac with Clifford Howard, jr., 17, of Rockville, Md., son of a former Montgomery County sheriff.

Howard told Corpl. G. W. Linthicum and Mason Gray, of the county police, that he was swimming beside the canoe when it tipped over in the middle of the Potomac. He said that three times he grabbed the Costello youth from the swift current and assisted him to the canoe, but that each time Costello lost his grip.

On the third attempt, Howard said Costello grappled with him and then slipped from his grasp. The body was recovered nearly an hour later by Lorenzo Sager, of Seneca, who dove for it with two companions, Howard Roberts and Lawrence Baker.

The Rockville Rescue Squad worked over the body with a respi-

Martin Announces Committee For Saving of Small Business

Asserting that "thousands of small businesses in the United States may be in grave danger of destruction," House Republican Leader Joseph Martin, of Massachusetts, announced yesterday the appointment of a special minority committee to study their problem.

He said the committee, to be headed by Representative Halleck (Republican), of Indiana, would seek means of protecting all businesses from "the confusion which will attend the readjustment of a war-exhausted and bankrupted world to some kind of a peace basis."

"In these chaotic days there is grave danger unless Government policies are reversed that small business will be wiped out," Martin said in a statement. "That would be a deadly blow for America.

"Small businesses employing less than 200 workers each comprise 99 per cent of all business and handle 65 per cent of the Nation's commerce. The loss of the major portion of these would be a great calamity and would be especially deadly in the period which will follow the close of the wars."

Martin declared that small business, deprived of a "fair share" of Government contracts, "almost strangled by priorities" and stifled by regulations and taxes, are "hanging on the ropes."

He cited Army calls for bids on serge for uniforms to illustrate his contention that smaller concerns were being barred from competing for defense contracts. The first time, he said, 78 firms submitted bids. The next invitation specified no bids for less than 25,000 yards and

Kremlin Is Struck In 'Heaviest Raid Yet' on Moscow, Germans Report

By the Associated Press

The Germans hurled massed formations of bombers against Moscow last night and early today following a 100-plane Saturday night assault in which Berlin reported a heavy bomb scored a direct hit within the high-walled Kremlin.

The sharply stepped-up Nazi offensive against the Soviet capital came as the Russians reported fighting had spread to a new sector on the Leningrad Front and to the Uman sector of the Ukraine, with the Red army defenders augmenting their modern implements of war by throwing huge boulders and pitting ancient armored trains against the invaders.

Berlin called the Saturday night raid on Moscow the heaviest yet upon the city. The Germans said their planes dropped "many thousands of incendiaries" and explosives.

Casualties Acknowledged

Moscow acknowledged that Russians were killed in the latest raid on the city but repeated the contention voiced heretofore that there was no military damage.

The mention of Uman, deep in the Ukraine, was the first by the Russians, although the Germans said Friday they already had swept past the town. On the Leningrad Front the Soviet communique said the Red army now was resisting stubbornly at Soltsi, 120 miles south of the former czarist capital.

The Russians asserted that a crack German regiment had been routed and a tank column smashed.

The Red air fleet, which the Germans have said was destroyed, was said to be ranging the front, bombing and machine-gunning German troops, tanks and trucks and communication lines in cooperation with the fighting of the ground forces.

Reds Warned on Destruction

The German high command reverted to the phrase "operations in the east proceeding according to plan" and offered few details of the fighting. Since June 22, it is said, 10,000 Soviet planes have been destroyed.

Berlin sources said Russian civilian destruction of houses and communications behind the German front would violate international law and said civilian destruction of grain crops would be suicidal.

Britain's Cause Is America's, Too, Queen Says

London, Aug. 10.—Queen Elizabeth, told the people of the United States in a broadcast tonight she believed their generosity to the people of war-torn Britain is born "from your conviction that we fight to save a cause that is your no less than ours."

She described in simple words the burden borne by her people during the days of mass German raids when many lost their families and their homes, but added that "hardship only steeled our hearts and strengthened our resolutions."

Reds Admit Nazi Advance; Kremlin Bombed, Foes Say

Crack Reichswehr Regiment Smashed, Moscow Reports

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Monday), Aug. 11.—Stubborn fighting on two new and important sectors of the Leningrad front and the Ukraine was officially reported by Soviet Russia today as the Red army told of using huge boulders and old armored trains at some places in the battle against the invaders.

For the first time the Soviet communique mentioned fighting in the Uman sector of the Ukraine, which the Germans said last Friday they already had passed.

On the Leningrad front, the Russians declared, the Red army was resisting at Soltsi, 120 miles due south of Leningrad, in an area where the Germans last week claimed gains.

On the old fronts—Smolensk, in the center; Bel Tserkov, in the Ukraine, and Kohlm, in the northwest—the Russians said they were putting up a stubborn fight.

Bel Tserkov is between Uman and Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, and Kholm, previously mentioned as an area of heavy fighting, is about 75 miles southeast of Soltsi.

Report Bag of 45 Planes

In the air, the Russians declared, the Red air force brought down 45 German aircraft at a cost of 25 Russian planes and disclosed that the final check of the German raid on Moscow Saturday night showed 10 German planes downed.

The German Luftwaffe hammered again at Moscow during the night but the Russians said only individual planes broke through the city's defenses.

The raiders caused fires in dwelling houses and killed and wounded an unannounced number of persons in the city. Five German planes were shot down, a Russian statement said.

The alarm was sounded at 11 p. m. and the all clear was given at 3:15 a. m.

People's Army Enters Fight

On the Estonian front, a battalion of the Peoples' Army, created in response to the call by Joseph Stalin on July 3, was reported to have gone into action for the first time, routing a German unit by a flank attack.

The Red fleet continued to support the land forces. Two warships of the northern fleet, which operates in the Arctic Ocean, shelled and destroyed two German land batteries, the Russians said.

A Russian unit was said to have routed two German battalions of the 312th Infantry Regiment and one battalion of motorized infantry. Where this action took place was not disclosed in the communique.

The German masses still on the offensive were meeting left over weapons of the Russian civil war as well as the most modern equipment.

From the barren, rocky hills of the north, where front line dispatches said a Finnish infantry charge was smothered by a Soviet avalanche of stone, to the black plains of the Ukraine, the Russians reported a steadfast defense. The stones, it was said, crushed two Finnish battalions.

Armored trains, such as those used by the raw Red army to fight off the counter-revolution after the rise of Lenin, appeared once more in action. Another frontline story said such a train, supported by infantry which kept in touch by rockets, was used to recapture a village from the Germans.

A crack German regiment was officially reported routed on the Finish front, and a Nazi tank column smashed west of Moscow.

Quite as important as the fighting, was a report by the railway transport commissariat which said that despite persistent German attempts to bomb stations and junctions, there had been no major stoppage of trains since the beginning of the war.

The Red air fleet, which has been reported practically destroyed more than once by the German high command, was said in the official war report to be ranging the front, spraying bombs and machine gun fire on German troops, tanks and trucks on the battlefields as well as the communication lines—all in close cooperation with the ground forces.

Strafing Nazi Airfields

German airdromes were coming in for a full share of attention of the Red airmen, the Sunday communique said.

The routing of the crack 307th Regiment of the 163d Division, "advertised as one of the finest formations of the Germany army," was reported from the Finnish front.

The communique said this regiment, shipped to the Finnish theater from Narvik, laid down a four-hour barrage and then launched an attack in waves which were riddled by Soviet artillery and machinegun fire.

Flank attacks by a battalion and two companies of Finns also failing, the exhausted Germans were surrounded in a vigorous Soviet counterattack, it was said.

Hundreds were declared to have drowned or been shot by snipers when they leaped into waters of a lake to escape, while large numbers of "groaning Germans" surrendered. Many mine throwers, flame throwers, rifles, antitank guns and other weapons were said to have been captured.

Elsewhere on the front, the communique said, 36 disabled German tanks remained on the field after a Red army artillery and tank unit attacked a Nazi tank column by night.

Odessa's Fall Near, Soviet Army Already Beaten, Berlin Claims

By the Associated Press

Berlin (Monday) Aug. 11.—The Luftwaffe scored a direct hit on the Kremlin with a heavy bomb and showered "many thousands of incendiaries" and explosives on Moscow Saturday night in the heaviest raid of the war on the Russian capital, German sources reported early today. (Berlin reported weeks ago that the Kremlin had been bombed into ruins.)

D. N. B., telling of the attack on the Kremlin, declared other bombs falling near the heart of the Russian government started fires of "extraordinary size."

Nearly 100 planes took part in the raid, which D. N. B. said was noteworthy because of the large number of heavy bombs dropped.

D. N. B. reported that the squadrons attacking Moscow were able to set fires in the great oil tanks southeast of the city despite the Red capital's defense by barrage balloons, antiaircraft guns and night fighters.

In the course of fighting yesterday, the agency said, German divebombers roared down upon two military trains, one an armored train, in the middle sector of the eastern front and demolished them.

Two other armored trains were heavily damaged, it was asserted, while other bombs blew up a Soviet munition dump in the same area.

Predict Odessa's Fall

Berlin, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Boasting that "the great Soviet war machine has been beaten," a Nazi spokesman tonight predicted the imminent fall of Odessa and the nearby Soviet naval base at Nikolaev to a triple-pronged German offensive smashing into the Ukraine.

German armies, carrying the great Battle of Russia into its eighth week, were said to be driving into the Russian "bread basket" along a 450-mile front from a point southeast of Smolensk down to the Black Sea after crushing 30 Russian divisions of more than 300,000 men.

The high command, in its Sunday communique, merely spoke of "operations proceeding further according to plan," but claimed that since the assault on Russia was unleached seven weeks ago today the Soviet air force has lost more than 10,000 planes.

Raise Losses a Million

In addition, it was said that Red army losses were rapidly nearing five million mark in dead, wounded and captured.

An official German military spokesman, describing the slashing offensive into the Ukraine, asserted that it had shattered the elite troops of Marshal Semyon Budenny.

"Russia will no longer be able to avoid the surrender of the Soviet troop remnants within the Dnieper bend as well as the two important Black Sea harbors of Odessa and Nikolaev," he asserted.

Despite the extravagant victory claims the effectiveness of Russian guerilla warfare was acknowledged in an announcement that the Germans will deal ruthlessly with all Russian civilians "whether men, women or children" who engage in guerilla attacks or sabotage.

The recent manifesto of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko, Russian commander-in-chief on the central front, calling on the people to destroy their homes, crops, bridges and roads to prevent the Germans from using them, brought an angry warning from the newspaper Boersen Zeitung.

Threaten to Starve Reds

"This will not harm the German armed forces, only the Russians themselves," the newspaper stated. "Germany will find no occasion to care for the feeding of areas destroyed by bolshevism."

The statements of Nazi spokesmen Sunday indicated that Odessa and the Nikolaev naval base are the immediate German objectives rather than the Ukrainian capital of Kiev. It was stated that city was being steadily encircled after the fall of the highway town of Korosten northwest of Kiev.

The wiping out of thousands of Budenny's troops in the Uman pocket, 130 miles south of Kiev was said to have brought nearer the fall of Odessa as well as the encirclement of Kiev.

German emphasis was placed on the fighting in the Ukraine but spokesmen pointed to the Finnish high command's announcement Saturday of a new offensive northeast of Lake Ladoga which, if successful, may break one of the bastions of the defense of Leningrad.

Above Leningrad, the official D. N. B. agency said, German bombers on Saturday sank a Russian destroyer in a bay along the Karelian Isthmus. A Soviet outpost ship was said to have been sunk by a German submarine.

The high command, in its communique Sunday, reported that the Luftwaffe had carried out in strong force and with "particular success" another bombing attack on Moscow Saturday night.

The D. N. B. agency described heavy German aerial attacks on Russian forces in the Dnieper sector of the Ukraine, in which 63 Soviet tanks and 230 trucks were reported destroyed and nine ground batteries knocked out of action. The agency claimed also the destruction of 32 Red planes in air battles over the Ukraine and nine others on the ground, to the loss of one German plane.

Italian Fleet Is Broken Up, Writer Finds

By Larry Allen
Associated Press Staff Writer

Alexandria, Egypt, Aug. 10.—It matters not whether Mussolini's battered navy stays home or ventures out, Britain's Mediterranean fleet is bent upon blasting the last of Italy's warships from the blue waters Il Duce calls "our sea."

The British say—and arrivals here confirm—that Allied convoys move through Il Duce's self-proclaimed private lake, pouring war supplies into Malta and the Middle East.

The backbone of Italy's battlefleet is broken. More than 50 per cent of her total naval striking power lies at the bottom of the Mediterranean or is out of commission.

These are my impressions after watching Britain's navy chase, catch and smash powerful units of the fast-running Fascist fleet in some of the strangest naval battles in history.

Victory at Matapan

To mention one, in the Battle of Cape Matapan, not a single British ship was hit, while three Italian cruisers for sure, possibly a fourth and three destroyers were sunk and the battleship Vittorio Veneto was heavily damaged.

This followed the disastrous British air raid on Taranto Harbor November 11 when, the British claimed, they crushed the backbone of the Italian battle fleet with aerial torpedo hits on three battleships.

The Fascist war fleet now is so crippled, the British say, Il Duce scarcely can find enough undamaged ships to hold a naval review.

The day may come when Mussolini, under pressure from Adolf Hitler, may send out a patched-up fleet looking for trouble. The British, victors in every major engagement with the Italians, say that would mean another Matapan.

Convoy Gets Through

Now one of the British navy's biggest jobs is to find an effective answer to attacks from the air—not from warships.

Ever since the aircraft carrier Illustrious was battered last January 10 by the greatest airblitz ever concentrated against a single British warship, the Britons have given special attention to clearing the Luftwaffe and high-flying Italian aces out of the Mediterranean skies.

The recent passage of an important convoy through the Western Mediterranean, despite heavy air assaults, supplied fresh proof that the British are getting somewhere in this direction.

The fleet's antiaircraft gunners are shooting straighter, faster and more effectively. Along with fighter planes of the fleet air arm, they are rolling up an impressive record.

House to Convene Early on Draft Bill

One group of Republicans was reported prepared to resist any changes in the bill designed to increase the likelihood of the measure's passing, then to vote against the extension proposal itself. Representative Boland, of Pennsylvania, the Democratic whip, told the Associated Press he hesitated to predict the outcome of the fight because he was unbale to say how many Republicans would vote with the Democratic leadership.

Asked how many Democrats would vote against any extension of the service period, he replied: "There are too many."

In contrast was the insistence by Representative May, in charge of the bill in the House, that enough votes have been won over from undecided members to push the bill through before today's House session ends.

Nazi Boasting of Norway Line Believed Whistling in the Dark

By Bernard Valery
Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm, Aug. 10.—A Swedish report from Norway announced today that the "Falkenhorst Line" of fortifications has been completed from Kristiansand to Trondheim in the north and that from now on Norway can be considered as "invasion proof."

The report remarks that the work of fortification in Norway's coastal zone began last summer and that by autumn some of it had been completed. "At the same time, intensive work was started behind the coastal line on air bases and fortifications."

Today, the report goes on, "the Falkenhorst Line can be considered as completed in every detail. It is estimated that between 50,000 and 60,000 workers participated in the construction of this line under the direction of German engineers and foremen. It is expected that they will now be transferred to the north to work on a prolongation of the line from Trondheim to Kirkenes."

Control Is Tightened

The report adds that with the completion of the Falkenhorst Line certain restrictions in the coastal region will be lifted but control over the population in any case will be made tighter than before.

Neutral observers in Stockholm have heard this report with great interest, mixed with a certain amount of skepticism. The interest provoked is due, first of all, to its timing. It is thought here that it has been largely inspired by the German propaganda and is an expression of the increasing apprehension over the possibility of a British invasion, which dominates all the acts and thoughts of the Germans in Norway.

The Russian campaign has compelled the Germans to weaken their garrisons in Norway considerably. More than one-half of the troops they had there have been sent to Finland, leaving not more than 100,000 men in Norway, it is thought here.

Rumors of an impending invasion of Norway are circulating widely in Stockholm. Neutral military experts here believe that an invasion is perfectly feasible and could bring a rapid and favorable result.

The essential condition for it is, of course, that the Russians immobilize the German armies on the Eastern front. The second condition is that the Soviet troops on the Kola Peninsula continue to do as well against the Germans as they have up to now.

Landed in such circumstances, British troops could attack from the rear the German troops unsuccessfull y trying to advance on Murmansk and with the help of the Russians, easily annihilate them. Such an operation might have incalculable political consequences. For instance, it might compel the Finns to make a separate peace which in turn, would free the Russian armies fighting against the Finns.

Landed in northern Norway, British troops would not even need to attack toward the south, and on condition that they have enough fighting planes, could hold their Northern positions against any German countermove. Such is the general opinion of neutral military experts here.

As for the skepticism with which the report about the completion of the Falkenhorst Line is greeted in Stockholm, it is due to the fact that it is believed here to be practically impossible to make a foolproof defense along an immense coastal line full of extremely convenient fjords. Besides it is pointed out here that the Falkenhorst Line has a back country seething with potential guerrilla fighters, saboteurs and, in general, men ready to do anything to help the British.

British Report a Crisis in Far East

was reported from Australia tonight, and informed quarters in London, Chinese diplomats and Australian and New Zealand sources made it evident that all eyes were turned on Washington.

Fear was widespread that Japan intends to disregard last week's warnings by Secretary of State Hull and Foreign Secretary Eden and embark upon moves north and south to further a grandiose plan of German and Japanese strategists to seize all the strategic points dominating the world's oceans.

Dispatches from Bangkok, Thailand capital, said there was an extraordinary cabinet meeting over the weekend and intense diplomatic activity there, in which United States Minister Hugh G. Grant was a prominent figure.

(The Tokyo radio said Dutch nationals in Shanghai and Japan had been advised to leave without delay.)

Informed sources here said Japan's hesitancy thus far to follow the occupation of all Indo-China by a move into Thailand was governed by her uncertainty over United States action.

"If Japan believes that America will not fight, but will only help others to fight, Japan will plunge the South Pacific into war," one observer declared.

Chinese diplomats here said Japan is counting on the "United States policy of helping others to fight rather than fighting herself."

Some quarters cited comment in the militaristic Japanese newspaper, Kokumin, dismissing the Hull-Eden warnings as "blustering harangues," as evidence that Japan intends to ignore these warnings.

There was some sharpness in comments on Hull's recent statements in the British press and semi-official quarters. One retired English diplomat declared that Hull had given no indication that the United States is prepared to do anything more "than increase aid to Britain, Russia and China and increase its verbal denunciation of the dictators."

Another informed source counseled moderation and said, "It is realized in Tokyo that certain very mysterious movements of high American statesmen may be a prelude to the end of America's policy of nonbelligerency."

Meanwhile there were indications that new fronts in the "war for the world" may open in Thrace and the Western Mediterranean.

would be determined by the effectiveness with which the government of Marshal Petain defended French territories from "those powers which are seeking to extend their rule by force and conquest."

Seeking to avoid "serious dislocations" in Latin-American countries, Gen. Maxwell announced that a clearance section had been created in his office through which United States exporters and foreign importers might submit proposals for export of articles and materials deemed essential to the economic life of friendly countries.

Establishment of this service, Maxwell said, was in line with a policy expressed by President Roosevelt in a letter to William S. Knudsen, director of the Office of Production Management, Mr. Roosevelt wrote:

"We have recognized that the economic well being of our neighbors is an integral part of the hemisphere defense program.

" . . . I am now advised that the pressure upon our production facilities resulting from our national defense program is resulting in the unavailability of industrial and consumer goods for delivery to the other American republics. This threatens serious dislocations in their economies. In the interest of hemisphere defense, therefore, it now appears desirable to give the vital requirements of these republics such priority as may be necessary to maintain their industrial and economic stability, provided that there should be no prejudice to the national defense program of this country."

Representative Henry B. Steagall (Democrat), of Alabama, chairman of the committee, has indicated that he was not inclined to rush consideration of this measure, and Representative Jesse P. Wolcott, of Michigan, the ranking Republican member, predicted tonight that the hearings would continue for three weeks or longer.

Wolcott said he expected some form of credit control to be added to the bill and some features of the Administration's recommendation to be ironed out or eliminated.

Henderson To Testify

Leon Henderson, price administrator, will resume his testimony today with Wolcott leading the examination. The Michigan Republican indicated that he would deal with the absence of provision in the bill for review of findings of fact prior to enforcement of control regulations. As the bill stands, he pointed out, such regulations could be enforced until they had been passed upon by the Supreme Court—a long process.

Wolcott indicated that he would favor a plan to expand the powers of the Federal Reserve System over bank reserve requirements, to prevent use of excess reserves as a base for credit expansion, and over rediscount rates, to make credit harder to get for unnecessary activities.

Another important point, he suggested, is to end the conflict between the Federal Reserve System and the Treasury Department.

"Something must be done to prevent inflation," he added, "and it probably will take the form of some price control and a great deal of credit control. The committee seems about ready to turn the major job over to the Federal Reserve System."

Queen Thanks Women of America For Their Kindness to Her People

Devotion to Same Ideals of Freedom Stressed by Ruler

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 10.—Queen Elizabeth declared tonight in a broadcast to the United States that "to my mind, at any rate, your generosity is born of your conviction that we fight to save a cause that is yours no less than ours."

Adhering to an unwritten rule of royal broadcasts that the speaker be alone, the Queen read her own composition, her first address to the United States in more than two years, from the privacy of a rural retreat somewhere in England.

Addressed to Women

The Queen said that "though I speak for us all in Britain in thanking all of you in America, I feel I would like to send a special message of thanks to American women.

"It gives us strength to know that you have not been content to pass us by on the other side: To us in time of our tribulation you have surely shown that compassion which has been for 2000 years the mark of the good neighbor . . . we are grateful. We shall not forget your sacrifice.

"The sympathy which inspires it springs not only from our common speech and traditions which we share with you, but even more from our common ideals. To you tyranny is as hateful as it is to us: to you the things for which we will fight to the death are no less sacred."

Heartened by U. S. Aid

"I look to the day," she said, "when we shall go forward hand in hand to build a better, a kinder and a happier world for our children."

Alluding to the burdens and sufferings endured by women and children of Britain, the Queen declared, "hardship has only steeled our hearts and strengthened our resolution."

United States aid, she went on, had enheartened all the nation. "Unless you have seen, as I have seen, just how your gifts have been put to use you cannot know, perhaps, the solace which you have brought to the men and women of Britain. . . . ."

U. S. Won't Fail Oppressed Nations, Capper Promises

Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, said in a message broadcast to Norway yesterday that "we Americans are not going to abandon the brave people of Norway, of Denmark, of Holland and the other occupied countries."

He added:

"There may be differences of opinion here in the United States, there may be doubt as to ways and means, but of one thing we are all certain: The people of the small peace-loving democracies deserve our help and they shall have it at the earliest possible opportunity."

Capper went on to say that sooner or later it would be possible to get food to "the right people and places in Europe and then America will do her part in feeding all who are hungry."

RAF Damages 3 Nazi Ships In Day Raids

Copyright by New York Times

London, (Monday), Aug. 1.—Powerful formations of British bombers with fighter escort made another series of daytime sweeps over French coast points as well as inland and northern France yesterday, bombing one German supply shipp which was set afire, and damaging two escort vessels.

The Royal Air Force last two bombers and one fighter. German losses, according to London officials, were one Nazi fighter that opposed the convoy attack off the French coast and one bomber which was shot down by a group of British minesweepers before dawn yesterday.

British bombing activity against Germany and targets in German occupied territory was at a complete standstill Saturday night for the first time in many nights, presumably because of the weather.

The Royal Air Force's daylight "sweeps" over France yesterday began in the morning with an attack on a supply ship convoy. Escorting vessels put up antiaircraft fire which, however, was silenced by low-diving Royal Air Force fighter planes that raked the vessels with machine-gun fire. Two of the escort vessels were enveloped by smoke as the raiders left.

London officials did not say what places in inland France were visited by the Royal Air Force.

Early yesterday there were scattered raids by the Germans over Britain. The points affected were the east coast of England and the northeast of Scotland. Some people were killed and buildings were demolished.

British Change Time

London, Aug. 10 (AP).—Double British summer time—seven hours ahead of Eastern Standard Time—ended at 3 a. m. today and Britons pushed their clocks back one hour to ordinary summer time.

War Sidelights

Sabotage, Gas Fail in London Sham Battle

London, Aug. 10.—Landings from the river, sabotage activity and tear gas all played a part in the realistic mock battle on the city of London today, in a demonstration in which more than 2000 home guards took part.

The attackers tried to capture Faraday House, telephone headquarters, the general postoffice and another telephone exchange, but failed against what observers called "an imaginative defense."

Spectators in several areas were caught without their gas masks and tear gas fumes in one area so inconvenienced passersby that the tear gas cartridge had to be extinguished to relieve their distress.

The exercise was another in a series designed to test the home guards. Similar tests are being carried out throughout the country.

Study Street War

Moscow, Aug. 10 (AP).—Tens of thousands of civilians in the Moscow region are learning to fight "under street conditions" with bayonets, hand grenades and rifles, the semi-monthly publication Bolshevik declared tonight.

It said these civilians would form a mass of reserves for the Red army, which it called only the "armed advance guard of our giant people."

The army's reserves are "countless," Bolshevik added. "Millions of people are ready at the first call of party and government to join the fighting ranks."

Nazis Refuse Rescue

Lisbon, Aug. 10 (AP).—Twenty men from the German freighter Frankfurt are adrift in the Atlantic in an open boat despite a proffer of rescue, according to radio dispatches from the would-be rescuing boat.

The messages, from a ship of Panama registry but not otherwise identified, said the Germans refused to come aboard when they were found, expressing fear of internment.

The messages described the Frankfurt as a Nazi raider which had been intercepted and sunk by a British warship a few days ago.

Rome, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—The Axis is expected to summon eight European nations into conference within two weeks to "solidify Axis Europe" against the rapid moves of the United States toward greater intervention in the war, according to reports in Rome tonight.

Represented at the conference, to be held either in Vienna or Venice, will be Germany, Italy, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, Finland, Slovakia and Croatia, it was understood.

Plans will be made at the conference to pool the armies as well as the food supplies and economic resources of the eight countries in the event the United States enters the war, it was suggested.

Ossinging, N. Y., Aug. 10 (AP).—Richard Whitney, Wall Street's $11,000,000 failure who worked his way up from a mopbucket to a clerkship during 40 months in Sing Sing, regains his liberty and name tomorrow and a chance for a fresh career.

The portly former broker will shed his numerical identity as convict No. 94,635 when he emerges from prison at 7 a. m. (E. S. T.) to begin a new life at the age of 56 as superintendent of a 25-cow dairy farm near Barnstable, Mass.

Duff Cooper Expects Nazi Drive Soon

By the United Press

New York, Aug. 10.—Britain expects "some sort of blitz soon," Alfred Duff Cooper, former British minister of information, said today on his arrival by Atlantic clipper en route to Singapore to undertake centralization of British political controls in the Far East.

His wife, Lady Diana, accompanied him. They were greeted at LaGuardia Airport's marine terminal by their 11-year-old son, John Julius, who has been attending school in Canada.

Duff Cooper said he expects to be in New York and Washington about two weeks, when he will go to San Francisco and from there to Singapore.

He said the recent bombing lull which Britain has experienced has led Britons to anticipate some concentrated effort of the German air force.

"We expect some sort of blitz soon," he said. "Something is in the wind."

He attributed the lull to the fact that Germany has "lost the cream of her pilots."

Questioned about a reported meeting between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt, Duff Cooper said he had seen Churchill a week ago Wednesday "and there was no suggestion of such a meeting at that time."

As to Churchill's absence from Commons, he remarked that "Churchill more than likely is allowing someone else to make speeches in the House of Commons for a change."

In an interview broadcast over an N. B. C. network, Duff Cooper observed that "the reaction of the Japanese government to the strong measures taken so promptly and efficaciously by the governments of Great Britain and the United States as the result of Japan's intrusion into Indo-China have had, so far, a distinctly steadying and healthy effect."

Assails Overoptimism

He said there was "no truth whatsoever" in rumors that Britain is not making full use of war materials being sent from the United States under the lend-lease act.

The British people, he said, are "too optimistic."

"That is a tendency which should be checked," he added. "The war is not won. We are very far from that."

He was himself optimistic about the Battle of the Atlantic, since sinkings "have not been quite so numerous recently," but he cautioned that the battle still is being fought "and that menace still exists—the menace of being starved out by the German U-boats."

"A year ago," he said, "our shores were undefended. Today they are defended from one end to the other, and after a year's training the home guard is a formidable fighting force. After a year's bombing Hitler has accomplished nothing."

Willkie Now Sees 'Victory' in Sight

Rushville, Ind., Aug. 10 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie, commenting on the war, said today, "for the first time I can see victory in sight, because the United States has made defense preparations."

A delegation from Hoosier organizations was calling on him to invite him to speak at a defense rally at the State fair in Indianapolis August 29-September 5.

He said he would if he were in Indiana then. Visiting here, he will go back to New York tomorrow or Tuesday.

Swiss Demobilize Part of Army

Bern, Switzerland, Aug. 10 (U.P.).—Switzerland has demobilized a large portion of her army because there appears to be no immediate threat against the country's independence, Dr. Karl Kobelt, chief of the Federal Military Department, said today.

Another reason for the move, he said, was that maintenance of large forces was a severe drain on the national economy. The Swiss army had been fully mobilized for nearly two years and cost the country 3,500,000 francs ($812,700) daily.

Siam-Malaya Road Reported Shut by British

By International News Service

Tokyo (Monday), Aug. 11.—Britain was reported in Japanese advices early today to have closed the motor road between Thailand and Malaya and to have erected "heavy fortifications" 15 to 20 miles behind the Thai-Malayan frontier.

Quoting "reliable sources" in the Thai capital of Bangkok as authority for these reports, the Japanese news agency Domei said further it is reported 100 warplanes arrived at Singapore from the United States and are now beng assembled at the British base at the southern tip of the Malayan Peninsula.

Reinforcements of Australian troops were reported by Domei to have been landed in Burma and to have been rushed to that portion of the Thai border which adjoins Burmese territory.

Businesses Shut Down

Tokyo (Monday), Aug. 11 (U.P.).—The Canadian Pacific Steamship Co., formerly one of the largest operating in the Pacific, today ordered the closing of all its offices in Japan and informde sources said Canadian and American business interests throughout Nippon were near "complete collapse."

Canadian Pacific ordered the shutdown, it was said, because of the combined effects of the freezing regulations and the lack of ships. The company's personnel was ordered to return to Canada.

The National City Bank of New York likewise reportedly was planning curtailment of its affairs, including shutdown of its Kobe and Osaka branches and possibly of its Tokyo branch.

Hundreds Escape Injury as Flyer Coach Jumps Rails

Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 10 (INS).—Several hundred persons escaped injury tonight when the third car of the Pennsylvania railroad streamliner Trailblazer was derailed 9 miles east of Fort Wayne.

The 16-car train, carrying 640 passengers and en route from Chicago to New York, was traveling about 90 miles an hour when the rear trucks of the third car left the rails, persons aboard said.

The derailed car continued east at least a mile before the coupling joining the third an' fourth coaches separated, it was said. When the coupling broke, brakes on the rear 13 coaches automatically were applied. The locomotive and the first three coaches continued down the track at least a mile before the engineer brought them to a halt. Several persons were shaken up and were suffering from nervous shock.

Chile Seizes Arms Caches In Nazi Colony

By International News Service

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 10.—The government tonight was reported to have discovered and smashed a widespread Nazi plot in southern Chile.

The plot allegedly called for an armed uprising to overthrow the "Popular Front" regime of President Pedro Aguirre Cerda and supplant it with a totalitarian administration.

(A dispatch from the Buenos Aires Bureau of International News Service said the Chilean radio had announced the nipping of a Nazi conspiracy throughout the "whole southern zone" of the country and that many suspected plotters had been arrested. Arms, munitions and incriminating documents, the broadcast said, have been seized by the Chilean authorities.)

The purported plot, according to the Santiago newspaper La Critica, centered in the Puerto Montt region of southern Chile where there has been considerable German colonization.

A cache of arms was confiscated and three men were arrested, all of whom were described as members of the Landsgruppe, a pro-Nazi organization powerful in the Puerto Montt region.

The German consul at the scene of the arrests immediately protested to Chilean government officials, stating that the Landsgruppe was a sporting rather than a political organization.

It was the Chilean government's first move against any alleged Nazi organization and it came a fortnight after Bolivia announced the smashing of a Nazi plot and expelled the German minister.

37,000 Tons of British Ships Sent to Bottom, Berlin Claims

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 10.—Destruction of 37,000 tons of British shipping by the Luftwaffe and 28 R. A. F. planes by air fighters and ground batteries since Friday was reported today by the Germans.

The high command said the sinkings included four freighters totaling 23,000 tons picked out of an Atlantic convoy off the English southeast coast last night, a 6,000-ton freighter sunk east of the Faroes in daylight hours and an 8,000-ton merchantman in the Suez Canal readstead Friday night.

D. N. B., the official news agency, claimed nine R. A. F. planes were knocked down in attempted daylight raids on the Channel coast today and the high command listed 19 destroyed yesterday.

The high command said the ship sunk in the Suez roadstead was hit in the course of Friday night attacks on the canal and that the Luftwaffe also damaged a light British cruiser.

"Last night further air attacks were directed against ports on the Scottish east coast and military objectives in County Leicester," the communique said.

D. N. B. said fires were observed in the Midlands and in eastern England ports after night attacks.

Raids on Berlin Recall Flight Of Russians to California

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, Aug. 10.—Soviet warnings issued four years ago, after record-shattering flights from Moscow to the United States, have found their first major echoes in the Russian bombing of Berlin.

After one Russian plane had flown across the top of the world in 1937 and landed near Portland, Ore., and a second had set a new distance mark of 3262 miles by flying from Moscow to San Jacinto, Calif., the Moscow newspaper Pravda said this regarding Russia's "enemies:"

"Let them remember the distance between here and their capital is much less than the distance to Portland and San Jacinto. Our industry can produce as many planes as the country needs."

The words, similar to those used in other Communist newspapers, at that time were believed directed to Germany and Japan.

The flight from Russia to San Jacinto ended July 14, 1937.

T. Clayde Ryan, builder of Charles A. Lindbergh's New York-to-Paris "Spirit of St. Louis," hailed the single-engined Russian plane as a marvel of compact efficiency.

Maj. E. E. Mouton, former Department of Commerce aviation executive, said he was astounded when he opened the motor cowl and saw no trace of oil leakage after the ship's 62 hours and 17 minutes in the air.

"The motor was as clean as if it had just been wiped," he said.

The plane was powered by a 1,000-horsepower engine and had a wingspread of 105 feet. It weighed 11 tons.

It was the quiet boast of the ship's pilot, Mikhail Gromov, that "it's all the work of our own engineers. Every rivet, the entire design, is ours."

Please do not become panicky. Our regular resources assure us that we shall have Silk Stockings for a time—Nylons to some extent continuously and later, cotton meshes and lisles. We will take care of you.

Again let us say that we feel it most inadvisable for us to participate in the mad rush for silk stockings of any kind at any price. We do not wish to do anything to accelerate the rising price tide.

Please bear with us in this emergency. Our limit now is three pairs to a customer. The response we have already had to our suggestion that we all ration ourselves voluntarily as suggested by Miss Harriot Elliott of the O. E. M. has been heartening.

Laborer, 34, Admits Attack On Girl in Park

home at 8:30 a. m. to go to those addresses and inquire for employment.

On the way he drank what was left of the wine—about half a pint. He had drunk a pint before breakfast. After calling at 1721 Rhode Island Avenue, he boarded a bus to go to the other address.

At about 10:30 a. m., alighting at Sixteenth Street and Fort Stevens Drive, he sighted the girl. Approaching her as she walked toward a nearby riding academy, he asked her to direct him to the New Hampshire Avenue address.

While they were talking he looked around, saw that nobody was watching and seized her by the throat, choking her. He dragged the girl about 60 feet into a thicket, where he covered her face with her riding habit and attacked her.

Before leaving, he made her turn over on her face, tied her feet with her clothes and left, climbing up a bank and throwing away his white sun helmet. Police found the helmet.

He went home by bus, took a bath and changed from his tan slack suit into other clothes.

Robinson denied that he threatened the girl with a knife, as she told police. He also said that he raped her only once; she said there were two attacks. He said he couldn't remember whether he had tied her hands behind her back before attacking her, as she had reported.

The confession followed development of a wealth of circumstantial evidence against the suspect, who was unable to explain much of it.

Slack Suit Found in Home

For one thing, he told police he did not own a tan slack suit or a white sun helmet, articles which the victim said her attacker wore. But officers found a tan slack suit at his home. And his wife said he was wearing both slack suit and helmet when he left home the morning of the attack.

Furthermore, Detective Corpl. Frank Lane, of the Montgomery County Police, informed Washington detectives that he had arrested Robinson previously and that he wore a white sun helmet. A test also disclosed spots of blood on him when he was arrested.

Confronted with this evidence, Robinson admitted that he owned a helmet. He said he had found it in Silver Spring but decided he didn't like it and threw it away in downtown Washington.

Robinson was viewed by his victim in a police lineup Saturday, and she picked him out as her attacker but said she "couldn't be sure."

"What impressed me most," she said at the time, "was the way he looked at me and his voice." She added, "When he first came in the room, he didn't see me. But when he did see me his eyes almost popped. He couldn't keep his eyes off me. And his voice—it sounded exactly like that of the man who attacked me."

Another piece of evidence was provided by a young Negro girl who also picked Robinson out of the lineup as the man she had seen near the scene of the crime shortly before it was committed.

Robinson, FBI fingerprint records disclosed, served 10 years in prison at Moundsville, W. Va., on conviction of rape in Bluefield, W. Va. Released in 1939, he was again arrested on a rape charge in March, 1940, but the case was dismissed.

On obtaining the confession, police released another suspect who had been held since less than an hour after the attack. There was considerable circumstantial evidence against him, too.

A suspect arrested a few hours after Robinson as he wandered aimlessly in Rock Creek Park near the attack scene was turned over to Twelfth Precinct police for questioning in another case.

Montgomery Suspect Freed

The only other suspect apprehended already had been freed. He was taken into custody by Montgomery County police the night of the attack.

Keck said after Robinson's confession that he had not decided what to do with $1200 in rewards offered for information leading to the attacker's capture and conviction—$1000 by the girl's father and $200 by the Metropolitan Police. He said he did not know whether the rewards would be made, since Robinson already was in custody when they were offered.

The nineteenth rape reported to police here this year, the Rock Creek Park is the third case in succession which police have marked off as solved.

James R. McKenzie, 21, awaits electrocution for the rape of a Fourteenth Street laundry agency clerk on June 24. Roland Junior Lindsey, 19, has confessed and awaits trial for raping an 18-year-old girl in Patterson's Woods and slashing the throat of her escort, a Fort Meade soldier.

in the head and stabbed him in the back.

Bob Pollock, a prison guard, was shot in the shoulder in the exchange of shots with the fugitives.

The fourth convict, Hiram Prather, 33, serving life for murder, was caught in the cross fire and wounded when he leaped from the fugitives' car, with his hands up.

The convicts were at liberty in the yard for the usual Sunday period of exercise when the break was made.

Dunn and Fentriss were walking up the steps of the prison hospital when the four prisoners accosted them, holding foot long knives at their necks and razors at their throats.

As hostages they were taken to the east gate of the prison where the escapees shouted to the guards to throw down their guns and open the gate. Warden Dunn, threatened with death if he took any other course, told the guards to comply.

Outside the prison the quartet marched the hostages to a motor car, and drove away.

Informed of the kidnaping, Alexander, accompanied by Ford and Pollock, sped in pursuit in another auto. A half mile from the prison, they intercepted the fugitives at a cross street, forcing the prisoners to stop.

As the cars came to a stop Alexander heard Warden Dunn tell his captors:

"Please use your heads, boys. You'd better give up."

Alexander also called on them to surrender.

The answer was a burst of gunfire from the prisoners, using the weapons the guards had given up at the gate.

While one convict shot the warden in the head, another stabbed him in the back. The one wielding the knife then turned on Fentress.

Deputy Tells How He Halted Escaping Felons And 'Shot It Out' on Oklahoma Road

[Bill Alexander, Pittsburg County deputy sheriff and marksman, today vainly tried to save his friend and former superior, Warden Jess Dunn, from death at the hands of four escaping convicts. Remembering the prison code of not letting convicts escape by threatening the lives of hostages, Alexander ran the four desperadoes down and single handedly picked them off with his rifle as they blazed away at him.—Editor's note.]

By Bill Alexander
As told to United Press.

McAlester, Okla., Aug. 10.—I guess the good Lord was with me today.

I was sitting in the sheriff's office about 10:30 this morning when I got a call from the prison. They said they had had a break and that they wanted all officers to come out there.

I was alone, but I rounded up a jailer, Tab Ford, and we got in my car and drove out to the prison as fast as we could. At the gates I picked up a prison employe named Pollock (Rob Pollock, a prison guard), who pointed out the road the escaped prisoners had taken.

I turned down it and stepped on the gas. The prisoners had run into a dead end where a bridge was being worked on and they had turned around and started back. Pollock saw them, and said, "There they come."

Knife at Warden's Throat

I swung my car broadside across the road nad jumped out with my rifle as they skidded to a stop. One of the convicts had a knife at Warden Dunn's throat and the warden yelled at me to use my head and let them pass. I told him to get out of the car, that I just wouldn't let them go by me as long as I had a gun.

They were quiet a second, then the two in the back seat started shooting. One bullet shattered my windshield and I cut loose at them. I was very careful not to hit the warden, who was in the front seat. I shot the driver and the other man in the front seat with six shots and emptied my gun. One of the men in the back seat dragged the driver out of the way and climbed into the seat himself. They drove around me while I was trying to get my gun loaded and I handed it to Pollock to load for me. The rifle he had borrowed was empty. He loaded mine while I took out after the other car.

They turned into another dead end. I had them trapped. I blocked the lane again and stood and shot it out with them while Pollock fed me bullets. They hit him slightly with a shotgun but he wasn't hurt much. I killed one or two of them and the other guy gave up, hollering "don't shoot."

I went to the car and found the warden dead with his head almost blown off. (J. H.) Fentriss, the other man they had taken prisoner was crouched down in the back seat with his hands tied. He wasn't hurt.

I went back to my car and found that the first shot that broke my windshield had drilled poor Ford in the head and killed him. I hadn't noticed before that he wasn't shooting.

Thinking back, I guess they killed the warden when he started scuffling ith them after the first gunfight. He had oply one hand free.

Navy Ship Workers Quitting, Union Says

U. F. W. A. Reports Hundreds Leaving For Higher Pay in Private Yards

Copyright by New York Times

After a survey of the Philadelphia Navy Yard in which they were aided by its officials, the United Federal Workers of America, C. I. O., reported yesterday that construction of battleships and other naval vessels is being seriously hampered by large labor turnovers in which hundreds of skilled workmen are leaving Government yards for private employment at higher pay. Reports from other navy yards are said to indicate that conditions at Philadelphia are typical.

It is claimed that the private yards are raiding the Government yards and are being helped by the increased cost of living. First class mechanics at the navy yard average from $40 to $42 a week whereas in private yards they earn between $50 and $65 weekly. At the private yards the men receive double-time for Sunday work and at the Navy Yard only time and a half. As a result, nearly 800 skilled men left the Navy Yard in the past three months.

U. F. W. A. conferees who last Thursday discussed the question with Capt. L. M. Atkins, director of naval shore establishments, complained yesterday that they found his attitude "regrettable and disturbing." Several weeks ago, they say, he told a union delegation that "frequently union activity is indistinguishable from subversive activity." At that time, it is said, ten active union members were approached while on the job by marines and driven out of the yard at bayonet point.

Henry Rhine, national representative of the union, told Capt. Atkins that despite his attitude the U. F. W. A. would continue to try to keep the men on the job but seek higher rates of pay for them. The union is requesting $1.40 an hour for mechanics and $1.05 for helpers.

Puget Sound Reported Mined As Army Awaits 'Invasion'

By the Associated Press

Fort Lewis, Wash., Aug. 10.—The waters of Puget Sound were reported mined today as the greatest peacetime army ever assembled on the Pacific Coast prepared to repel a theoretical invasion.

In a strange mixture of the actual and the assumed, the Army—which will total 100,000 men before the maneuvers are completed—prepared for defense of the rugged Washington coast.

On the Army's charts, this was the situation:

The narrow entrance to the sound has been mined against an invading fleet which captured the Hawaiian Islands several days ago. Fort Worden, chief bastion of the Sound defenses, has been placed on the alert by Lieut. Gen. John L. Dewitt, commander of the Fourth Army.

Commanding officers of the Ninth Army Corps here remained on a 24-hour watch, expecting to hear any minute that enemy forces had landed under cover of fog at two or three points on the ocean beaches.

When that word is received, they will set in motion a lightning defense to hold the superior enemy forces at bay until help can arrive from the supporting Third Army Corps in California.

The Army warned shipping not to pass under Fort Worden's 16-inch guns without specific permission because of the mines—but the Army did not say whether the mines actually had been planted.

Maneuvers will begin at about 2 a. m. tomorrow with an alert here, during which tactical staffs will learn for the first time where the enemy has landed and details of his apparent strength and objectives.

The 50,000 troops of the Third Army are expected to start forced marches northward soon after the first warning.

By August 15, fully 100,000 men, 15,000 pieces of motorized equipment and heavy ordnance and many hundreds of horses and mules will be on the battle lines.

On paved roads and flat terrain in the southern half of the State, Army officials will use the latest motorized equipment to meet expected blitzkrieg thrusts.

But in the mountainous Olympic Peninsula, mules and mountain-pack artillery are expected to bear the brunt of the defense.

Montgomery Stations 15 New Police

Reorganization of the Montgomery County Police Department will be complete today as far as possible prior to appointment of eight men. The department now has 58 of its authorized strength of 64 men.

Fifteen men added three weeks ago have finished an intensive course under the veteran Sergt. James S. McAuliffe, graduate of the FBI training school, and will be assigned to regular duties at the county police substations today.

Six men will go to Bethesda, six to Silver Spring and three to Rockville. Three detectives corporals who have been working in the substations pending assignment of the new men will be transferred to Rockville today for service with the newly created detective bureau.

Detective Lieut. Theodore Vellton will be in command of the new detective bureau, with Sergt. McAuliffe as second in command. Detective Corpls. Frank Lane, Gassaway W. Linthicum and Earle U. Stearn will be transferred today to the bureau. Policeman John Berry will continue in charge of the identification and fingerprint files.

The school attended by the new men presented addresses by Judges Charles W. Wodward and Stedman Prescott, of the county circuit court; State's Attorney Ben G. Wilkinson and Assistant State's Attorney Alger Y. Barbee, J. A. Martin, of the FBI technical laboratory; Commissioner R. W. Farmer, in charge of police, O. W. Roby, Police Civil Service Commissioner B. Peyton Whalen, Detective Lieut. Vollten, Lieuts. Earl H. Burdine and Leroy Rodgers, and Frst Sergt. Guy Jones, who lectured on traffic control.

Chief of Police Andrew M. Newman told the graduating class that the work of the policemen was just as important as that of the armed forces in the cause of national security.

The policemen also were given instruction in revolver, machine gun, tear gas and hand grenade work.

Jobs for Negroes Are Increasing, U. S. Service Finds

Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt announced yesterday that placement of Negro workers by the District employment office was 82 per cent higher from January to May of this year than in the corresponding period last year.

Reports to the administrator by the Social Security Board indicate that placement of Negroes is increasing somewhat faster than that of other workers, in contrast to the trend heretofore.

For Maryland, the increase this year over last was 86 per cent and in Virginia it was 87 per cent.

Union Approves Shipyard Pact At Camden, N.J.

By the Associated Press

Two New Jersey strikes affecting more than half a million dollars' of defense work appeared no nearer settlement yesterday, but strikers at the New York Shipbuilding Corporation, Camden, N. J., which has another half-billion dollars of orders, approved a two-year contract.

The vast yards of the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. at Kearny, N. J., remained idle for a fourth day as a result of a C. I. O. strike while word was awaited from the Defense Mediation Board.

The Curtiss-Wright Corporation's propeller plant at Caldwell, N. J., also was closed, but a company spokesman said the Sabbath shutdown had nothing to do with the A. F. of L. strike which began Friday and that an attempt would be made to resume regular operations today.

The New York Shipbuilding Corporation agreement with the C. I. O. provided for a union shop and automatic wage increases based on living costs and barred strikes or lockouts.

Although reports were current that the Government might take over the operation of the Federal Shipbuilding plant unless the walkout there was ended soon, there was no indication in Washington that such a step was imminent.

The Marine and Shipbuilding Union struck last Thursday because of the company's failure to accept a proposal by the Defense Mediation Board that employes who failed to maintain good standing in the union be discharged from their jobs.

A new strike threat appeared in Allentown, Pa., where the C. I. O. United Auto Workers issued a call for a walk-out at 8 a. m. today at the Mack Manufacturing Co. A union official said the strike would not be called off unless the company agreed to make a 15-cent-an-hour wage increase retroactive to Monday, August 4. Present scales range from 64 to 95 cents an hour.

A company official replied that the firm could not agree to make a wage increase retroactive "without knowing the extent of its future business or the attitude of the union toward its proposals." The company employs 4700.

Wage increases ranging from 8 to 15½ cents an hour were announced in Seattle for employes of the Boeing Aircraft Co. A union official said the raises would boost averages from approximately 92 cents to approximately $1.02 an hour. He added that the new scale was 40 per cent higher than wages for comparable work in any other aviation plants in the country.

23 Men Corralled in Gaming Raid, 5 Post Bail of $6900

Five men were released under total bond of $6,900, following their arrest early yesterday in an alleged gambling establishment in the 600 block of G Street Northwest.

Four members of Capt. Earl Hartman's Special Investigation Squad conducted the raid, seizing 23 men in all. All but six were released, however, and one of these was held as a United States witness and later released in the custody of his attorney.

Two patrol wagons were used to haul the men to the First Precinct station, where all were questioned and fingerprinted. Police making the raid were in possession of a United States Commissioner's search warrant obtained after an alleged gambler supplied the information, police said. The complainant claimed to have been assaulted while in the establishment.

Under bond for setting up a gaming table were John Connos, 40, 610 Sixth Street Northwest; John Prafalis, 58, 453 G Street Northwest; Bill Ovanis, 50, 451 K Street Northwest, and Sam Mandos, 45, 610 G Street Northwest.

Mandos was charged in addition with assault with a dangerous weapon and Ovanis with simple assault. A fifth man, Nick Vericos, 45, of 610 G Street Northwest, was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and released under $500 bond. Connos and Prafalis were released under $1500 bond, Mandos, $1800, and Ovanis, $1600.

They will appear in Police Court this morning.

U. S. Won't Tolerate Japanese Grab of Siam, McNutt Says on Forum; Fish Disputes Policy

"A Japanese seizure of Thailand in the East would be regarded in the same light as a German seizure of Dakar in the West, and the United States will tolerate neither step in such direction." This assertion was made last night by Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt during a debate over the American Forum of the Air, broadcast to the Nation via Station WOL and the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Also sharing in the discussion of "What Should Be the U. S. Policy Toward Japan?" were Maury Maverick, former member of the House Military Affairs Committee, and now member of the Fight for Freedom Committee; Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), of New York, and Representative John M. Vorys (Republican), of Ohio, both members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. Theodore Granik, program director, was chairman.

Warning that the Japanese army controlled its government, McNutt told the audience, "Japanese statesmen have said they will rule Asia. Their success would mean that we could get no tin and rubber for the United States.

"Anyone who assumes the role of prophet is a fool," the former High Commissioner of the Philippines said. "Whether or not we shall have to go to war to protect our interests will depend on future events."

Maury Maverick, in agreement, declared that "when the President and our military leaders tell us it's time to smack Japan down, we should do it."

Representative Fish then asked the speaker if he would ignore the wishes of Congress. "The Congress has no idea of declaring war on Japan unless we are attacked," Fish stated. "And Japan has no intentions of attacking us or the Philippines. A war with Japan would be the height of human folly, as we have nothing to gain and everything to lose."

Maverick replied, "Let us all, every one of us, quit kidding ourselves. We are in trouble, and we must have firm policy in the Pacific. Japanese leaders respect the Navy more than sweet words."

Representative Vorys warned that "we must offer an alternative to Japan's gamble of conquest that is better than suicide for Japan, for the Japanese are willing to commit hara-kiri."

The Representative from Ohio said that "we should threaten Japan with a complete embargo if she does not discontinue her aggressions." The other three debaters agreed.

R. A. F. Bombs Wide Areas In North Africa

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Aug. 10.—Heavy bombers of the Royal Air Force ranged from Sicily to Greece and from Tripoli to Bardia and Bengasi in North Africa over the weekend, starting fires and explosions in Axis-held territory, a Middle East communique said today.

Three large fires, accompanied by violent explosions, were started at Tripoli Saturday night in a raid on the dock area, and in Bardia there were explosions and fires after the R. A. F. and planes of the fleet air arm attacked a motor transport yard.

The railway sidings at Bengasi were hit and fires were observed after the attack on the Port of Derna.

A number of aircraft were believed to have been destroyed in the R. A. F. attack on Elevsis airdrome, near Athens.

The Italian high command acknowledged British air raids on Bengasi, Derna and Bardia, and said British planes bombed the City of Corinth, Greece, and made repeated attacks on fortifications at Gondar, Ethiopia.

The communique also claimed the sinking of a British submarine in the central Mediterranean by an Italian torpedo boat.

The Italian air force, it declared, bombed the harbor at Matruh, Egypt, and British shipping east of Sidi Barrani.

D. N. B. news agency said German planes bombed warehouses in Tobruk. The Berlin radio said today that 60,0000 persons have been evacuated from the Suez area because of the numerous German air raids.

British Destroyer Sunk

Clocks In Confusion

Confusion became worse confounded last night when, at the request of Governor Price, various communities of Virginia went over to daylight-saving time, while others in the same State adhered to Eastern standard time. Thus the situation in Virginia is now like that in New York, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Delaware and other States, between whose borders the traveler, if he wishes to avoid confusion, must set his watch backward and forward as he journeys. The preponderant influence of the rural counties in Maryland still keeps the Legislature of the State from sanctioning any change from standard time. In the District, Commissioner Young has announced that unless and until the surrounding communities make a change, local clocks will remain as they are. But the neighboring communities in Virginia are waiting for the District to take the lead in the matter.

The confusion resulting from sporadic changes in time is likely to become more rather than less acute unless Congress acts to restore order. President Roosevelt has asked several Governors to put daylight-saving time into effect in their States, if that is possible. Such piecemeal shifts will probably effect some savings in electric energy, but that gain will be offset in part by widespread public bewilderment as to what time is being observed in any given community.

During World War I, Congress made daylight-saving time effective from the end of March to the end of October throughout the country. President Roosevelt believes that some communities should now observe daylight-saving time throughout the year. He has asked for authority to set the clocks ahead as much as two hours on a national or regional basis. Such a grant of authority might lead to even greater confusion than now exists. It would seem to be far more satisfactory for Congress to prescribe specific changes to go into effect throughout the entire Nation. Some rural communities would be adversely affected by any change, but they could start their work and other activities at a later hour, as they did 23 years ago. That would doubtless produce less confusion than a piecemeal changing of clocks.

In any event, Congress should act quickly. Even if daylight-saving time throughout the year should be sanctioned, the greater saving in light would be made in the late Spring and Summer. Daylight-saving time would get off to a a rather unpopular start, moreover, if it should be inaugurated after the short days of autumn begin.

Controlling Steel

The Office of Production Management, faced with an estimated steel deficit of 11,000,000 tons for the current year, has at last cracked down on nondefense orders by instituting 100 per cent priority control of steel production. This means, among other things, that from now on steel companies must fill new defense orders ahead of previously placed civilian contracts. In short, production for civilian use must wait upon defense requirements. To this there can be, of course, no serious objection. The steel industry was already subject to inventory controls with a special preference order directing that defense needs be met first. But it was found that civilian orders, in the process of being filled after steel companies had met defense orders, were interfering with new defense orders. That weakness in the program can now be corrected.

How severely civilian production will be affected naturally depends on the volume of defense orders in the months ahead—and defense estimates have been revised upward so often that few authorities are now willing to commit themselves further on the subject. In recent months manufacturers of washing machines, refrigerators and thousands of other commercial articles requiring steel have experienced increasing difficulty in securing steel deliveries. Now it appears that many of their orders—if they continue to place orders—will be sidetracked indefinitely.

Moreover, the OPM ruling states specifically that civilian allocations by the Director of Priorities after defense requirements are met shall be in accordance with the program of Leon Henderson's Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply. This provision would seem to admit Mr. Henderson's authority to impose his tentative cut of 50 per cent in automobile production, effective November 1—a move for which the OPM has hitherto claimed authority.

Regardless of which agency undertakes to curb the automobile industry or other manufacturers of civilian goods, the effect upon the consumer will be progressively restrictive. Yet there is no alternative consistent with all-out war production. For the more concentrated our effort to win the war industrially—that is, the quicker we remove the "bugs" from the process of turning steel into weapons—the sooner the war is likely to be over.

Gambling With Security

Some very strange arguments are being advanced by members of the House against the draft extension bill. We are told by Representative Short, for example, that it would be a "breach of faith" for Congress to keep selectees in the Army longer than the one-year period provided in the original act. Even a breach of faith would be justified in the eyes of most citizens if that should be necessary for the defense of the Nation. But actually there is no foundation whatever for this charge. Congress did believe a year ago that twelve months of training for the selectees would be sufficient to give the United States assurance of ample military protection. But it also recognized the fact that it was dealing with a fluid situation and therefore provided that the term of service required of drafted men could be extended by a Congressional declaration. In other words, Congress left itself free to modify the training period in any way that it might see fit.

One might argue, with an equal poverty of logic, that the enactment of a new tax bill would be a breach of faith with taxpayers. If every change in legislation were to be regarded as a betrayal of citizens affected by it, the hands of Congress would be tied and the country would be helpless in the face of a crisis. Before legislators make use of such shallow arguments, moreover, they ought to remember that their first obligation is to keep faith with the Nation they serve.

Some other members of the House seem to be disturbed because they can't see the whites of Hitler's eyes gleaming across the Atlantic. "Show us the emergency," they cry; and when no one points to a launching of ships from some foreign shore to invade the United States, they express a willingness "to let the boys go back home." No one would be so nonchalant about protecting his own home. On the contrary, everyone insists that a police force remain on the job all the time and most of us complain loudly when it shows any lack of efficiency. A nation without a powerful police force in a world rampant with conquest, revolution and war, is not likely to remain a nation for any great length of time.

The simple fact is that we are living in a time of world crisis. We do not know what turn events may take, but the possibility of having to fight for our freedom is ever present. Whether or not the menace of today evolves into war next month or a year hence, we must be prepared to meet it. And that preparedness cannot be achieved on short notice. In the circumstances, there is only one safe course to take and that is ample preparation for the worst that may happen. To gamble with our national security by making any lesser effort would be equivalent to putting a very low price on the blessings of democracy.

Undermining The NLRA

The strike at the Curtiss-Wright propeller plant is holding up work on 100 million dollars of aircraft orders. The strike was called, moreover, by an A. F. of L. local in complete disregard of the pledge given to President Roosevelt by the A. F. of L. executive council to settle disputes in defense industries around the conference table. Even if the country were not faced by a grave emergency, the union's action would leave it in a precarious position before the bar of public opinion. For the strike was called to prevent recognition of a rival organization that had won an NLRB election to determine which should be the accredited bargaining agency. The defeated union may have legitimate grievances; charges that the management interfered with the election may or may not be true. But whether true or false, the union should have taken an appeal from the decision in accordance with the orderly procedure laid down by the Labor Relations Act, instead of trying to settle the issue by direct action.

Of course, the company is compelled under the law to negotiate with the properly accredited bargaining agency certified by the NLRB. So it could not, even if it would, enter into negotiations with the strikers who are seeking wage increases and other concessions. The resultant tieup once again emphasizes the need for amendments to the antitrust laws that would enable the Government to discipline labor unions which restrain trade and tie up interstate commerce in order to frustrate legitimate collective bargaining.

In the present instance the union has not hesitated to jeopardize the defense program and to flout the principles of collective bargaining to gain recognition and advantages for itself. Since the antitrust laws, as now interpreted by the Supreme Court, permit the restraint of trade for such illegitimate purposes, the need for well guarded amendments ought to be clear to workers, as to other citizens.

Pressure On Vichy

For some time there have been persistent rumors that under German pressure Vichy has been preparing to place Dakar under the "protection" of the Third Reich as Indo-China was placed under the "protection" of Japan. The Nazi-oriented press of Occupied France has, indeed, repeatedly clamored that this be done.

Such a move, if consented to by the Vichy government, would constitute a very real threat to the security of this hemisphere. Dakar is only 1,600 miles from Recife in Brazil. Its control by the Nazis would enable them to extend and intensify the war on British shipping in the Atlantic, make possible a direct link between Germany and the raw material resources of South America, and provide the Nazis with a base from which they might ultimately launch an attack on points in the New World. It is hardly surprising, then, that the United States Government has viewed such a possible development with alarm. Recently, Mr. Sumner Welles, while Acting Secretary of State, told correspondents that the United States' attitude toward Vichy would be determined by "the effectiveness with which France defends its territories against the Axis powers' aggression." The warning did not go unnoticed in Vichy. Soon after a spokesman for the Vichy regime indicated that France would refuse to grant the Axis military facilities in North Africa. Yet the more formal communication later sent to the Department of State was so equivocal that it created real doubts as to the professed readiness of Marshal Petain and his colleagues to resist Hitler's demands.

Over the past week-end signs have been multiplying that an agreement between Vichy and Berlin providing for an enhanced measure of "collaboration" has been or is about to be signed. There was, for instance, the decree ordering Gen. Maxime Weygand to submit all questions of general policy in his North African administration to Vice Premier Admiral Francois Darlan, the most active pro-Nazi at Vichy. Then followed, on Saturday, the statement by Fernand de Brinon, Vichy representative, declaring that the views of the United States and France as to Hitler's "new order" are in complete opposition.

There can be no doubt that Nazi pressure on Vichy has steadily increased during recent weeks. Hitler is badly in need of a diplomatic triumph to offset the failure of the Nazi timetable in Russia. An agreement which would formally ally Vichy with the Reich and enable the Nazis to achieve a foothold in North and West Africa would be most helpful to the Fuehrer. And he is in a position to hold out to Vichy the tempting offer of freeing some of the French prisoners now held captive in Germany, and revising the line of demarcation between Occupied and Unoccupied France to enable the Vichy regime to move to Paris. There is thus a very real possibility that Vichy will repeat in Dakar, if it has not already done so, the surrender it approved in Indo-China.

Stop Silver Buying

A year ago Secretary Morgenthau opposed legislation providing for suspension of purchases of foreign silver on the ground that it would change the status quo at a particularly critical stage of international affairs. Now, with the international outlook still more menacing, he is willing to see all silver legislation wiped out, including the subsidies for the white metal mined in this country. The silver purchase plan long since ceased to be regarded seriously as a means of remonetizing silver. Foreign buying has continued for the political reasons urged by Secretary Morgenthau, and domestic buying because it means a little windfall for the constituents of the "silver bloc" in Congress.

Current purchases of silver, both foreign and domestic, are limited in amount and the effects are, as a Treasury official says, only "mildly inflationary." But such buying builds up our huge, useless silver stores which constitute a potential source of inflation that cannot be described by the word "mild." Our silver-purchase laws should be repealed in toto. But with the Treasury paying slightly over 71 cents per ounce for domestically mined silver, the Congressional "silver bloc" can be counted upon to resist that constructive step as usual.

VAGRANT

For down the furrows of my field
In dim perspective, dark and small,
He leans upon my meadow-wall.
His face by distance is concealed.

It's lonesome labor planting corn.
I think to pass the time of day
With him when I'll be down that way.
At furrow's end I find him gone.

When I stand straight, my back to ease,
The time I've hills to hoe, to thin,
I can discern him idling in
The sun-surrounded shade of trees.

And in the time of tawny husk,
When frosty moon uprises red,
When teams are watered, stalled, and fed,
A shadow darker than the dusk

Will walk the highways all alone,
His face unseen, his name unknown.

Marine Private

Dear Mother,

Well, I guess you would say "I'm Sitting on Top of the World" way up here in Iceland. The trip up was fairly rough, but I didn't get sea sick. We stopped in Newfoundland for about five days. When we arrived in Iceland the ship was laid at anchor for a couple of days and then everyone went ashore. Three others and I were left on board; when I got ready to come ashore the Captain complimented me and said he wished I could stay on board. For the past week we have had fine weather. You would think that there would be snow and ice all over the place and everyone shivering with the cold; but that is not true. For a couple of days we worked in our shirt sleeves. This is truly the land of the Midnight Sun. When we got here there was not the slightest bit of darkness; in fact the sun got hottest about 10:30 at night. It was hard to get used to it at first. That was until today. There is a cold, fine, windblown rain today that goes right through you. I don't know whether it will warm up again or not.

I received your letter about a week ago and was very glad to get it; I mean the one in which you said that you were glad that I was still in Parris Island;—I was in Iceland when I got it.

We have really been getting good food up here, better than the other outfits I believe. I have gained about 10 pounds.

There are volcanic springs up here and we have one right at the bottom of the hill. Hot spring water! Man and is it nice. Sometimes it is so hot you can't get in it. Later I am planning to see some of the sights up here. There is an active volcano, a water falls higher than Niagara and an Ice Cave called "Nature's Ice Box;" it is said to have been there since the Ice Age. The cold is trapped in so it keeps the ice from melting.

Everywhere you look, you see a British soldier (Limey). I hear there are even some from Australia and Canada up here.

The people here are Norwegian type; fair skin, blond hair and blue eyes. Some, but not many, speak English.

Well, I guess I've told you about all I know. Here's hoping this letter finds everyone well and not suffering too much from the heat.

Summer Swimming

This is in reply to John P. Wager's letter in today's Post, protesting the swimming in the fountain in Franklin Park.

I am unacquainted with the law on the subject, but if there is one prohibiting summer swimming in the fountain, I think it should be repealed. I think the Park Police have shown excellent sense and ordinary humanity in not interfering with a diversion which is neither a nuisance nor an eyesore but, on the contrary, an innocent and healthful amusement for children without other means of relief from the torrid pavements of downtown Washington. Surely the park is large enough for Mr. Wager to take a seat out of sight of the swimming, if he does not care to view it.

Federal Union

Your editorial, "Swiss Anniversary," of the first of August, points out another historical ally to those of us who vision a great era about to dawn.

Six hundred and fifty years ago the Swiss must have seen this great vision of the future. I feel sure our forefathers saw it and I am sure Lincoln saw it when he said, "for the great Republic, for the principle it lives by and keeps alive, for man's vast future."

These great men, citadels of the freedom that is to be, chose out of all the systems man has ever used for his own government—that of federal union.

Surely the last 20 years are proof that isolationism does not work. This policy only allows those who would conquer us to prepare for the battle without hindrance and when we do take note, our only course of action is to make wild preparations for our defense, hoping all the time that the ring of steel about us will not tighten until we are fully prepared.

Yes, history shows us no system, other than federal union, by which men can live for long periods of time and yet remain vital and strong enough to build civilizations whose progress and culture can stand up to any that the other systems have produced.

What better proofs do we need than that set forth by our own country and by Switzerland, a tiny nation of three languages which just the other day celebrated its 650th anniversary as a democratic nation? These are but two outstanding nations that have been built upon the federal union system and have worked and given their people the God-given rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

There were those in 1776 and I suppose in 1291 who said it could not be done, it just wouldn't work. But it did and we are of those who did it and said it could be done.

So let us not shirk our duty, but with our lives, our wealth and our honor let us pledge ourselves to the building of a free and democratic United States of the World with "Union Now" of the English-speaking democracies serving as its nucleus.

Against Dogs

I would like to say a word in defense of Raymond Newman, who wrote to your column protesting about the antics of dogs and their fond, if ill advised, owners. Before the dog lovers tear him to pieces I would like to go on record as agreeing with everything he said about people who treat dogs as humans, but who wouldn't give a starving human a crust of bread.

Of all the misguided creatures that roam the earth, the dog is the noisiest of all. He is a fit companion for those who have the radio blasting all day, who always blow their horns instead of getting out of their cars and going in, and who in other ways do their best to make the world about as noisy as they possibly can.

More power to you, Newman. A lot of us are fed up with the asinine shoutings of the dog lovers and the senseless yapping of their pets.

Too Busy

It's hard luck for the war guys in Peru and Ecuador. They chose the wrong time to reopen their border dispute. Everybody is too busy with other wars. Roosevelt worked hard lately taking Iceland. He didn't have time to flip a coin to see who the aggressor is in South America and who is entitled to lend and lease material.

Any other time we might have sold armaments on the sly to one party and openly given them to the other. The other countries might have been encouraged to pick sides for a free-for-all. We might have been induced to give one side enough of our destroyers and airplanes so that they could blockade the whole continent in order to starve out a belligerent and a few neutrals.

South America will have to wait till we find out if Ecuador is an outpost of the Eastern Hemisphere or whether it is in our orbit. The way New Dealers string around with hemisphere lines would confuse anyone.

JOHN C. OTTEMAN.
Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 6.

For Dogs

Mr. Raymond Newman's letter to The Post, August 7, regarding the annoying experiences he has had with dogs in his neighborhood, has caused him to have very little use for them. Just as among humans there are good dogs and bad dogs.

But dogs in general are the most faithful and affectionate animals in existence. As the late and beloved Mr. Charles Edward Russell once remarked: "Dogs do not break treaties." I think it was Lord Byron who said that the more he knew of men, the more respect he had for dogs. It is remarkable that dogs can still exhibit such marvelous faithfulness and love after having been associated with men for so long!

The several ghastly outrages committed upon young women about our beautiful city would not have been committed had a good police dog been in attendance upon the girls. I read of a man who had a terrifying experience in his small sailboat at sea in a storm. He was finally rescued, and he had shared his last small can of food with his Airedale, whose red eyes and drenched body showed what he had been through. Dogs stick by their masters as long as there is any dog left! When you have a friend as faithful as a dog, you better hang on to him.

H. B. BRADFORD.
Bethesda, Md., Aug. 8.

Foreign Policy

I have just been rereading the testimony which was given to the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives during the recent lend-lease bill discussion in Congress. I quote the following highly enlightening testimony:

Mr. Tinkham: "Do I understand that if Russia is attacked the United States will extend the same help that it will to England?"

Secretary Hull: "That is so theoretical I think it would not help to discuss it."

Evidently it is not as "theoretical" now as the Secretary of State was led to believe.

Perhaps it goes further to prove that no one, not even the Secretary of State, knows what the foreign policy of this Nation really is. Our international policy is made up of the whims and caprices of the mind of one man, and the Cabinet is left in the dark on matters of vital policy. We struggle to save the world from the very evil which envelops us, a totalitarian state.

The Post Impressionist

Swastika

The claim made by Adolf Hitler and the Nazi Party that their emblem, the swastika, is a "pure Aryan" symbol; that it originated in ancient Rome among the Aryans, and that it is a special characteristic of the Aryan people as a whole is just about as fanciful as many of their other claims.

From earliest boyhood we can recall our father wearing a swastika in his coat lapel and when we asked him its meaning he told us it was a good luck charm.

When we recently read the claim of the Nazis we again became curious as to the meaning of the symbol and where it originated.

We gleaned but little information from the latest Funk and Wagnalls Standard Dictionary which simply defines the swastika as "a symbol that is thought to have represented a flame or sacred fire, the sun in its daily rotation, or a flash of lightning and signified 'benediction,' 'health' or 'good omen.'"

After carefully searching the works of ancient historians we are of the opinion that the time, place and origin of the swastika are, like that of many other widespread symbols, lost in the mists of time, although it seems to have been about the earliest design for ornament in all primitive races of men.

We find it appears among India's first civilized remains as early as 2500 B. C. It existed in India before the arrival of the Aryans who gave it the sanskrit name, swastika, which means "object of well being."

Some scientists who were interested in its origin found that it appeared among the most ancient prehistoric races, but to mark with any degree of certainty its route as it traveled from tribe to tribe, from people to people and from nation to nation down through the ages, would be utterly impossible.

It would seem that it came into being in every quarter of the globe in an age when lines of communication were very remote.

In the fifteenth century we learned that the figure extended westward across Persia to the city of Old Troy in Asia Minor. A few centuries later it spread from south central Europe over the entire continent as far north as Scandinavia and as far west as Iceland.

It also made its appearance during this age in Germany, Great Britain, northern Africa, Tibet, Japan and China. In the fifth century B. C. it appeared on Grecian coins and on various stones, pieces of pottery and tapestries throughout the Old World.

The Chinese seemed to attach more importance to the sign of the swastika than any other race. They certainly looked upon it as a sign of all that was great and noble. It was revered by them as an omen of good fortune, prolonged life, immortality and heaven. The Chinese Empress Wu (704 A. D.) issued a decree that the swastika be placed in the very heart of the sun which was at the time considered the highest honor that could be conferred.

A Buddhist priest of the Toy dynasty, in his writings, describes the original god Buddha as having the swastika mark on his breast, and another writer of the same dynasty records a practice among the people of Loh-Yang of endeavoring, on the seventh day of the seventh month of each year to obtain spiders to weave the swastika on their web.

In its wanderings over the face of the earth, the swastika must have visited the Emerald Isle in later years, as Dr. Munro in his "Lake Dwellings of Europe" portrays a carved piece of wood from Lochlee, in Ireland, with the sign of the swastika on its back. He also records that it was found on rock carvings in Sweden.

In America before the arrival of Columbus it was in common use by the Indians and is thought to have indicated the four cardinal points of the compass and was used to symbolize the rulers of the winds and rains. Some historians claim that as late as 1647 it was used by certain tribes of North American Indians in decorating their tepees.

So after a careful scrutiny through history's pages we are satisfied that "where the swastika was invented, by whom and for what purpose?" has been an unanswered question among archeologists, historians and learned men for many centuries and it will likely remain so unto eternity, although theories are still being advanced in an attempt to explain its origin, meaning and almost universal use.

A bit of irony entered into our search when we observed that most of Kipling's works bear the "Nazi emblem." We found it in many of his books, printed on the flyleaf in a circle over the author's signature.

Many writers refer to it as a "talisman," "charm," or "amulet," but to all intents and purposes it was intended as a mark of religion, as it has been found almost everywhere on religious works of art, on old Greek ecclesiastical vestments and even in the catacombs of old Rome.

What Is The Goal?

By Ernest K. Lindley

Defining Our Objectives

CONFLICTS over defense production continue without abatement. But it is mistakenly too simple to depict the struggle as between New Dealers and business men.

LINDLEY

There is a rough line of demarcation between those who put the defense front first and those who are slow to give up "business as usual." There are business men and New Dealers on both sides of it. But probably there is no one connected with the defense program who doesn't know that the next two or three months will seriously upset the normal economic life of the country.

Shut-downs of plants for lack of materials have already begun and will multiply within the next few weeks. By fall the consuming public will be feeling the pinch, not only in higher prices but in the absence of many small articles containing metals as well as in a reduced supply of automobiles, refrigerators and washing machines.

MUCH OF THE LABOR that is displaced cannot easily and quickly be transferred to other work. In Manitowoc, Wis., for example, stoppage of the flow of aluminum to kitchen utensils struck at the jobs of 4000 workers. A shipyard in the community is going to employ 2000 people in building submarines. But most of the workers in the aluminumware plants are women and people of middle or advanced age, who are not of much use in shipbuilding.

Leon Henderson, OPACS chief; Isidor Lubin and Lauchlin Currie, economic adviser to the President, and other New Deal economists, saw the pinch coming a year ahead of time. If their demands for expansion of production, especially of metals, had been heeded earlier, the stringency would be relieved a little sooner than is now possible.

But severe shortages could not have been prevented by any steps taken within the last year. Many business men now in OPM saw what was ahead but argued that it was wiser to squeeze civilian consumption a little smaller than to build new plants to meet what they regarded as a temporary peak in demand.

WHEN IT CAME to finished munitions, however, OPM business men went along agreeably with the Army preference for building new specially equipped plants rather than converting existing plants. But, it must be emphasized, this was decidedly an Army policy.

Here, again, New Dealers—notably Morris Llewellyn Cooke, took the lead—by urging subcontracting. Subcontracting has not been too energetically promoted by OPM. But it encountered reluctance, not only among large manufacturers, but in the Army, which prefers to fix responsibility for turning out the finished article on time with the larger producers in whom it has confidence.

Besides, when a new plant is put up especially to build tanks, or machine guns, let us say, the Army can have the use of it for years to come. When existing plants are converted to war uses they probably will be reconverted to civilian use after the war. This is important to Army ordnance officers who recall how productive facilities for implements of war vanished after World War I.

UNDER PRESSURE, the Army has swung around somewhat on subcontracting. But it is also under fire for not letting more contracts for new ordnance plants. The Army's answer is that, in many lines, the facilities now in use or under construction, are sufficient.

Sufficient for what? Sufficient to handle all requirements now in sight. The answer, from the advocates of an "all-out" effort, is that there can't be enough of anything until Hitler is beaten. Some defense production officials are thinking of a two-year war; others of a longer war, in which millions of American troops might be used. Some are thinking in terms of using 25 per cent of our total production for war purposes. This, with British Empire output, will put us well ahead of the Nazis, they say. Others are thinking of an eventual 50 per cent.

Nobody can know how long the war will last or what our ultimate role in it will be. But it would help if the President would tell all hands what the tentative goal should be.

The Nazis In Japan

By Charles N. Spinks

Fifth Column Plans

The author, an authority on the Far East, was until recently managing editor of Japan News-Week, American weekly published in Tokyo, and on the faculty of the Tokyo University of Commerce.

WHEREVER the Nazi Fifth Column has achieved success (in Rumania, Norway or France) there have been political malcontents, economic unrest and internal disunity. These are the factors the Fifth Column exploits to gain control of governments.

And so it is in Japan.

Japan had had at least four rightist revolutionary plots in the past decade. There was the May 15 affair of 1932, followed by the Kinki-jiken, or Brocade Flag Incident, in 1933, the details of which are buried in darkest secrecy, for it involved a plot of "young officers" of the Third Regiment at Roppongi, Tokyo, to overthrow the Emperor and place Prince Chichibu on the throne.

Then came the well-known February 26 military uprising of 1936, and the less well-known plot of July, 1940.

THE NAZIS have not failed to take advantage of these politico-military upheavals. Last summer the Nazi Fifth Column attempted direct, if somewhat premature, action.

For six months the moderate Yonai cabinet had consistently opposed the conclusion of a Japanese-German military alliance and the renovation of the Japanese political structure along totalitarian lines.

In May and June the Germans began to move. Gen. Ott, the German Ambassador, and other Nazi Fifth Columnists addressed crowds at public rallies, haranguing them on the benefits of political reformation after the German model. Behind the scenes contact men and go-betweens were working feverishly to encourage the totalitarian movement and the Axis alliance. Patriotic societies, largely financed by German funds, were in a frenzy of rage with the "obstructionist" tactics of the government. Supported by the German Ambassador, two former war ministers, Gen. Juichi Terauchi (who had officially represented the Japanese army before a Nazi convention at Nuremberg in September, 1939), and General Gen. Sugiyama, cajoled and threatened Prince Fumimaro Konoye until he agreed to head the reformist movement.

BUT STILL the determined Yonai cabinet blocked every move. It was then, in the first days of July, that direct action was attempted. A group of obscure political fanatics, instigated by army Fascist cliques working with the Nazi Fifth Column, attempted to assassinate the retractable members of the cabinet and practically the entire privy council.

Through the vigilance of the metropolitan police (not the Kempeitai), a score of armed "gorotsuki" were arrested, mostly hiding in the gardens of their would-be victims.

If this wholesale murder of leading moderate advisers to the throne had succeeded, it would have been the signal for a military coup d'etat and the establishment of a military dictatorship.

ALTHOUGH the plot misfired, the Yonai cabinet was sabotaged by Gen. Shunroku Hata, war minister, a stanch champion of the Nazi alliance and the new political structure, who resigned and refused to name a successor. Cabinets in Japan cannot exist without war and navy ministers from the active list. Premier Mitsumasa Yonai (a navy man) had no choice but to resign.

The cabinet of Prince Konoye which followed launched the totalitarian movement and concluded the alliance with Germany.

By July 16, 1941, just one year later, this cabinet had reached another of those periodic impasses. The totalitarian movement had bogged down, Japan has still failed to profit by the desperate union with Germany and now faces a new crisis over the Soviet-German war.

IN ORDER to get rid of Foreign Minister Matsuoka, who had negotiated conflicting agreements with Germany and Russia, the cabinet has resigned, the cards were reshuffled and Matsuoka is out, along with Toshio Shiratori, Gen. Ott's No. 1 stooge. It is too early to determine whether this is just a political move or whether this may be the first step to free Japan from German domination.

Regardless of the present cabinet change, the Japanese army and its Fascist supporters realize their desperate position. Unless the army can recoup its fortunes by a southern gamble or by a successful campaign in Siberia, they will lose face and political power.

The Germans are also desperate. American aid to Britain must be deflected by a Japanese-American war in the Pacific. Germany needs the Japanese fleet and the vital raw materials of Eastern Asia which Japan must secure for her. What the Japanese will get from this deal remains a mystery, but the militarists are prepared to plunge Japan into a disastrous war rather than relinquish the power they have seized.

IN MORE ways than one, the Germans are gambling against time, for thus far only a very few Japanese realize the danger the Fifth Column presents to Japan. In this connection, it must be borne in mind that not only the people at large, but also the majority of government officials, even in the home office, have no inkling that a Nazi Fifth Column functions in their country. This is due to the peculiar constitution of Japanese bureaucracy which is divided into watertight compartments wherein one group of officials has no idea what another is doing. Through the use of Japanese go-betweens and key officials, who naturally do not disclose their connections, the Nazis are able to influence internal policies without risk of exposure. Nevertheless, the Germans are well aware that trouble lies ahead if the Japanese people ever learn the full story.

There are many Japanese who have not yet been convinced that the Germans are their true friends. They cannot overlook the racial arrogance of the Teuton, the insulting references to Asiatics—including the Japanese—found in Hitler's "Mein Kampf" and other pan-"Aryan" German writings.

THE LATEST FORCES of anti-foreignism in Japan which the Nazis and Japanese militarists have stimulated and directed into an anti-British and more recently an anti-American hatred have acted as a safety valve for the Japanese peoples' sense of frustration from an unsuccessful war in China.

But there are few British and Americans left in Japan today. If conditions continue to deteriorate and if the position of Japan becomes more precarious (even barring war with the democracies), the Japanese people will turn against the only remaining foreign influence in Japan—Gen. Ott and his army of 3,000 Fifth Columnists.

Already there are straws in the wind. A few months ago the wife of a German Embassy official was severely beaten on a train by a Japanese fellow traveler. There have been other attacks on Germans and Italians.

A few sparks may touch off a conflagration. Over their beer, old-time German residents still recall how the Japanese at the time of the great earthquake in 1923 massacred hundreds of Koreans on the mistaken assumption that they were plotting an uprising amid the confusion of quake and fire.

The Morale Factor

By Barnet Nover

Germany And The Russian War

THE COMMUNIQUES issued by the German high command since the fighting in Russia began are far more revealing to the psychologist than to the military expert. They profess to be reports of what has actually taken place along the far-flung battle line. They can more accurately be described as tracts designed to influence public opinion in Germany and abroad.

NOVER

Undoubtedly they contain some measure, perhaps, even a considerable measure, of truth. But that truth is not the whole truth. And only the naive will assume that the communiques tell nothing but the truth. Their purpose, in fact, is not to give out information but to make propaganda; not to reveal but to convert. In very large measure they are political rather than military documents.

NOW THIS WAS not true in the past. It was not true of the communiques issued by the German high command during the Polish campaign or the Norwegian campaign or the campaign in the Low Countries and France and, most recently, in the Balkan campaign. In those days the German communiques managed to achieve a considerable measure of objectivity. In the present campaign this objectivity appears to have disappeared. It almost seems as though the high command, under compulsion to prove that all was going well, found it necessary to insist that the German army was doing even better than any one could legitimately have expected.

This may be the key to the reason why, from time to time, a dithyrambic note has crept into the communiques and claims have been made which if they were actually true could only mean that the Russian army and air force had no fight left in them. Yet the fight goes on and is now in its eighth week.

THERE IS mounting evidence that the attack on Russia was far from popular in Germany. The German people had breathed a great sigh of relief when the German-Russian pact was signed in August, 1939. At first they had been convinced that it would avert war, since without a Russian alliance to bolster the guarantee given Poland, Great Britain and France, they believed, would hastily make another Munich. When this hope died aborning, the Russian pact assured them (that was particularly true after the fall of Poland) that the Reich would not have to wage a war on two fronts.

The attack on Russia last June caught them by surprise. Having been asked, 22 months earlier, to reverse their attitude toward Russia and the Communist menace they were suddenly asked to reverse their attitude again. The adjustment was not easy. It was made more difficult by the circumstance that the victory which seemed so near in June, 1940, after the fall of France, was still out of sight, with Great Britain far stronger now than she had been a year earlier and the American factor weighing increasingly in the scales on the side of Germany's enemies.

HAD THE RUSSIAN war followed the regulation blitzkrieg pattern the fears which the outbreak of this struggle had aroused in Germany would have been kept within manageable limits, and speedily dissipated. No doubt that is why the communiques issued at the end of the first week of fighting gave such positive assurance that Russian resistance was nearing its end.

Since that fanfare of claims of outstanding successes six weeks have gone by. The Russians are still in the field. That undoubtedly has been a blow to German hopes and threatens a sharp decline not only in German morale but also in German military prestige, with all the dangerous consequences such a development is likely to have on the Third Reich's relations with the conquered countries, the uneasy neutrals of Europe, the nations of Latin America and even Germany's own allies.

No wonder, then, that the German high command or Hitler (he is believed to have personally undertaken the task of editing the communiques) has found it necessary to emphasize again and again the staggering losses suffered by the Russians.

IN CLAIMING that more than a million Russians have been taken prisoner, with two or three million Russians killed or wounded, with 10,000 Red planes destroyed and a vast number of tanks, trucks and pieces of artillery smashed or captured, Hitler has certain propagandist purposes in mind.

In the first place, these figures of Russian losses are designed to emphasize the magnitude of the struggle that has been raging on the Eastern front and, therefore, to excuse the German army's failure to repeat in Russia the speedy triumphs it has gained elsewhere.

Secondly, these claims of the heavy blows dealt to the enemy tend to keep alive the hope of an early victory. If we accept the German figures as valid we cannot help but assume that Russian resistance is about to ebb. And, in the third place, the German claims tend to keep alive as well the belief in German invincibility which has been one of Hitler's most powerful weapons, automatically creating a large fifth column for him in all countries faced with the choice of fighting or coming to terms with the Third Reich.

The communiques of the German high command, therefore, are Hitler's way of fighting the time element, which is no longer that effective ally it once was. But the longer the struggle in Russia lasts, the more certain it is that Hitler's propaganda by communique will backfire both at home and abroad.

In the meantime, the fact that the claims made by the German high command are undoubtedly exaggerated and have not always been borne out should not blind us to the circumstance that the German army has made progress in Russia, that it has become master of a vast stretch of territory and has inflicted grave losses on the enemy although at a very real cost to itself.

SUMMER SOCIAL NEWS

The T. Wethergill Funches arrived at the Chester Awk country estate yesterday for a week's stay, not being conscious of the row between Mr. and Mrs. Funch over their coming. The Funches managed to get together and force a fairly receptive smile just as the Funches drew up at the front door.

Mr. and Mrs. Simpson Grubb and their daughter, Eunice, are spending the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Z. Fothergill 3d. The Fothergills were unable to do anything about it in time.

J. Drew Whipley and wife, who intended to spend a week with the Dudley Boskoes at the Bosko seashore place, Who Next?, left abruptly on the third morning when Mrs. Whipley investigated and found those yells of "They're your friends, not mine," "Must we have people here all summer?" and "If you don't tell 'em I will" were NOT coming from the radio.

Col. and Mrs. H. Abington Zitt and their daughter, Persephone, ("Nutsy" to her friends) will arrive for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Duffel at the Duffel country home tomorrow, unless Mrs. Duffel finds some way to forestall it.

The Arthur D. Doggetts' guest house burned down last night, due to causes unknown. "All I know is that the darn thing is gone," said Mrs. Doggetts proudly today. Mrs. Doggett spent the morning singing and dancing with joy, it having seemed impossible, up to this moment, to find any excuse for not having the Whittemores around for the usual couple of weeks.

Loud voices, occasional screams and similar noises over at the Boffington cottage are accepted by neighbors as indicating that the Boffingtons are having their usual battle over the arrival of the C. D. Budkombes. "I don't care if he is your best customer," Mrs. Buffington keeps yelling.

Mr. and Mrs. Hastings K. Erpsey are agreeably relieved to know that Mr. and Mrs. Philip G. Puddicomb who were to arrive tomorrow for an extended visit at the Erpsey place, Musty Manor, will be unable to make it. It was a close call, however.

Maj. Lucius L. Waddingham 3d called in the help last week and put everybody to work with picks and hatchets tearing down the spare bedroom. "It was the only way," he declared, "July being what it was and with all those people coming up in August."

Senate Opposition

By Mark Sullivan

The Meaning Of The Draft Debate

CONGRESS THIS WEEK will complete action on the question of extending the service of draftees. The Senate last week voted to extend the term 1¼ years—2½ years in all. The Senate vote was 45 in favor, 30 against.

SULLIVAN

Just what did this Senate vote mean? Herr Hitler would be vastly mistaken if he supposed that two-fifths of the United States Senate lack either the wish or the will to resist Hitlerism and make the resistance effective.

Opposition in Congress to extending the draft period expresses a wide gamut of attitudes. Some of it is a kind of parliamentary protest. But it is not protest against building up an effective army, and doing it quickly. It is not a protest against the Administration's foreign policy as a whole. In the case of many an opposition Congressman, if he felt that his one vote would result in postponing the Army's effectiveness, he would not vote that way. He feels free to vote opposition, just because he knows opposition will not prevail.

THIS SORT of thing happens often, about every sort of question, in every parliamentary body. And often the men who vote this way include some of the best intelligences in the body. They think it wise there should always be an opposition group, and that the morale of the group be maintained by taking the opposition position, when doing so will work no harm to good purposes.

Often what is called an opposition vote is actually, and merely, a vote of criticism. Sometimes, in our Congress, it is a serving notice on the President that his policies are subject to scrutiny, that he must not feel he has such a mandate as might tempt to recklessness.

Some of the opposition to the draft extension, which Mr. Roosevelt asked, was not opposition to that measure merely. It was symbolic. It symbolized criticism of the President's course generally, including especially his course about domestic matters. Concretely, this opposition expressed in part a deep feeling, practically universal in Congress, that some about Mr. Roosevelt would use the emergency of war as a blind to bring about a change in our form of society and government, including a great increase of power in the executive, to the detriment of the power of the representative body.

It was the same with the lease-lend bill. Some of the opposition to that was not opposition to more help for Britain; it was opposition to more power for the President—and apprehension lest this power might be used not merely for the emergency of war, but be entrenched and made permanent.

ABOUT AMERICA and the war, Congress knows what the country knows. It knows that America and the war are—I choose my words carefully—coming closer to each other. I use this form of words precisely to avoid a form that is often used. It is often phrased that "America is moving closer to war"; or, "the President is taking America closer to war."

But it is more accurate to say that war is coming closer to America and its vital interests. It made a new jump of some thousand miles last week when Japan moved into Indo-China. It made a long jump in June, when Hitler attacked Russia—because, if Hitler crushes Russia utterly, he would be in Vladivostok and elsewhere in eastern Siberia only a few miles from Alaska.

This has been going on since the war began. When Hitler crushed France, his approach toward America in miles was not much, but in essential meaning very great. We recognized it instantly. It was in the very month of Hitler's conquest of France that we set about our enormous increase of naval and military armament, and Congress began consideration of the draft.

War made another long leap toward us when France put her dependencies at the disposal of the Axis. Just as France put Syria at the disposal of Germany, and let Japan have Indo-China, so might she let Germany make use of Martinique, which is within a few hours by air from the Panama Canal and our continental soil.

ALL this is war coming closer to the United States. It is not the United States going closer to war.

We know, too, that we must not wait until war makes the final leap upon us. We know that our defense must be not merely static. We know that if our defense is to be effective, it must at some point become offense—or, let us put it this way, prevention of offense by the Axis. It was in this spirit that we occupied Iceland: we occupied it to prevent Germany from occupying it first. We may need to make other such steps in the Atlantic. And in the Pacific, the time may be close ahead when we need to make a move, lest Japan move first.

In the steps the war makes necessary, Mr. Roosevelt and the country would be greatly served if he would bring about a greater spirit of trust between himself and Congress.

Sidelights of the War

Gulf of Siam Strategic Point Of Opposing Asiatic Interests

The reported presence in the Gulf of Siam of a British naval squadron, led by the plane-carrying battle veteran, H. M. S. Warspite, opens up a new potential area of operations in the troubled waters of the south China Sea.

"A broad arm of the China Sea, cutting deeply into the Indo-China peninsula of southeast Asia, the Gulf of Siam is the center of conflicting Asiatic interests," points out a bulletin from the National Geographic Society. "There three empires meet, the British in the Malay States, on the southeast, facing the Japanese, and French in French Indo-China, on the northeast. On the northwest and western shores of the gulf, between the two now reportedly armed camps, lies the Asiatic constitutional monarchy of Thailand. Its official name, changed from Siam in 1939, means 'land of free people.'

"Considered strategically, the countries bordering and near the Gulf of Siam present a number of significant geographic aspects. For a country of about 225,000 square miles (an area little larger than that of France) central Thailand has an extraordinarily long border to defend. This is due to its extremely irregular boundary lines, including the long, slim 'stem' of territory extending more than halfway down the gangling Malay Peninsula.

"On the east, Thailand's common frontier with French Indo-China winds northward for roughly 1150 miles, while on the west, British-dominated Burma shares with Thailand a jagged line of some 800 miles. South of the Thai stem, British Malaya adds still another irregular border more than 250 miles long in actual extent, although by airline distance it is only about half that figure.

"At various points along both sides of the twisting frontiers that reach water's edge at the Gulf of Siam, troops of the involved nations have been placed on guard, according to recent news dispatches. In some cases they are stated to be supported by extensive lines of air-fighter stations.

"The Gulf of Siam itself offers a wide field for any naval or air action that might develop in this part of the world. Some 500 miles long, it is about 200 miles across at the entrance, and at least that wide until it begins to approach the head-waters which narrow into the small inner bay leading to the exotic Thai capital of Bangkok. The waters of the gulf are, however, relatively shallow, estimated at no more than 300 feet at the most.

"French Indo-China and Thailand occupy most of the gulf's coastline, as it makes its sweeping horseshoe curve. The former nation accounts for about 400 miles of shore, the latter for 800 miles. It is only at the entrance waters that the Malay States come into the geographic picture.

"Burma has no outlet on the Gulf of Siam, although one point of the Burmese-Thai border is only 10 to 15 miles from the water. It is about 370 air miles, northwest across sea and land, from Bangkok to Rangoon, the Burmese capital and gateway to the famed Burma Road.

"Especially significant in the affairs of southeast Asia is Thailand's isthmus of Kra, a 30-mile stretch of territory separating the Bay of Bengal from the Gulf of Siam, just below the southernmost tip of Burma. For years men have discussed this isthmus as the site of a potential 'Panama Canal of the East.' Such a canal would be of tremendous commercial and strategic importance, especially to the Japanese, who are believed by some Far Eastern students already to have engaged in surveying the area. As a convenient short cut, it would also represent a powerful rival to Britain's military and trade center of Singapore, at the tip of the Malay Peninsula."

Memorial Is Held For Cobb Brothers At Wesley Church

Memorial services for Edward Cobb and Jasper Cobb, Negroes, who were shot and killed by Patrolman Donald R. Webber of the Thirteenth Precinct, were held yesterday at the John Wesley Church, Fourteenth and Corcoran Streets Northwest.

Eulogy of the Cobb brothers was made by the Rev. Frank W. Allstork, pastor of the Union Wesley Church.

A collection of approximately $200 was taken for the funeral, after which the funeral procession, joined by persons in the audience, was escorted by police down Fourteenth Street to the Highway Bridge. The bodies of the Cobb brothers were placed on a train in Alexandria, Va., for burial in Charlotte, N. C.

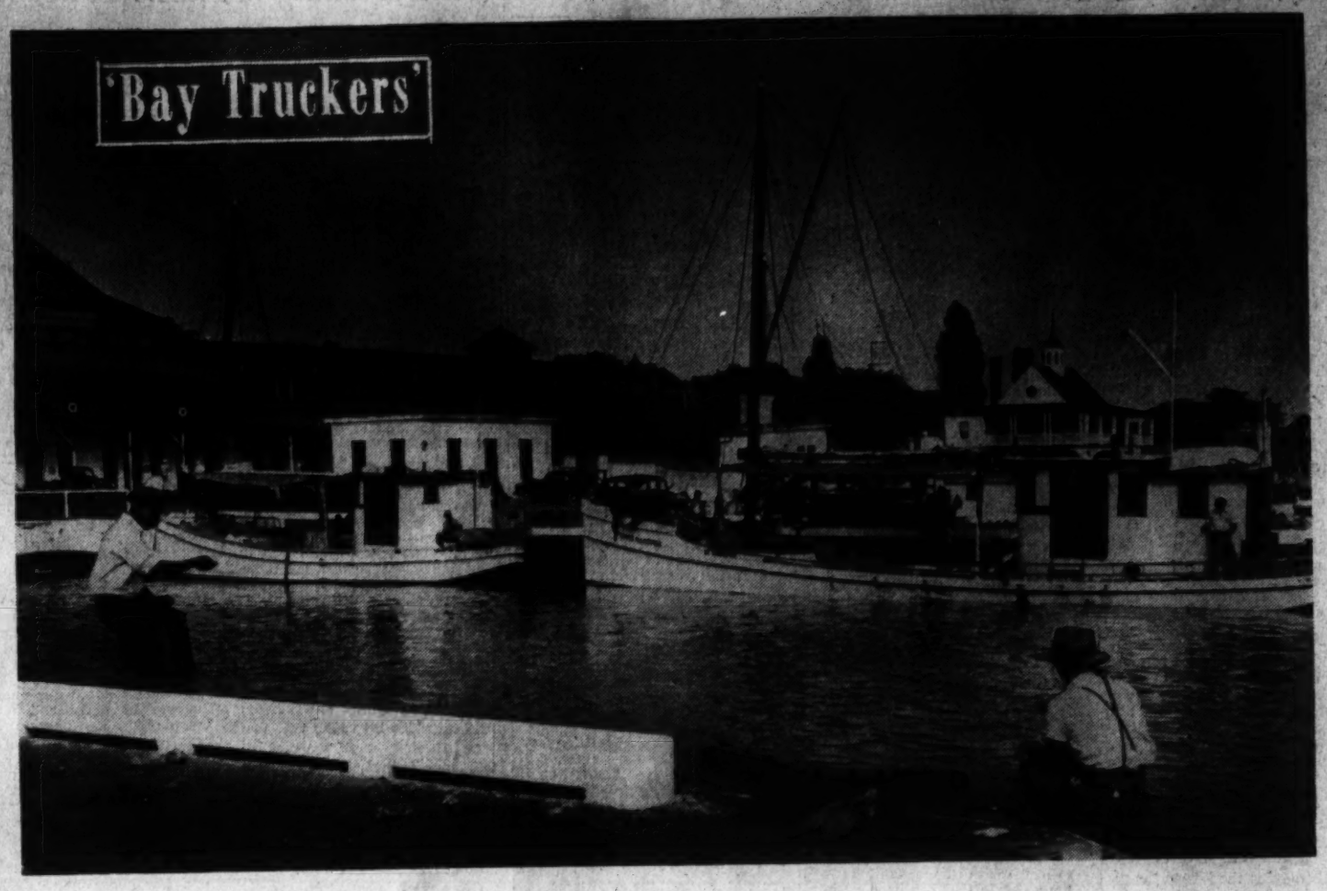
The Waterfront: A Phase of Washington's Seafood Industry



1. Deep in the water with their loads, the fishboats tie up at the Municipal Wharf, at the foot of Eleventh Street after trip from Crisfield, Md.

Fishboat Captains Are Keen Rivals

Better Berths and Prices Go to First Crews to Arrive

Chugging through the night, around Smith's Island, across the Chesapeake, then northward up the Potomac come the fishboats each Wednesday from Crisfield, Md., their sturdy motors bucking the river current and their tough masts creaking in the wind when the weather is right for their single sails. They are bound for Washington.

One by one, the Ruth, the Dewey, the Virginia Estelle, the Virgie Garrison, the Lester and a dozen others warp up to the Municipal Wharf, loaded with croakers (hardheads), Norfolk spot, butterfish, rock (also known as striped bass), clams and crabs.

Soon the sun-browned skippers of these Chesapeake Bay "truckers," their mates and cooks are dickering with customers from the decks of their floating fish markets. At first, most of the business is wholesale, with the crews often quickly selling half the cargo of 10,000 pounds or more. After this, individual sales are carried on until the load is disposed of.

At Crisfield, which is one of the largest seafood centers in the United States, the captains buy from the fishermen who bring their catches to the fishboats.

There is rivalry between the boats as the skippers try to bring their loads to markets first to get the better berths and prices.

Despite the keen competition, the captains are an easy-going lot who love to laugh. Most of them have followed the sea for upward of 25 years. They own their boats and their trim white houses in Crisfield.

Some day this colorful phase of Washington commerce may be replaced by the fast trucks that make the trip from Crisfield in five and six hours, as against the 15 or more for the boats.

But until they do, each Friday night, the fishboats will chug off down the Washington Channel and out across the bay, to return again the following week.

Fort Eustis Sends 600 Alone, Many Making First Trip To Washington

Nearly 600 new soldiers with the artillerymen's red piping on their overseas caps, up from the Coast Artillery Replacement Center at Fort Eustis, Va., and none more than five weeks in service, were learning yesterday that Uncle Sam isn't just a tough, bearded, old drill master.

The Army is a good host, in its weekend moods. It was glad to have more than 1,000 soldier guests at its Arlington Recreation Center this weekend, a number exceeding the camp's capacity. Something like a householder beset by too much company, the camp simply improvised another room. It slept a few in the recreation hall.

Lieut. Col. Walter Long, the camp commander, estimated that 90 per cent of the Fort Eustis contingent, here for the weekend with others from Fort Belvoir, Fort Monroe and Edgewood Arsenal, had never seen Washington before. The

The soldiers are shown Washington. On Sunday mornings trucks take others to Mount Vernon. Some go also to District churches.

Between Friday night, when they arrive, and Sunday afternoon, when they leave, the men do as they choose. They can go into the city without watching the clock. They can stay in camp the whole weekend, if they choose. There is a large recreation room to congregate in.

There is no golf course, but the authorities said yesterday that new equipment included golf sticks, and the men, if they choose, can borrow these and play on the public courses in the city. Otherwise, the camp provides badminton, horseshoe pitching, ping-pong and a machine gun that throws a beam at airplane shadow targets. THE MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS may not be able to make up their minds to attend the private previews of pictures in blocks of five, arranged for them by the producers under the "Consent Decree," or what pictures to buy after they have seen them—those who do—but no such reticence seems to mark their views as to the probable screen stars of tomorrow.

LARAINE DAY

We don't remember precisely when, but some time back there, we gave extended consideration to the Motion Picture Herald's poll of exhibitors and critics to determine the 10 most likely future stars from a list of 130 youthful screen players who have not as yet attained billing over the titles of the pictures in which they appear. The results of the balloting are announced in the August 9 issue of this foremost of the trade journals. The winners were arrived at by a consensus of the percentages voted by the circuit theater exhibitors, in one group, and the independent exhibitors, in another. Out of this canvass emerged the following top choices in the order of their ratings:

1. LARAINE DAY
2. RITA HAYWORTH
3. RUTH HUSSEY
4. ROBERT PRESTON
5. RONALD REAGAN
6. JOHN PAYNE
7. JEFFREY LYNN
8. ANN RUTHERFORD
9. DENNIS MORGAN
10. JACKIE COOPER

Seldom has such unanimity of appraisal been reflected as between circuits and independents as in this poll. The 1-2-3 selections were identical. Ronald Reagan and Robert Preston were Nos. 4 and 5 on the circuit list and exactly reversed on the independent; Ann Rutherford, No. 10 of the circuits, was No. 7 of the independents. Jackie Cooper didn't make the circuit first 10 and Stirling Hayden was omitted from the independents', but Jackie made the master list. And that's the way it went.

Whenever it was we stuck our chin out, a lot of the theater boys threw a punch at it. We agreed with them on only three of the winners—Rita Hayworth, Ruth Hussey and Robert Preston. Our other nominations were strung out among the also-rans, from William Holden, No. 13, to Philip Dorn, No. 43, with Dorothy Comingore out of the running entirely.

But the end is not yet. "Further analysis of the poll returns next week," says the Herald, "will set forth the regional preferences . . . Additionally, the judgment of the motion picture critics of the leading papers of the United States, referred to and compared with the vote of the showmen, will be presented." Long life to us 'til then!

Every Star His Own Rival

James "Jeeter Lester" Barton—not to be confused with Uncle John—who helped make theatrical history playing on Broadway in "Tobacco Road," is apt to be his own opposition on F Street shortly. Jim has his best screen role to date as Old Matt, in Harold Bell Wright's "Shepherd of the Hills," made into a Technicolor "special" by Paramount. It will follow "Charley's Aunt" on the screen at Loew's Palace. The week of August 21, Jim Barton will headline Gene Ford's new stage revue at the Capitol. So it could be Barton, in person, ag'in Barton, in Technicolor, and hard to figger out which will be purtier.

And that reminds me. Those with long and lasting memories are recalling that the Bobby Pine and Ruth Foster, playing the Capitol stage this week, are the same pair who appeared at the same house season after season as Bobby Pincus & Co., and were married there on their last visit. Congratulations, in case we missed it the first time around.

The Postman's Bell Tolls Once

"Dear Mr. Bell: Why there should be any discussion about who should play the role of Robert Jordan in Hemingway's 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' surprises me. It's Clark Gable. Can't you just see him and Maria together, loving madly, while the world they know dies about them in barbaric terror? To me and the girls in my office, it's Gable. He can do justice to Hemingway's virile hero. But let us know what you think, because we follow your movie reviews and comments each day. Very truly yours, (Signed) IRENE DUGAN."

All of the highstrung, Southern chivalry evidently having dried up in our Hoosier veins, we fear we shall have to pass up the ideal Rhett Butler as something less than that for the Robert Jordan role. After all, there is something more to the character of "Ingles" than that scene in the sleeping-bag! So we must confess, with deep personal recrimination, that we agree with Mr. Hemingway on Gary Cooper as first choice, eliminate Stirling Hayden as not yet up to the part and have either Jimmie Stewart or Henry Fonda in the back of the skull as a possible second choice. Sorry, but that's the way it is.

Voice-From-the-Back-of-the-Hall Note

Listen, Lamebrain, why not finish the book first?

Boys Will Be Boys, Even When They Are Deans!

CHARLES COBURN,
noted character actor, who is dean of the drama school at the University of California, at Los Angeles, during the temporary suspension of the Mohawk Drama Festival at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., might be hauled up before the trustees to explain, were he not merely tuning up for a scene in RKO-Radio's production of "Unexpected Uncle." The two cuties on Mr. Coburn's bicycle built for three are (left to right) Cynthia Westlake and Evelyn Atchison. Nice going, Prexy!

War Films From Russia At Trans-Lux

Sensational! That's what they are—the first films of the Russian-German war, as shown at the Trons-Lux Theater this week. As the British capture the last of the Vichy-French garrisons in Syria Secretary Hull, in Washington, warns the Japanese to tread softly. Singapore, that all-important port of the Far East, is shown ready for any crisis. In England, Churchill and Harry Hopkins look over the latest shipment of U. S. bombers. Other exceptionally interesting highlights of the news section include King George of Greece in South Africa, Batavia's war preparations, selectees already receiving their commissions as second lieutenants, beautiful shots of the Illinois Naval Training Station, the new tax notes, the silk stocking crisis and, for the ladies, the latest in hat fashions from New York.

The sport world is represented with the aquatic stars, training for their annual meet; the latest midget auto races, at Buffalo; the Hambletonian Stakes at Goshen, N. Y.; tarpon fishing, off St. Petersburg, Fla., and special shots of the baseball contenders in both leagues.

Variety of Short Subjects

"Stranger than Fiction" offers six items sufficiently unusual to hold your interest. Among them, dolls made from redwood bark and the fence of gun barrels which encircles the cabin once occupied by Ulysses S. Grant.

Aquaplaning and motor boat stunting are filmed in Florida waters.

Charles Laughton, Elsa Lanchester, Arch Oboler, Jerry Colonna and the "B-Bar-H Boys" are featured in the latest release of "Picture People."

The color cartoon, "The Cuckoo I. Q." is a hilarious burlesque of the radio quiz programs.

Director Locates His Old Room

Twenty-three years ago, Director Irving Cummings, then an actor, appeared with Adolphe Menjou, Bert Lytell, Elaine Hammerstein and Hobart Bosworth in "Rupert of Hentzau." Walking onto the Paramount lot for the first time since then, to start Technicolor tests for Zorina and his other leads in "Louisiana Purchase," he identified, en route to the sound stage, the dressing room which he had occupied in the old days. It is now given over to the fan mail department.

Warner Brothers Chalk Up Impressive Slate for 1941-42

The Warner Brothers production schedule for 1941-42 is one of the greatest in the company's history, according to an announcement from John J. Payette, general manager for the Washington zone. Among the properties in production, or slated for early shooting, are the following:

"Arsenic and Old Lace," adapted from the hilarious Broadway comedy by Joseph Kisselring. It will be directed by Frank Capra. "Navy Blues," with Ann Sheridan, Martha Raye, Jack Oakie, Jack Haley, Jack Carson and the Navy Blues Sextette. "They Died With Their Boots On," with Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Alan Hale and Gene Lockhart. It will be directed by Raoul Walsh. "One Foot in Heaven," with Fredric March and aMrtha Scott in the screen version of Hartzell Spence's book based on the life of his father, a Methodist minister.

"Kings Row," with Ann Sheridan, Ronald Reagan, Ida Lupino, Robert Cummings, Maria Ouspenskaya, Barbara O'Neil, Harry Davenport, Charles Coburn and Ernest Cossart, in Henry Bellamann's filmed best-seller. "Captain of the Clouds," an all-Technicolor picture based on the R. A. F. squadron in Canada. James Cagney will the cast, which also includes Dennis Morgan, Alan Hale, George Tobias and Clem Bevans. "The Man Who Came to Dinner," from the popular Kaufman-Hart Broadway show. Bette Davis, Monty Woolley, Ann Sheridan, Jimmy Durante, Reginald Gardiner, Richard Travis, Billie Burke, Grant Mitchell and Laura Hope Crews are among the headliners in the cast.

Whorf's Screen Debut

"New Orleans Blues," which brings Richard Whorf to the screen, together with Priscilla Lane, Betty Field, Elia Kazan, Jack Carson, Lloyd Nolan and Billy Halop. "International Squadron," screen story of the International Brigade of the R. A. F., with Ronald Reagan, James Stephenson, Olympe Bradna, William Lundigan and Joan Perry. This was Stephenson's last picture before his death terminated what was predicted to be one of the great acting careers. "The Prime Minister," starring John Gielgud, as Benjamin Disraeli, and Diana Wynyard. It was made at The Warner British studios at Teddington, near London.

"The Male Animal," from the play by James Thurber and Frank Nugent. Henry Fonda, Joan Leslie, Priscilla Lane, Jack Carson, Alan Hale and Hattie McDaniel will be in the cast. "The Gay Sister," a starring vehicle for Bette Davis. In the supporting cast will be Geraldine Fitzgerald, Richard Whorf, George Brent and Donald Crisp. "Yankee Doodle Dandy" will bring to the screen the life-story of George M. Cohan, with James Cagney in the title role. "Montana," another Technicolor production, will star Errol Flynn.

And Still They Come

Other properties acquired for production in 1941-42 include: "Old Acquaintance," by John Van Druten; "Up at the Villa," by Somerset Maugham; "The Damned Don't Cry," by Harry Hervey; "George Washington Slept Here," by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, with Jack Benny starred; "A Night at Tony Pastor's," "The Man They Couldn't Kill," starring Edward G. Robinson; "In this Our Life," by Ellen Glasgow; "Mississip Belle," "Rhapsody in Blue," the life story of George Gershwin; "The Corn Is Green," by Emlyn Williams; "Night Freight," "Saratoga Trunk," by Edna Ferber; "Quietly My Captain Waits," by Evelyn Eaton; "Here Comes the Girls," a musical comedy to be produced on the scale of "Forty-second Street;" "Captain Horatio Hornblower," C. S. Forster romance in which Errol Flynn will star; "The Jook Girl," "You're in the Army Now," "The Life of James J. Corbett," which will star Errol Flynn, as "Gentleman Jim."

"The Adventures of Mark Twain" will be produced by Jesse L. Lasky, producer of "Sergeant York," currently at the Earle Theater, and will also be on the Warner Brothers' line-up for the new season.

'Mail Train's' First Stop In Suburb

By Richard L. Coe

"MAIL TRAIN," Twentieth Century-Fox Ltd. picturization of a screen play by Frank Launder, adapted by J. B. Orton and Val Guest, with Gordon Harker, Alastair Sim, Phyllis Calvert, Edward Chapman, Charles Oliver, Raymond Huntley, Percy Walsh, David Horne, Peter Gawthorne, Wally Patch, Betty Jardine, O. B. Clarence and John Salew. Directed by Edward Black. Reviewed Sunday afternoon. At the Hiser Theater, Bethesda.

Inevitably, a British-made mystery yarn attempting to be a sequel of the phenomenal "Night Train" has arrived. Titled "Mail Train," it opened a three-day run yesterday at the Hiser Theater in Bethesda. Though it runs at night, "Mail Train" is no "Night Train;" it is an amiable, meandering tale of two Scotland Yarders, played by a duo enormously popular on the English radio, Gordon Harker and Alastair Sim.

In the spirit of any contemporary British film, "Mail Train" is very much concerned with war and the spies and counter-spies who make unfriendly relations such fascinating cinema fare. An elusive fifth column and a peripatetic radio station are part of "Mail Train," but not enough of a part. There are several excellent sequences—one in a dentist's office, featuring murder and a stray female; another depicting a novel method of obtaining a job as master in a boys' school, but again, not enough.

Based on British Series

Originally "Mail Train" was titled "Inspector Hornleigh Goes To It," part of a purely British series which gained wide favor in the islands on their own merit and on the popularity of their radio figures. Because of its primary British appeal, the film should have been drastically edited for its American release. The first 25 minutes is practical waste motion—furthering an obvious departmental dispute of Scotland Yard. When once the actual mystery gets under way, the pace is erratic, going at fits and starts, with time out to make fun of dull-witted detectives, who apparently thrive on both sides of the Atlantic. Altogether, the film would have been twice as interesting in half as much footage.

Messrs. Harker and Sim emphasize comic notions which Hollywood made popular and discarded to "B" films long since. Their wit is hardly what one would call lively.

Contains Germ of Ace Play

As for the central portion of "Mail Train," there is a potentially consuming tale of spys and the intricate nets they weave for effective operation. An accomplice who has tired of his game seeks to quit. A public school headmaster is a brain of the organization. A postoffice on wheels smacks so beguilingly of mystery that there is a title sheet exonerating all employes of General Postoffice of such practices, clamiing the situation was conceived merely for drama and has no basis in fact.

A watered martini with a flannel olive, then, to the scripters, director and film editor for having permitted so many irrelevances to bog down what might have been, if not another "Night Train," at least a suspenseful spy film.

Celluloid Bands Across Border

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 10. Hollywood's been so busy doing this and that, it's paid no heed to what's been going on across the border. I find out that F. P. B. Cudia, who's produced pictures in both Italy and England, has built a complete air-conditioned and sound-proof studio in Phoenix, Ariz. Company is known as Phoenix Productions. They already have arranged for New York finances, and releases for 12 pictures, the first to be called "Let Freedom Ring." They're now in Hollywood signing stars.

Damon Runyon puts in at RKO in October to do an original story and perhaps produce it. And as soon as Leo McCarey's contract is settled with Howard Hughes, Leo will sign with Paramount. And speaking of Hughes, he does business in the strangest way. He's had Frank Morse, a very good writer, under contract two years.

Frank's turned out two complete scripts, and mighty good they are, too. In fact, Hughes raves about 'em. But when Morse suggested that he could sell the scripts to another studio, he said, "Nothing doing. They belong to me." But I don't believe he knows that he's doing Morse an injury by keeping his name off the screen so long . . . And speaking of writers, now that Joe Cotten is assisting Orson Welles on "Journey Into Fear," he'll get screen credit for it.

Warners would have you know that the "Navy Blues" Sextet is going to tour the country in the interests of the Navy. Here all the time I was simple-minded enough to think that they were going to benefit themselves—and Warners! . . . Another honey is that the "Swamp Water" set is so realistic Walter Huston is taking quinine daily to avoid malaria.

Jimmy Ellison, home from a vacation, has started a crusade against use of slacks amongst the female of the species. His suggested slogan is "Try your slacks on in front of a triple rear view mirror and then don't buy them!"

Monty Woolley has a new play cooking for next fall and won't return to "The Man Who Came to Dinner." He's fed up . . . Jan Kiepura goes to Puerto Rico for the opera season come autumn. He'll appear in "Fa Boheme," "Carmen" and "Manon."

Maxie Rosenbloom is tired of all this movie criticism. "One movie is just as good as another," says Maxie, "only some is lots better" . . . Ida Lupino and Louis Hayward, the old hermits, have holed in at Malibu and spend their nights out grunion fishing. Monkeys is the craziest peoples!

Ginger Rogers' outside deals with both Twentieth Century and Paramount call for a guarantee of $150,000 per picture and 10 per cent of all profit . . . Red Skelton made such a hit in "Whistling in the Dark" that he'll get co-starring billing with Ann Sothern in "Du Barry Was a Lady."

When Dottie Lamour was just a twerp—I said twerp—in New Orleans, she had one dream after seeing Clara Bow in "The Fleet's In." And now the dream's materialized. Her next will be "The Fleet's In" . . . Bill Beaudine and Norm McLeod have given Marie Steadman her first motion picture part. Marie is the daughter of Vera Steadman, star of "silent" days, who suffered that dreadful accident two months ago.

—LOUELLA O. PARSONS—

Caviar for General!

Hollywood, Aug. 10 (INS).—I was particularly interested to hear that Judy Canova and Allan Jones are to be co-starred in "Private Yoo-Hoo," based on the now famous incident of Gen. Lear's disciplining his soldiers for yoo-hooing to some pretty girls on the golf course. Judy plays, of all things, a tightrope walker who hides away in an Army camp, and Allan, a singing soldier. Judy should be really funny in a part like this. Eddie Bracken, you may remember, was first mentioned for the Jones role.

MERLE OBERON

I was wondering if, by any chance, Y. Frank Freeman suggested Judy, for she was dining with us one night at Ella Campbell's when Mr. and Mrs. Freeman were there and they came over to our table to talk. Judy comes from "way down South" as the Freemens do, and there always seems to be a bond between Southerners whether they come from Georgia, Florida or Alabama.

Alexander Korda gets in tomorrow morning from New York but Merle Oberon remains in the East for some little time. She's busy doing British War Relief work and really doing a good job. Alex arranged a deal by telephone, interestingly enough, with Ernst Lubitsch to make "To Be Or Not To Be" for him. Ernst had signed a contract to make this picture for Walter Wanger, but because of a previous Twentieth Century-Fox commitment it was necessary to put the Lubitsch opus into production before Walter was ready. At that, it won't be made until October 15, when Edwin Justus Mayer completes the screenplay based on an original by Melchoir Lengyel and Lubitsch.

That baaad boy of the movies, Marc Lawrence (he's played so many meanies) is being paged by Eddie Cantor to come to New York for a top singing-dancing role in "Banjo Eyes." Most of us have forgotten that Marc came from musical comedies before the movies caught him for "heavy" roles. The only hitch in his accepting the Cantor offer is that Para has him in mind for the role of Anselmo in "For Whom the Bell Tolls" and he'd give up ten Broadway shows to get that part. Dame Mae Whitty also goes into a stage play, having signed with David Selznick to star with Geraldine Fitzgerald in "Lottie Dundas."

The Motion Picture Industry Paid Tribute on Senate Floor

Speaking in the Senate last week, Senator Connally, of Texas, paid an unusual tribute to the motion picture industry "for its commendable work in recognizing the humanitarian efforts of Americans whose accomplishments have not been accorded public recognition."

Senator Connally spoke particularly of motion pictures showing the work of Father Edward Flanagan and of "Blossoms In the Dust," which he described as a monument to the work of Edna Gladney and an inspiration to our people. Senator Connally's complete statement follows.

"I should like to call the attention of my colleagues to the commendable work being accomplished by the motion picture industry in recognizing the humanitarian efforts of Americans whose accomplishments have not been accorded public recognition. We are now mindful of the manner in which that kindly priest, Father Edward Flanagan, of Nebraska, single-handedly founded an empire of love for the young, unwanted boy. Father Flanagan's work, his courage, his great sacrifice were known but to few of our American millions, and it remained for the screen to tell this humane story to the world.

Senator Points With Pride

"Once again this medium acquaints our citizens with another personage whose heart and sense of duty have made contributions to our civilization. For nearly 30 years this simple, courageous woman has devoted her energies to those dear, little bits of humanity who come into the world unwanted.

"Out of her great love for children she established the Texas Children's Home and Aid Society, at Fort Worth, an institution which has made happier thousands of childless homes, and which has turned out thousands of fine, healthy, sterling citizens. It took much love, much courage, much hard work and much of every form of human devotion to accomplish the truly great work that has been the achievement of that gracious Texas lady, Edna Gladney.

"It is with pride that I call the Nation's attention to the commendable work of Edna Gladney and to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer motion picture, "Blossoms in the Dust," which will serve as a monument to her work and as an inspiration to our people."

Sets Record

Following the completion of his role with Dorothy Lamour in "Aloma of the South Seas," Jon Hall visited his orange grove in Florida and distinguished himself on a fishing trip by landing a record-breaking 34½-pound snook.

LEONARD LYONS, whose Broadway column appears regularly on this page, is on vacation until September 1. His pithy paragraphs will be resumed here on that date.

Parties Help to Relieve Midsummer Doldrums

George Platt Waller Is Honored at Dinner Given by Gen. Gullion; Other Affairs Are on Calendar for the Current Week

By Elizabeth Henney

IN SPITE OF MIDSUMMER SOCIAL DOLDRUMS and the weather, which makes Washingtonians feel as though they are walking showerbaths, parties do go on from time to time. Several highlighted the weekend and one or two are in prospect for the first part of the week.

Ranking event of Saturday was the dinner given by the Judge Advocate General of the Army, Maj. Gen. Allen W. Gullion, in honor of George Platt Waller, who was Charge d'Affaires and Consul of the United States to Luxembourg, from 1931 to 1941.

The party took place at the Army-Navy Country Club and ranking guests were the Under Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor. Also at the dinner were Mr. Waller's mother, Mrs. George Waller, and his sister, Miss Frances Waller, who came from Alabama to attend the reception given for Mr. Waller on Friday by the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. Le Gallais.

An unusual stag party, which was by way of being a surprise to the host, was the Cajigas party, also given Saturday evening. It was in honor of the Venezuelan Ambassador, Dr. Diogenes Escalante, who has just returned to this country after a several months' visit to his homeland.

Furniture Gift From the Ambassador

Not only was it the first stag party Dr. Tomas Cajigas has ever given, but it was arranged by Mrs. Cajigas without his knowing anything about it. Helping her in the arrangements was the Mexican Ambassador, Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera.

Ambassador Najera, by the way, has just presented to Dr. and Mrs. Cajigas a complete roomful of Mexican furniture for the recreation room of their new home. The furniture, of bright, red-painted wood, upholstered in peach leather and gaily painted, has something of a history.

Two rooms were sent by the Government of Mexico for the Mexican exhibit at the World's Fair in New York. When the fair was over, the Ambassador presented the "White Room" set to President and Mrs. Roosevelt and the "Red Room" set to Dr. and Mrs. Cajigas.

Among the 90 or more guests at the party were the Ecuadorean Ambassador, Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro; the Minister of Nicaragua, Dr. Leon DeBayle, and representatives from most of the Spanish speaking countries.

The Cajigases Entertain Again

Last evening the Cajigases entertained again at a help-yourself supper, when guests set to and helped cook and prepare the meal. Gayly hilarious, the company stayed on far into the evening, and among those noted were Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Horgan, Dr. and Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Shah, Dr. and Mrs. William P. Herbst and their daughter, Patricia; Julian Hoffman, jr., and many more.

Today Miss Anita Cajigas will have another housewarming party in the shape of a luncheon for some of her contemporaries. Guests will include Miss Louise McNutt, Miss Ann Dimond, Miss Patricia Grady, Miss Patricia Herbst, Miss Patricia Brewer, Miss Sybella Clayton, Miss Barbara Clayton and Miss Kathleen Wade.

Allens Entertain For Namesakes

Still another gay event on yesterday's program was the cocktail party and buffet supper given by Col. and Mrs. Henry T. Allen at their quarters in Fort Myer, Va. It was in honor of Col. and Mrs. Frank Allen, who are by the way, not related to them. Col. Frank Allen, who has been stationed in Washington for some time, has just recently received orders and will leave on Friday for his new duties at Fort Knox, Ky. On Saturday evening Col. and Mrs. Llewellyn Oliver also entertained for the Frank Allens, at a dinner party at the Army Navy Town Club.

At yesterday's Allen party guests included Col. and Mrs. William W. Gordon, Col. and Mrs. Oliver, Mrs. Joseph Tait and Miss Elizabeth Christian. Col. Henry Allen, who had just come here recently from Rochester, N. Y., is the son of the late Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen, of the Cavalry. It was while he was serving with his father in France during the first World War that he met Mrs. Allen, who still speaks with a lilting French accent. The former Mlle. Juliette du Souzy, she was living with her parents at their home, the Chateau de Gevrolles, near Montigny sur Aube, when she met the young Lieut. Allen, who was encamped with the A. E. F. forces nearby.

MISS ELEANOR JOSEPHINE MAGEE

Miss Hawkins Is Married

Mr. and Mrs. Lieu Dolphus Hawkins, of Washington and Birmingham, Ala., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Eleanor Hawkins, to Robert Coleman Morefield, of Birmingham. The wedding took place on Saturday in St. Mary's Church, Birmingham, and the couple will make their home in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins, who went to Birmingham for the ceremony, will return to their home on Taylor Street here this week.

Mrs. McEnerney And Miss Cushwa To Visit Canada

Mrs. Charles H. McEnerney and her sister, Miss Catherine Cushwa, and Mrs. Richard Carvel Leary, and her son, Richard Carvel, will leave Washington today for a Northern vacation.

They will visit the Gaspe Peninsula, Nova Scotia, and St. Andrews and St. Johns, in New Brunswick. They will return to Washington around Labor Day.

Henry F. Grady Rejoins His Wife In San Francisco

Henry F. Grady, former Assistant Secretary of State, who is now president of the President Lines, has rejoined Mrs. Grady in San Francisco, after a flying trip to Washington.

Two of the Gradys' sons, Henry and John, will reach San Francisco this morning and will be with their mother while Mr. Grady is on a mission to the Far East. He will leave by Pacific clipper on Tuesday. Mrs. Grady, who is convalescing from a serious illness, will return to Washington with her husband when he completes his mission in the fall.

Eleanor Magee Engaged to Wed Lieut. Nichols

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Charles Magee announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eleanor Josephine Magee, to Lieut. James Ross Nichols, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Nichols, of Washington.

Miss Magee is a graduate of Chevy Chase Junior College and attended Corcoran Art School. Lieut. Nichols attended Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., and George Washington University. He is at present with the 260th Coast Artillery in Fort Bliss, Tex.

The wedding will take place during the Christmas holidays in Fort Bliss, where the couple will make their home.

Admiral's Party Is Given Again

The Admiral's Party, annual social highlight of the summer season at Jamestown, R. I., was held yesterday at the Quarterdeck, the summer home of Mrs. John W. Wadleigh, daughter of the late Rear Admiral George Collier Remey, of the United States Navy, who was born 100 year ago yesterday.

Assisting Mrs. Wadleigh were the admiral's other daughter, Miss Angelice Gear Remey, and his sons, Charles Mason Remey, of Washington, and John Terry Remey and his wife, of New York.

Earlier in the day, a memorial service in honor of the late Admiral and Mrs. Remey was held at St. Matthew's Church in Jamestown, and two windows, which were dedicated to them last year, were banked with flowers. The Bishop of Rhode Island, the Right Rev. James DeWolf Perry, officiated at the services, assisted by the Rev. John W. Wright, vicar of the church.

For many years during the admiral's lifetime, these annual parties on his birthday were features in the social life of the naval summer colony in Jamestown and Newport, and his sons and daughters carry on the tradition.

Rear Admiral Remey died in 1928, when he was the oldest living graduate of the United States Naval Academy. He served his country in four wars—the Civil War, the War with Spain, and he was commander in chief of the United States naval forces in the Far East during the Boxer Rebellion in China and the insurrection in the Philippines.

Jane Eaton To Be Married

Lieut. Comdr. William Guy Eaton, U. S. N., and Mrs. Eaton, of Honolulu, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jane Elizabeth Eaton, to Ensign David Henshaw Pope, U. S. N., son of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Pope, of this city.

Miss Eaton attended the University of Hawaii. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Guy A. Eaton, of Duluth, Minn., and the late Capt. Guy A. Eaton, U. S. N. R.

Ensign Pope was born in the District. He was graduated from Western High School, attended Bullis Preparatory School and was graduated from the United States Naval Academy, class of 1939. He is a brother of Capt. Phillip H. Pope, United States Army, and Mrs. Richard T. Kreuzburg, of Silver Spring, Md.

The wedding will take place in San Francisco on August 23.

Commander Hill And Wife to Live In Philadelphia

Commander K. I. Hill and Mrs. Hill, who have recently returned from a tour of duty in the Philippine Islands, will make their home in Philadelphia, where Commander Hill will be on station.

They stopped off here for several days to visit Mrs. Hill's son-in-law and daughter, Lieut. and Mrs. Paul Lyon.

When Commander Hill left for Philadelphia, Mrs. Hill went on to South Carolina to visit relatives but flew back to Washington to meet her son, Lieut. Barron Chandler. She will join her husband in Philadelphia in a few days.

Lawrence Laings Will Live in Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Edward Laing, who have just returned from their honeymoon through New England, will make their home in East Falls Church, Va.

The former Miss Grace Lockhart Rohr, daughter of Mrs. L. L. Rohr, of Gordonsville, Va., and Mr. Laing, son of Mrs. Mary R. Laing, of West Falls Church, were married on July 25 at 6 o'clock, at Charlottesville, Va. The Rev. Thomas Ryan officiated in the presence of the immediate members of the families and a few friends.

The bride wore a street-length dress of gray blue crepe with Navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses and baby's breath. Titus B. Snoddy, jr., of East Falls Church, was best man and the bride was unattended. Mrs. Laing, a graduate of Madison College, Harrisonburg, Va., is a member of the faculty of the Henry Clay School in Arlington. Mr. Laing was graduated from National Law University.

Mr. Knudsen in New York

Comdr. Gibson, Wife Leave For N. C. Resort

Lieut. Comdr. Edward B. Gibson and Mrs. Gibson left Washington early yesterday for a vacation at Wrightsville Beach, N. C., where they have taken a cottage for two weeks.

Lieut. Comdr. Gibson, who has long made his home in Washington, was recently recalled to active duty with the Navy, where he serves in the intelligence section.

While in the Carolinas the Gibsons will visit Commander Gibson's brother, Col. Richmond T. Gibson, who is in command of the 119th Regiment of Coast Artillery at Camp Holy Ridge.

They also hope to get down to South Carolina for a stay with Mrs. Gibson's brother, Col. C. D. Pierce and Mrs. Pierce. Col. Pierce is in command of Fort Moultrie.

Miss Cherner Becomes Bride

At a garden wedding yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Miss Teddy Luise Cherner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cherner became the bride of Alfred M. Reines, son of Mrs. Rebecca Reines and the late Samuel Reines, of Washington. The Rev. Harry Silverstone officiated at the 5 o'clock ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in ivory poult de soie fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and long sleeves, and her veil fell from a cap of shirred tulle to the edge of the train of the gown. She carried a white prayer book to which were pinned white orchids.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Monte Rosenheim, who wore a gown of yellow taffeta with long sleeves and a bouffant skirt. Her hat of mulberry velvet was veiled in matching tulle, and she carried a sheaf of gladioli which matched her hat.

Sister of Bride Is Maid of Honor

Miss Nadine Cherner, sister of the bride was the maid of honor, and was costumed to match the matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Muriel Gerber; Mrs. Berman Swartz, and Miss Francis Kressin. They were gowned like the maid of honor in chartreuse shade.

Stanley Reines, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man and the ushers were Leonard Viner, David Legum, Berman Swartz, and Monte Rosenheim.

There was a reception immediately following the ceremony. The mother of the bride was gowned in turquoise chiffon and lace, with matching accessories and the bridegroom's mother wore gray lace with matching accessories.

Couple Will Live On Woodley Road

When the couple left for their wedding tour, the bride was wearing a gown of moss green shantung with a straw hat of the same color, and brown accessories. After an extended motor tour including a stay at Lake George, they will cruise on Lake Champlain, visit New England and will be at home at 2800 Woodley Road, after November 1.

Mrs. Reines attended Ohio State University and the King-Smith Studio School and Mr. Reines attended Maryland University.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Harold B. Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Levenson, of Providence, R. I.; Miss Frances Kinberg, of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Glickman, of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Stiegel, of Lockhaven, Pa.; Mrs. R. Margalis, of Wilkes Barre, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Max Hertz, of Danville, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Max Bloom, of New Jersey and Mrs. Samuel Segel, of Gardner, Mass.

Legal Fraternity Holding Meeting

More than 100 members of Kappa Beta Pi, national legal fraternity for women, were at the Greenbrier, at White Sulphur Springs over the weekend with several prominent women lawyers from the Washington area in attendance. Mary Craig McGeachy of the British ministry of economic warfare in Washington, spoke as did Justice Wiley Rutledge of the United States Court of Appeals. Others here who made talks were Mrs. Elizabeth Reed, president of the organization and Miss Grace Brown Stiles, Assistant United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, both of Washington.

Included among those in attendance from Washington were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Boyer, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Avery, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Roeder, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gott, Mrs. D. Helena Reed, Mrs. E. R. Bryan, Mrs. T. J. Hurney, Mrs. Arline C. Rogers, Mrs. Dorothy C. Hanson, Mrs. H. R. Pierce, and the Misses Helen Goodner, Marion Poole, Beatrice Clephane, Katherine King, Helen Neuffer, Helen M. Toe-Length, Straight-Skirted Gowns Lead 'Formal' Field

What with rumors of ankle length and slit skirts for evening, the fall fashion picture in formal wear has been a little confused. However, as is pointed out in today's Fashion Forum on this page, women may rest assured no such radical changes are ahead. At right is shown the approved-toe-length evening gown for fall. It does not trail the floor and is easy and graceful to walk in. This model, in dull crepe and black satin, features the new hip drapery. Above is a slit skirt model which unsuccessfully attempted a comeback

Happily Wed for 17 Years, Wife Is Now Disturbed By Husband's Attention to Two Sisters in Whose Home He Lives, Since Taking Job in Another City

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband and I have been married for 17 years and we have two children, aged 13 and 6, respectively. He is good and kind and we have had a lovely life together. But a few months ago he was obliged to take a job in another city, where he lodges in the home of a young widow and her older sister, coming home to us for weekends. His landlady and her sister are both very likable girls and full of fun.

However, I spent a week in their home recently and was shocked by the familiar way they talked with my husband, and they were telling me how nice he had been to them,—taking one or the other of them out riding, for drinks, to shows, etc., although he doesn't like shows and hasn't been with me to one for years. We have to be very careful with our money in order to meet our bills.

Later I asked him about these women, and he said he meant no harm. Should I forgive him and forget? Am I being too strict in disapproving? Or is a married man supposed to have more leeway than his wife in social matters? Please give me your answer soon.

WORRIED.

Situation Calls For Remedial Action

DEAR WORRIED: The widow and her sister are being thoughtlessly selfish in encouraging your husband to forget the fact that he is a married man, with financial obligations at home that can only be met by counting pennies. I am sure he has "meant no harm" in playing along with them in their light-hearted pursuit of pleasure. And I suppose the very fact that he was always so happy at home with his family has caused him to feel the more lonely, and the more in need of their cheery companionship, now that he is obliged to spend most of his time away from you.

But the present arrangement is fraught with danger to the welfare of the family, for various reasons. Firstly, because it necessarily disturbs your peace of mind, a state of affairs which is bound to subtract from your enjoyment of each other's society, when he can be with you; and, also, to render you less fit to carry on, in his absence, as a really efficient mother and homemaker. Secondly, because he cannot squire dames without squandering some money, which he cannot afford to do; and because if he does, he will suffer some sense of guilt, which in turn will place him involuntarily on the defensive against your worried reaction; and, also, insidiously subtract from his workaday efficiency, thus jeopardizing his job security.

Thirdly, because fidelity of mind and heart, in marriage, are more the product of purposeful cultivation than of involuntary response to magnetic attraction, your husband cannot lapse, even briefly, into the practice of beauing other women about (and of showing them more consideration than he shows you), without planting some tendency toward marital disloyalty, some seeds of dissatisfaction with marriage, in his thoughts. (As someone—was it Kipling?—said of men, "The more they see of others, the less they settle to one.") And this, despite the fact that his marriage, if faithfully tended as the most important relationship in his life (which it is, of course) is bound to yield your husband larger, more lasting dividends of joy, contentment, prosperity and esteem than he could otherwise procure.

So, you see, one would not be treating the real problem presented if one were to stop with the question of whether to "forgive and forget" your husband's acceptance of these women's company, in previous weeks. The real question is how to break off that association before he becomes more deeply involved,—in the sense of becoming habitually dependent upon their association as a source of pleasure, or as an antidote to routine wearisome responsibility.

The ideal, instantaneous solution would consist in the family's getting together again permanently, under one roof—so that he would have the continuous companionship of wife and children, in his leisure hours. Can this be arranged? Could the family establish residence in the town where he works? You may own the house in which you live, and hence feel that you are irrevocably rooted there. But even if such is the case, I say it would be far better (1) to turn it over to tenants and (2) find another house for yourselves near his place of employment, than to nurse a piece of real estate, at the considerable risk of gradually losing your husband's interest and devotion. The longer he lives apart from you, the less vitally concerned will he be, in your affairs, and the more inclined to become involved in the affairs of a substitute play-time companion.

Thus, you can see this is no time for brooding. The situation calls for remedial action. If he cannot find employment near your home, you must make another home, adjacent to his work. And let him know why you are doing it—not in a spirit of jealous distrust, but simply in order to protect from possible injury that "lovely life you have always had together."

M. H.

Aid Posture While Doing Housework

By Ida Jean Kain

BEAUTY WRITERS frequently extoll the value of scientifically performed housework for streamlining measurements—and I should think you home makers would resent it! There they sit, typing away merrily and losing their figures by the day, and imaging that if they only did housework it would be all the exercise they need.

True, there is a right and a wrong way to do household tasks. The right way affords exercise of a sort and the wrong way is tiring and every smart home maker should take the trouble to learn the mechanically efficient working positions for those two reasons.

Saving in Energy

About all the streamlining you get out of housework can be credited to the cumulative effect of working in good posture. The more you practice good posture, the better your figure is. But the common, every-day jobs of doing the dishes three times a day, cooking, cleaning, etc., certainly do not help a woman's figure—and I challenge any beauty writer to prove they do.

The saving that can be effected in energy, however, is considerable. It takes less energy to sit down and do your work than it does to stand up and do it. Sit on a high stool when you wash and dry the dishes and iron and have a low, comfortable chair to in when you prepare the vegetables.

In the long run, it takes less energy to hold your back in a nice, straight line than to slump so try to keep your back straight as you go about your work. When you dust and pick up objects from the floor, hold your back straight and bend at the hips and knees. In that way you save your energy and keep your joints supple.

Exercise in Odd Jobs

I am all for making housework as easy as possible. Then you will have enough energy left over to do a few calisthenics that will ward off the middle-age spread. That's your only chance of escaping it.

The odd jobs that comprise housework afford plenty of exercise to the small muscles of the hands, forearms, feet and legs, and practically none for the powerful trunk muscles which control your figure. It is on these muscles that you should concentrate. The result would be not only a better figure and a naturally more erect posture, but a higher level of energy. Here are two good ones.

1. Lie on back on floor with left knee flexed and foot on floor near buttocks, right leg straight down on floor. Flex right knee to chest and push small of back down against floor. Extend and flex leg rhythmically, 20 times. Then perform with other leg.

Improve Your Letter Writing

Vacation time puts such a strain on your friendships when you don't know how to write letters!

Even old friends wince when you pen anything as crude as "Well, how are you? I been having a nice time." The new admirer simply fades!

Don't write catalogue style, either. Instead of reporting your every minute, pick an incident or two and write vividly about them: —and smelled those wieners we roasted!"

Taking the other person into your letter with lots of "you's" and not too many "I's"—telling him that despite the fun you miss him—that's the secret of winning an answer and a friend.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post, Home Institute, 100 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Questions & Answers

Fashion Forum

By Jane Driscoll

The Post's Fashion Editor

For Cruise Allure

WHAT to wear on a cruise is the subject of conversation around Washington—especially among those going on late summer vacations. This question, with specific reference to outfits appropriate aboard a Panama-bound fruit liner, was asked of the fashion editor.

Upon inquiry it was found that, with a few exceptions, you dress to take life easy aboard a fruit liner, as well as on most cruise trip boats. On board a small freighter, which carries about 12 passengers, you rough it in slacks all day long. You make friends with all the crew and the captain eats with you. (And incidentally, it is said the food is good!)

Your companions are a congenial lot. Many times they are employes of a banana plantation for which they are bound. You do not dress for dinner—it's just a family affair. You may even change to shorts as you get into tropical waters, as it gets very hot. Have a sweater or two to put on the first couple of days out, however. It may be cool.

On a larger fruit liner or cruise ship, you will add to your slack outfits two bathing suits, sport clothes and a couple of evening dresses. There is a little more activity on board as you have space enough to move about. However, you will find much of the entertainment has been taken off many of the larger boats. But on many they still dress for dinner.

In Panama, the wearing of all cotton is a native custom. Cottons are so easy to keep clean that they are worn for everything from sports outfits to dinner dresses. Take several cottons, one or two of which are dressy for afternoon. If you are visiting one of the Army posts, such as Corozal, be sure to include at least one evening dress. In outland army posts, where ceremony is preserved, formal dress rules the scene.

Shorter Evening Dresses?

The question of whether or not the shorter evening dress is here to stay has been asked of this fashion editor. In fact, strangely enough, most women seem to fear that there will be no more long dresses.

Well, they may rest assured that long dresses, a style so becoming to most women, will not be disappearing without some strange stroke of fate. True, the straighter skirted dresses do strike just above the shoe, but they would be unsightly trailing the ground! Instep length dresses, as well as the up-in-front and down-in back and fish tail monstrosities are considered extreme—and in most cases they are unwanted.

Hems Up or Down?

Are skirts going to be any shorter this fall? This is a pertinent question among many women. They also want to know what length they should wear their skirts this season.

Skirts will definitely be no shorter. If anything, where interest lies in slits, side drapery and fringe or slim fullness, skirts will be a trifle longer. Every woman should be her own judge as to lengths. If she is past middle age or has large and unshapely legs it is best to be on the conservative side. But if a woman is young and has attractive legs, she can afford to wear the length in vogue. College girls will be wearing their skirts from 17 to 18 inches from the floor.

There is a general rule to tie to: When skirts are flared and full they are worn shorter. When skirts are slim and the narrow silhouette is in vogue, they are worn longer. As one designer has said, "Skirts should be long enough to cover the subject but short enough to be interesting."

Society Needs 'Old Virtues,' Outdoor Gathering Told

The "cement" of character-building is the only element that can keep society's walls from crumbling, Samuel B. McIntosh said yesterday at one of several outdoor and other special summer religious services.

McIntosh, president of the Methodist Union of Washington and member of the District Bar, addressed community vespers at Washington Grove, Md., attended by many District and Maryland people.

He deplored the "disappearance of many old virtues," saying that it was regretable that many churchmen seem to have forgotten that they once strongly advocated disarmament after "the war to end war." All human virtues must be bound together in the plan of Jesus Christ, he said.

The Phi Gamma Kappa Men's Bible Class of Metropolitan Baptist Church took charge of the Y. M. C. A.-sponsored services in Lincoln Park, where the Rev. Bronwen Davies Clifford, of Philadelphia, was principal speaker. Mrs. Blanche Phillips was soprano soloist. Presiding was Fletcher Harper, president of the class.

The Washington Catholic Evidence Guild sponsored services during the afternoon and evening in Franklin Park and last night in Lincoln Park. There also were services in the Little Chapel at Fort Lincoln, Bladensburg Road and the District Line. Several church youth groups went to Braddocks Heights, Sugar Loaf Mountain and other spots for services in rustic settings.

Do you believe the President when he tells you that the Nazi machine is clanking more rapidly than ever toward world domination and that war is marching toward us with giant strides from east and west? Or do you believe Senator Wheeler and the few who think that Hitler bears us no malice?

Do you believe that the Chief of Staff of the United States Army knows what he is talking about? Or, do you believe that a few of your wilful colleagues know better?

Within a few weeks our newly organized Army will begin to melt away unless you act.

Unless you act, our Army will be hamstrung. We must not restrict its actions to this hemisphere. Do you think Joe Louis could win a fight if he were not allowed to cross the middle of the ring? Days wasted now will have to be paid for in years of protracted bloodshed and destruction.

Ann Hewitt Wed, Living in Desert

ANN COOPER HEWITT
Bride in the Desert

By International News Service

Reno, Aug. 10.—Ann Cooper Hewitt, 26, San Francisco heiress who was the center of a sensational $500,000 sterilization suit against her mother in 1936, was revealed today as married for the third time and living with her husband in a Nevada desert hideaway.

Her latest marital venture was confirmed by former Representative Charles L. Richards, who accompanied the heiress and the man identified as her husband, Jack Whitaker, middle-aged mining executive, on a weekend visit in Reno.

Richards said the couple was married 18 months ago—shortly after her rift with her second husband, Gene Bradstreet, former San Francisco bar steward.

"Everyone in southern Nevada knows them as Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker," the ex-Congressman said.

Whitaker, himself, refused to verify or deny Richards' statements. The heiress also avoided questions.

Richards said the couple has remodeled a large house at the 7000-foot elevation of Mount Brougher, near Tonopah, where they operate a fleet of high-powered cars to visit their mining property. There, on the sage-covered mountain side, Richards said, they are seeking privacy from the young woman's past.

She was first married to Ronald Gay, a former automobile mechanic. They were divorced a short time after their 1937 wedding. Her mother, Mrs. Maryon Burglere Denning Cooper Hewitt D'Erlanger McCarter, died in 1939.

D. C. Man Buys Estate

Leonardtown, Md., Aug. 10.—Herbert E. Ryerson, of Washington has recently purchased Mount Eagle, a 260-acre estate with an old house of Flemish style, having four chimneys and built of bond brick, in Charles County. Ryerson plans to restore and modernize the house.

Rutherford, Pa. Member Of House, Dies

Representative Albert G. Rutherford (Republican), of Pennsylvania, died of a heart attack yesterday at the George Washington Hospital after an illness of more than a month. He was the twelfth member of the Seventy-seventh Congress to die since the session convened in January.

Rep. Albert G. Rutherford

The 62-year-old legislator suffered an attack on July 1 and entered the hospital on July 27. Reported in serious condition last week, he was stricken again at about 9 o'clock yesterday morning, the attack proving fatal.

Born in Watford, Ontario, Canada, Representative Rutherford was educated at the Carbondale, Pa., high school and the University of Pennsylvania Law School. He was active in Democratic Party affairs in Scranton, Pa., where he practiced law for 14 years, and sought the Democratic nomination for the House of Representatives there. Later he moved to Honesdale, Pa., where he resided at the time of his death, and identified himself with the Republican Party.

Mr. Rutherford was first elected to Congress in 1936, defeating an incumbent Democrat in an election which saw overwhelming Republican defeats elsewhere. Representing the State's Fifteenth Congressional District, he was reelected in 1938 and 1940.

A critic of the New Deal, he supported Selective Service legislation, but opposed the lend-lease bill and numerous other measures advocated by the Administration. He served on the Military Affairs Committee and the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Representative Rutherford was a lieutenant colonel of the Second Pennsylvania Reserve Militia in 1918, and was a member of Masonic bodies, Odd Fellows, Elks, Knights of Malta and Knights of Pythias, and was a seventh degree Granger.

Remains, resting at the Tabler Funeral Home, will be sent to Honesdale today.

Funeral services are to be held at the Presbyterian Church in Honesdale at 2 p. m. Wednesday, and interment will be in the Glen Dyberry Cemetery there.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Jessica M. Rutherford; two sons, Ira B. and James Rutherford, and one grandson, Albert G. Rutherford 3d.

HAPPY DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN! Not since the gala days of 1929 has there been such a big summer in Washington niteries as in this fateful year of 1941. The world may be upside down, but the new tensity and drive of life are reflected in a demand for colorful relaxation. Every "class" night spot in the Capital is drawing crowds. It looks as though the lights of the Paris that once was, are to be lighted again in Washington—make it the gayest of world capitals.

Wedding Bells! Vincente de la Garza, singing guitarist, of the King Cole Room, will be married this morning to Miss Jeannette Montes at the Church of the Sacred Heart in Chevy Chase . . . Other good news from King Cole is that Eve Knight will sing at the afternoon cocktail hour as well as in the evening, beginning today.

SHOREHAM SCHEDULE. Nietza and Ravel, authentic Latin-American dancers, will open on the Shoreham Terrace on Monday, August 18 . . . Gautier's Steeplechase will continue through Thursday only, then give way to what is described as a "surprise special" . . . This is the eighth and last week for dancers Maurice and Cordoba who will entrain for swanky Lake Spafford, N. H., for the rest of the summer.

DURWARD PLUS GUENARIUS. Plymouth patrons, always music lovers, are entranced with the violin solos of Durward Bowersox, the spot's new star. Durward plays a $4,000 Guenarius with the finesse appropriate to such a rare instrument.

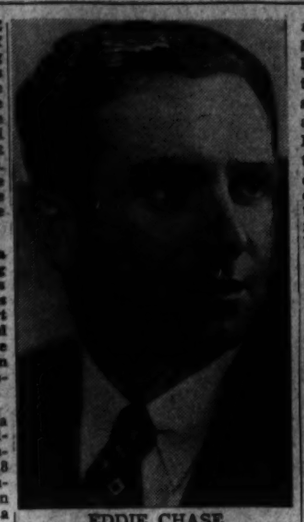
SONGS, FOR THE LOVE OF ALLAH! Maestro Pete Macias of the Lounge Riviera and Dick Koons of the Mayflower Lounge, were holding a wailing session the other eve about the scarcity of really topnotch new songs. They agreed that for the next few weeks, the best course would be to dig in their files for the best numbers of seasons past . . . The situation is only temporary, will ease as soon as the ace musical shows begin to open. Revues with music done by Bernard Duke and Rogers and Hart will probably open in Atlantic City in a couple of weeks, then move on to New York.

Patrons of Restaurant "823" seem to be the most classic-minded in town in the matter of music. The Heintze Brothers receive a flock of requests for Beethoven, Ravel and Debussy at every "823" dinner hour.

WE DONE 'EM WRONG. "Here I've been dieting all summer, eating one blinkety-blank meal a day," said Maestro Dick Wilson of the Starlight Roof, "and I find myself referred to in The Post as Don Wilson, who is the fattest man on the radio, a regular human behemoth!" So sorry, Dick. It was just a sample of life's irony . . . And Peter Borras of the Madrillon says he just can't take the credit of giving that ornate birthday cake to June Sothern. Because the cake was bought and paid for by an ardent but bashful admirer of Junie's.

"PLAY BALL!" is the right signal when Juggler Ragini enters at the Casino Royal. Ringsiders are encouraged to toss rubber balls at Ragini, who catches them on a fork held in his mouth, a feat not to be matched by even the best of Brooklyn Dodgers.

"LONELY" is the name of a new and charming song written by Mrs. Myrtle Richardson, wife of Harold Richardson, former commander of the District of Columbia Naval Reserves. "Lonely" has been specially arranged by both the Rainbow Room's Parley Eaton and the Neptune Room's Don Baker. It caught on immediately, is constantly requested. Mrs. Richardson admits that she wrote the tune while thinking that her husband might soon be back in the service.



EDDIE CHASE,
highly popular pianist at Burt's Trans-Lux

Ninety per cent old tunes plus 10 per cent of new tunes is the correct recipe for pleasing the usual audience, say "We Two" of the Anchor Room. They ought to know for they've made hearers happy from New England to the Deep South during the two years they've been away from Washington.

VERSATILE MAESTRO KAIN. Glen Echo's Paul Kain, whose orchestra is registering another resounding success in its second season at Glen Echo, has more strange and varied interests! He's recently completed his course in aviation. He collects Oriental rugs, Van Gogh prints and hectic neckties. And within the last few weeks he's started to study soil conservation and taken up the photography of wild life via a camera with telescopic lens.

DOVE PARTIES dominate the afternoon picture in Mayfair. Government girls, parties of ladies triumphantly carrying six pairs of silk hose apiece, pretty lasses from the current floor and stage shows,—they all gravitate to Mayfair for a spot of refreshment and chatter. Of course, there are men, too,—and looking very beglamoured in the midst of all the glamour.

"MISS VIRGINIA" will be chosen on the Wilson Line's S. S. Mount Vernon on Wednesday evening. This is a star event and the first time that Washingtonians have had a look-in on the selection of the Old Dominion's representative at the Atlantic City Pageant. In previous years the "Miss Virginia" selections have been made down around Norfolk. A score of beauty queens from all over the State will be in the Mount Vernon parade of pulchritude.

Bill Strickland is due back at the Lotus today after a two weeks' seaside vacation. Can't you hear him saying, "C'mon folks! Give 'em a big hand! Make 'em happy."

11,863 Jewish Refugees Arrive Here in 5 Months

New York, Aug. 10 (AP).—The Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society reported today that 11,863 Jewish refugees and immigrants were admitted to the United States during the first five months of this year.

Of the new arrivals, 9,546 were quota immigrants. They came to this country in 370 vessels, all met by the society's pier service.

The society said it had handled 17,278 affidavits and petitions in behalf of refugees at the request of American relatives and friends and $1,096,984 was deposited by American sponsors with the society's transportation department, which facilitates transportation of refugees holding United States visas.

Prisoner Beaten By Cellmate

A 64-year-old prisoner was near death last night in Casualty Hospital after a beating by another prisoner in a cell at No. 12 Precinct early yesterday. He was being treated for a fractured skull.

Police said the man was beaten before they could rescue him, by a 27-year-old former inmate at St. Elizabeths Hospital who was being held on an open charge by No. 12 police. It was said they did not know he was a former hospital inmate until after the beating.

The injured man was Charles Dixon, 64, of 1004 Sixth Street Northwest, who had been arrested on a drunk charge and placed in the cell with two other men. One of the men was the alleged attacker. Police said he beat Dixon with his fists.

Employment Increases 40 Per Cent in Maryland

Baltimore, Aug. 10 (AP).—Figures based on unemployment contributions collected from Maryland industries show employment in the State increased 40 per cent in the second quarter of 1941 over the corresponding 1940 period.

The unemployment compensation board said today collections to date amounted to $4,092,611, an increase of $1,171,152 over the three-month period ending June 30, 1940.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Donovan's Agency Given Space in Apex Building

Col. William J. Donovan, Coordinator of Defense Information, has been assigned offices for his agency in the Apex Building. Federal Trade Commission was ordered to squeeze into smaller quarters to make room for the newest defense agency. The defense information office will hire several hundred employes; just how many hasn't been decided, but the employes will be taken from Civil Service registers. The Library of Congress is doing research work for the office. Donovan has borrowed Thomas Early, secretary of the Civil Aeronautics Board, to set up his office. Ward Stewart has been borrowed from NYA to handle personnel.

In the good old easy-going days Civil Service officials placed red labels on their important letters and memos that said "URGENT." When the defense pressure started "VERY URGENT" tags appeared. As the pressure got tougher "URGENT-TODAY" labels were used. Now "FRANTIC-URGENT" tags are being used. What kind of labels would be used if we got into a shooting war no one knows.

Agriculture has sent a man to Philadelphia and Baltimore to find space to send Farm Credit's credit union section of approximately 125 employes. It appears probable that Philadelphia will get the office . . . Treasury will move its Foreign Funds Division out of the Raleigh Hotel into the new apartment house at Sixteenth Street and Park Road when the building is finished. Foreign Funds has around 300 employes and several hundred additional will be hired . . . The employe election at Agriculture will be held today. Dr. Howard A. Edson is being backed by the NFFE and the AFGE is supporting Charles G. Casteel.

Employe transfers continue to be one of the big headaches for Federal officials. On one hand the Government has set up barriers to discourage transfers. Individual agencies have refused transfers. On the other hand, the Government has spent a vast amount of money to set up what is known as the Interdepartmental Placement Service within the Civil Service Commission. More than 700,000 Federal employes have filled out long questionnaires that bring out their backgrounds in detail.

The questionnaires were designed to tell Uncle Sam each employe's qualifications. The Government was then supposed to give his own employes a chance for better jobs by transfering them from one job to another. There is a shortage of machinists, for example, and recently several machinists were found in the Government doing custodial work. OPACS needs industrial accountants and economists and it went through the qualifications of more than half a million Federal employes trying to find some. The placement service received 840 calls last month for qualified persons.

The trouble now is getting the employes transferred from one agency to another even after they are found. Some agencies flatly refuse to release their employes while others will release them only under pressure. In the making is a new order that will correct the situation. It's proposed to give real defense agencies priority on the talents of Federal employes.

Surplus Marketing will soon hire more than 200 additional employes to help it buy food under the Lend-Lease program. The new workers will be paid from Lend-Lease funds allocated to SMA . . . Civil Service Commission has sent men to each of its district offices to recruit industrial specialists for OPM and OPACS . . . The Finance Office of the War Department soon will be moved into an old mattress factory that is being done over at 300 I Street Northeast . . . Civil Service officials report a general shortage of office machine operators. Needed are alphabetic card punch operators, multigraph, multilith, tabulating, sorting machine, graphotype and mimeograph operators . . . Agriculture plans to retain the Longfellow Building where REA is housed if it moves 2100 employes out of the city.

Hospital Plea For Beds Aimed Beyond Crisis

The recent request by District hospitals for Federal Works Agency funds to expand their facilities is not being made just to meet defense crowding conditions, the Health Security Administration said yesterday, but has been planned in terms of post-emergency demands as well.

In the first place, a Health Security spokesman said, with the exception of Doctors, Emergency and Gallinger, there has been little modern hospital building in Washington for the past 20 years. Thus, he explained, there are many hospital buildings rapidly becoming obsolete, and the new facilities will serve as replacements when the present pressure is relaxed.

Also, figures submitted to the FWA when funds were asked for Columbia, Garfield and Arlington Hospitals showed that the bed shortage was felt in 1940, before the population influx was in full swing.

The average daily occupancy of the District's 4069 available hospital beds ran to 76 and 80 per cent during 1940, according to these figures. Eighty per cent occupancy is considered to be the saturation point for hospital facilities, Health Security said, because of the necessity of breaking the total number of beds into separate groups for sexes and types of care.

Moreover, it was said that national hospital standards consider a ratio of 4½ hospital beds to each 1000 of population necessary for adequate care. At the present rate of population increase, 800 new beds will be needed here to meet these standards by the time funds could be allotted and the beds obtained.

The Health Security Administration officials also suggested that because of the amount of Government planning necessary to meet post-emergency conditions, they believed there would be less of a drop in the vicinity's population than might be expected.

Almost all the District hospitals were said to be studying their requirements and facilities, but no new applications for the funds available under the Lanham Act have been made as yet.

Mrs. Fones Keeps Bible Under Pillow; $229 Contributed

Mrs. Rose Fones, 74-year-old widow who was robbed of her life's savings last Sunday, is just sitting around her room these days, afraid to go out lest someone come to see her while she is gone, and still hoping that she will get her $1167 back.

The total of contributions for Mrs. Fones by Post readers stood at $229.61 yesterday, though she said that none had been received at her home for several days.

Worry over her loss has kept Mrs. Fones home from church the past two Sundays for the first time in about two years. Previously she had been a regular attendent of the Gospel Mission's Sunday service and Friday Bible class. Now, she says, she has to content herself with reading her Bible, which she keeps under her pillow.

D. C. Men Eliminated In Champion Bridge

Oscar J. Brotman and Alvin L. Roth, of Washington, and their two partners from Newark and New York City, defending champions, are eliminated in the contract bridge semifinals yesterday in the world championship contest at Asbury Park, Md.

They were defeated by last year's runners-up, who will meet two of the famous contract "aces" in today's finals in New York City.

Army Officer Slashed And Robbed in D. C.

Police last night sought two men who assaulted and robbed a United States Army officer near Seventh and N Streets Northwest at 3 a. m. yesterday.

Lieut. Frederick N. Oettinger, stationed at Fort George Meade, told police he was grabbed from behind by two Negroes who cut his left cheek and robbed him of a service pistol, a gold watch and $5.

Lieut. Oettinger went to Walter Reed Hospital for treatment.

Boys in Khaki Dot Churches Of Washington and Vicinity

Local congregations were dotted with khaki uniforms yesterday, when service men accepted invitations to worship in a time of national crisis. Churchmen were dinner hosts to many boys after services.

While some soldiers attended the leading downtown Catholic and Protestant churches, others went to worship places throughout the Washington, Virginia and Maryland area. Many worshiped at Army chapels.

Through arrangements centralized at the Washington Federation of Churches, selectees were brought from the Army Recreational Camp at Arlington to First Baptist, Covenant-First Presbyterian, St. John's Episcopal, National City Christian and Reformation Lutheran churches. Service men were well-represented at masses at St. Patrick's Catholic Church and St. Matthew's Cathedral.

At Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, Connecticut Avenue and N Street Northwest, the Rev. William H. Denney, assistant pastor, gave a special welcome to the boys in uniform. A committee is being formed there to arrange for taking them out to dinner after Sunday services.

Reformation Lutheran Church, on Capitol Hill, is taking good care of the boys. Thirty of their own young men now in the service are receiving monthly letters from Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, pastor, and the Rev. Ralph W. Loew, assistant. They also get Bibles, razor blades, writing paper and other items.

The Rev. Wilber Wilson, associate pastor of Mount Vernon Methodist Church, said yesterday that a congregational-wide program for service men will be initiated in September. There will be a committee with representatives from every organization in the 3000-member church.

Final Service at Marvin Church Will Be Held Sept. 28

Worshipers of Marvin Methodist Church, who on September 28 will hold their last organized service, yesterday were urged to "let their light shine" as they spread to other congregations, by Dr. Chesteen Smith, supply pastor of the Southwest congregation.

The congregation, whose property at Tenth Street and Independence Avenue Southwest is being bought by the Government to widen the Avenue, were urged to "stick by" Marvin until the final service.

Most members will join Methodist churches nearest their homes. Proceeds from the property sale will be divided among Gorsuch, Mount Vernon Place, Four Corners (Md.), Ryland and Bradbury Heights Methodist and Westminster Memorial Presbyterian churches. Four Corners Church will receive pews, altar organ and other equipment.

St. Mark's Lutheran Church at Eighth and Independence Avenue, also affected by the avenue widening, will hold a special congregational meeting tonight at 8 o'clock to map its future. There is a possibility it may affiliate with Zion Lutheran Church, at New Hampshire Avenue and Buchanan Street, Hampshire Heights, or Incarnation Lutheran Church, Fourteenth and Gallatin Streets Northwest. The Rev. J. Luther Frantz is St. Mark's pastor.

Era of 'National Debauchery' Feared by Civic League Head

J. Raymond Schmidt, general superintendent of the National Civic League, yesterday called for action against "impending national debauchery." He was guest speaker at the Washington Heights Presbyterian Church, 1862 Kalorama Road Northwest.

"The present plight of France," he said, "can be traced to the development within the past quarter century of an overwhelming bent toward pleasure seeking, with its consequences of excessive drinking, moral laxity and the breakdown of family life."

He said that French Chief of State Petain had appealed to his people to forsake evil ways and mend the spiritual foundations essential to a successful national comeback.

Declaring that America's greatest enemy is within its borders, Schmidt made a plea for preservation of the American home, for the elevation of the church to a place of greater influence and for stronger discipline.

Calling revenge "kind of a wild justice," the Rev. Ralph W. Loew last night admonished against "national thinking that will wish retaliation against other peoples."

Using "Hamlet" as his sermon subject—it was the second of a sermon series on Shakespeare's plays—Mr. Loew said that revenge is character-damaging, and "completely limits the view of man and his world."

"It also restricts his way of handling a problem," he told the Reformation Lutheran congregation, "and denies the fact there is a just God."

Marriage of One Separates Triplets for the First Time

The 19-year-old Kaufman triplets, of Arlington, were separated for the first time yesterday, but it took Dan Cupid to do it. The separation occurred at 5 p. m., when Ann Kaufman left for a honeymoon in New York after her marriage to Lester Dobschultz, of Washington, at the Mayflower Hotel.

Ann, Lillian and Henry Kaufman are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Kaufman, of 3918 Wilson Boulevard, Arlington, Va. They were born here in Washington in 1922, attended John Quincy Adams School together, went to Central High School together, and were graduated from Washington-Lee High School together when the family moved to Arlington last year. Staying as close together as they could, Lillian placed first in the class of 49, Henry second and Ann fourth.

And until the bride and bridegroom departed yesterday, the sisters had never been apart for more than a day in their lives.

Ann met her future husband about two years ago, but the separation from her brother and sister was postponed when Dobschultz entered the Army as a selectee last year. The son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Dobschultz, of 30 Atlantic Street Southeast, Lester is on a 10-day leave from his post at Camp Pendleton, Virginia Beach, Va., and will be back on duty as soon as the honeymoon is over.

Women's Defense Meeting Delayed

The monthly meeting of the D. C. Council of Defense Women's Battalion has been postponed from today until Friday at 7:30, the battalion's commander, Mrs. Marguerite L. Krenek, announced last night.

The meetings, held in the Bureau of Engraving Auditorium, will be held on the third Friday of every month from now on, she explained, so that they will coincide with the Friday dances given there weekly for service men.

299-Year-Old Parish Holds Homecoming

By Robert Tate Allen
Post Church Editor

St. George's Episcopal Church at Valley Lee, Md., founded 22 years after the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock, yesterday staged its annual homecoming, drawing friends from five States and the District of Columbia.

During the 299-year-old parish's morning service, the Rev. Edward S. Dunlap urged parishioners to carry on the spiritual tradition that guided their forefathers to launch the congregation in 1642, and help found America.

"If these stones could speak and these timbers could answer," he said from the pulpit of the brick Colonial edifice, "they would tell the story of the steadfast faith of our forefathers and of those present today."

Mr. Dunlap, who is executive secretary of the Washington Diocese—of which St. George's is a part—was presented by the Rev. Nelson McConomy, rector of William and Mary Parish, in which the church is located.

There was a patriotic note to the service, as Mrs. A. Lamont, of Christ Church, Alexandria, where George Washington worshiped, sang several selections, and a group of parish children rendered "God Bless America." Pusey H. Howard, head of the lay readers' association of the Washington Diocese, read the lesson.

Following the morning service, the present and former members mingled on the oak-shaded lawn for a fried chicken dinner prepared by parish women. One of the oaks is said to antedate Columbus' discovery of America.

Dinner over, the parishioners sat back to hear Ogle R. Singleton, secretary of the diocesan convention and of the historical committee of William and Mary parish, informally review the church's history, and Lewis T. Boynton, diocesan publicity head, and Mr. Howard laud the work of preserving the historic landmark.

Mr. Singleton explained that the congregation was established eight years after the landing of Lord Baltimore's colonists at St. Mary's City and 50 years before the parish was set up by the Colonial Legislature in 1692. St. George's has been housed in four buildings, the present one having been erected in 1799.

Gen. Kutz Urges Parents to Aid Play Centers

"One of the best ways to reduce the child traffic toll in the District is to provide home play places that will keep children off the streets," Commissioner Gen. Charles W. Kutz stated yesterday, in urging all parents to participate in the Backyard Playgrounds Contest.

Sponsored by the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, the Recreation Department and the Junior Board of Commerce, in cooperation with the District WPA, the contest offers several prizes for the best backyards. It is open without cost to all residents of the District, and identical prizes will be given white and Negro contestants.

Complete information about the contest may be obtained at any District playground, at the Force School, 1740 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, or at the WPA office, 2324 F Street Northwest.

St. Dominic's Carnival

St. Dominic's Carnival will open tonight at Sixth and E Streets Southwest to continue through August 23. Carnival grounds will be open from 7 p. m. to 11:30. This Thursday will be "Irish Night."

$1100 Stolen In Series Of Thefts

Eight burglaries and thefts, with loot totaling more than $1100, were reported to police yesterday.

A money bag containing $432 in cash and $130 in checks was taken from the unlocked safe of a gas station at 930 Michigan Avenue Northwest, the manager, Walter Mason, of Chillum Heights, Md., reported. A few hours later an employe was arrested as the suspected thief and the money was recovered, according to police.

Thieves broke into a drug store at 925 Eighth Street Southeast and stole $300 and 40 cartons of cigarettes, police reported yesterday.

Locher Grove, manager, said the intruders cut a rear screen door and broke a glass in a rear door to gain entrance.

An employe of the Simpsons Drug Store, Seventh Street and Rhode Island Avenue Northwest, left the store early yesterday morning with $60 belonging to the firm and failed to return, according to the manager, Paul Reiser.

John Trammell, 715 Mount Vernon Place Northwest, reported he awakened about 4:15 a. m. yesterday and found a man in his bedroom. The man ran away, and later Trammell found that his wallet containing $25 had gone, too.

Three other persons reported sums stolen from their homes. They are Chester Christie, 1160 Fourth street Northeast, $20; C. Howard, 1744 Seventh street Northwest, $30; and Mrs. Alice Carter, 2500 K street Northwest, $22.

The Bones Are On Jiggs—He's Sergeant Now

Special Dispatch to The Post

Quantico, Va., Aug. 10.—According to Marine Corps custom, a man passes out cigars to celebrate his promotion. But the newest sergeant at this post failed to conform to the procedure. Instead, he dug up an old bone he was hoarding against hard times and offered to share it with his shipmates.

JIGGS IV

The latest Marine to sport the three stripes of a sergeant is Jiggs IV, famed mascot of the Quantico Leathernecks. Today he was presented with a "Regular Bulldog" warrant of that rank, for "Duty as Mascot, Marine Barracks, Quantico, Va."

Now 2½ years old, the puppy reported for duty by plane on March 3, 1939, from Philadelphia, where he had been presented to the Marines by Dr. Frederick James of that city.

Jiggs, who takes pride in being the ugliest bulldog in captivity, was promoted to corporal on June 27, 1940, upon the recommendation of Maj. Gen. L. McCarty Little, who stated the mascot had "Performed his duties at this post in an outstanding manner. He is thrifty, as evidenced by his record: Under deposit account—1 December, 1939, 1 turkey leg."

San Carlo Group To Give 7 Operas At the Watergate

The San Carlo Opera Company will give seven consecutive performances at the Watergate beginning Wednesday at 8:15 p. m.

The operas to be presented are as follows: La Traviata, Wednesday; Madame Butterfly, Thursday; Aida, Friday; Carmen, Saturday; Martha, Sunday; Il Trovatore, Monday; Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci, Tuesday.

Moored Boat Looted Of $100 Equipment

Boat equipment valued at more than $100 was stolen yesterday from a cabin cruiser moored just north of the railroad trestle in the Anacostia's Eastern Branch, police reported.

Owner of the boat, W. J. Richey, 330 Rhode Island Avenue Northeast, said a generator, bronze driving shaft, bronze bell and four regulation fire extinguishers were missing. The culprits broke out 20 windows and tore up the fore deck, Richey said.

JOY RIDER—The Nanna, back at her berth at the Municipal after being stolen

The score of persons who went cruising on the Nanna, a home-made 18-foot boat, Saturday night knew the Potomac River breeze was refreshing after the sultry day and they knew it was a bargain ride, too, at 25 cents apiece. But they didn't know their "skipper" was an escaped patient from St. Elizabeths Hospital.

The skipper's identity became known yesterday when A. Daniel Pleitner, of Hyattsville, owner of the Nanna, found it missing from its moorings at the Nash Marine Supply Co., 1300 Maine Avenue Southwest.

From this point an investigation by Pleitner, the harbor police and The Washington Post, unfolded the following story:

About 9 p. m. Saturday, the "skipper," a 22-year-old soldier who had escaped from St. Elizabeths where he had been under observation, slipped down to the docks at Nash's Marine Supply Co. and cut the Nanna loose.

There were some loungers around and he offered to take them on a river cruise at 25 cents each. It was a tempting offer and business was good from the start.

Business was so good, in fact, that about midnight, the "skipper" decided he needed a "first mate." On one of his trips he met Joseph Casper Kiefer, 22, of Sailors Snug Harbor, Staten Island, N. Y., who was watching some fishermen on the wharves. Kiefer was induced to ship as "mate," thinking the boat belonged to the "skipper."

Except for a near accident when the Nanna almost scraped its bottom through on some bulkheads near the Harbor Police Station, the cruises, lasting about 15 minutes, were uneventful—until the Nanna ran out of gas near the Capital Yacht Club. The boat drifted to the wharf and was tied up there. The passengers went ashore and the "skipper" went in search of gasoline, leaving "First Mate" Kiefer in charge. The search for gas was fruitless because of Secretary Ickes' ban on sales between 7 p. m. and 7 a. m.

Kiefer was still on board when Pleitner and his father-in-law, H. J. Miller, arrived at the Capital Yacht Club to claim their boat. They had spotted it from Nash's Marine Supply Co., about a quarter of a mile away.

The Nanna was left there while Kiefer was taken to the Harbor Police Station, where he was later exonerated of blame in connection with theft of the boat.

Several hours later, the "skipper" returned to the craft, inquired where he could buy some gasoline for it, and was promptly seized and turned over to police by Tom Dickerson, steward.

Under questioning the "skipper" admitted he had been a patient at St. Elizabeth's, but said he had been discharged. Officials at the hospital, however, said the youth had escaped August 6 from a group in the library and had not been heard from since. He had been admitted to the institution, they said, July 28 from Walter Reed Hospital.

Finland Fights The Russians Only, Procope Declares

"The world must understand that Finland is fighting this war only against Russia. We are not parties in the big European struggle," Hjalmar J. Procope, Finnish Minister to the United States, declared yesterday, quoting Finland's President, in an address to the library committee of Purcellville, Va.

Finland's efforts were directed toward reconstruction, not toward revenge, the minister said. He charged that Russia did not intend to let Finland remain at peace.

"It is now known to all the world that Molotov last November announced to Germany the Russian Communist government's wish to strike a final blow at Finland and liquidate us," Procope asserted.

Roanoke Marine Stricken on Way To Duty Here

A 19-year-old marine, Owen Harrison, of Roanoke, Va., was on his way here yesterday to report for active duty, when he was stricken with internal hemorrhages, and rushed to Emergency Hospital.

He was admitted in a semiconscious condition, and required an immediate blood transfusion. Seven Army privates and a sergeant answered the call, and Harrison was given a transfusion early yesterday afternoon. He remains in a critical condition.

Harrison had just been released from a Roanoke hospital after being in an automobile accident in which he and several friends were injured.

D. C. Man Found Dead in Potomac

A body found floating in the Washington Channel on Saturday was identified yesterday as that of Louis D. Resor, 68, of 613 E Street Northeast, police reported. Identification was made through fingerprints.

Cards Defeat Pirates Twice, 3 to 2 and 4 to 2

Cards Hold Virtual Tie With Dodgers; Slaughter Homers In Opening Game

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 10.—The Cardinals stopped fast-climbing Pittsburgh, 3 to 2 and 4 to 2, today, dropping the Pirates nine and one-half games out of first place and temporarily squelching their hopes of making it a three-team race.

St. Louis' victory also kept the team in a virtual tie for first with Brooklyn, which won a pair. The Dodgers have the edge by .003 percentage points.

Scotch-fisted pitching by the Birds' hard-working aces—Ernie White and Mort Cooper—highlighted the double-header before one of the largest crowds of the season—26,513 paid.

For Cooper, who gave up ten hits in the second game, it was his third triumph since he started last Sunday after taking a month's recess for an operation on his pitching arm.

Starts Off Bad

He looked bad in the first inning, giving up a single and two doubles by Lee Handley and Bob Elliott, but poor base running and a double play kept the plate uncrossed. From then to the sixth inning, when the Pirates tied the score at 1-all, Cooper pitched shut-out ball. His mates gave him three tallies in the eighth which absorbed a one-run Pirate attack in the ninth.

It was his tenth triumph and a family success, since Brother Walker Cooper was behind the plate.

Even closer with hits was Southpaw White, who scored his fourteenth victory in the opener—tops for his team. He was touched for five safeties, two of them coming in the Pirates' two-run rally in the ninth which necessitated Pitcher Bill Crouch entering for a turn at relief.

Enos Slaughter smashed a homer in the fifth inning to open the scoring and Terry Moore, entering as a pinch hitter with the bases loaded in the eighth, drove in the other St. Louis runs.

Kraft Wins Easily In Colorado Golf

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 10.—John Kraft, the Denver school teacher who is being boomed as a leading "dark horse" in this month's National Amateur at Omaha, today won the twenty-first Broadmoor Invitation Golf Tournament by defeating L. B. "Bud" Maytag, of Colorado Springs, holder of the title in 1931 and 1932.

Kraft emerged from the 36-hole finals as an 8 and 7 winner. He grabbed the crown that Harry Todd, of Dallas, the low amateur in the 1941 National Open at Fort Worth, elected not to defend.

Ted Lyons, Lee Beat Indians for White Sox

Al Smith and Jim Bagby Hurl as Cleveland Drops Two Games; Oscar Grimes Homers

By International News Service

Cleveland, Aug. 10.—The Cleveland Indians dropped two full notches further behind the league leading New York Yankees today when the Chicago White Sox drubbed the Tribe, 5 to 2 and 2 to 1.

The results, combined with New York's double victory over Philadelphia, left the Indians 14 games behind the American League pacemakers.

Jim Bagby was defeated in the finale, when he tied up with Thornton Lee in a pitchers' battle. The White Sox scored single tallies in the fourth and sixth, and Cleveland's lone run came in the seventh.

Cubs Bow To Reds, 3-1, On Root Day

By International News Service

Chicago, Aug. 10.—The Chicago Cubs today dropped a 3 to 1 decision to the Cincinnati Reds as the Cubs celebrated Charley Root Day before a crowd of 18,739 at Wrigley Field.

Root, seeking his 199th Major League victory on a day set aside to honor his 16 years of service as a Cub pitcher, was balked by a Cincinnati Rookie, Eddie Lukon, obtained last week by the Reds from Atlanta.

Lukon, in five trips to the plate, got 4 singles out of the total of 11 hits allowed by Root. The Reds put across what proved to be the winning run in the eighth on singles by Lukon and Frank McCormick, a walk by Eddie Joost, and an infield error.

Gifts obtained with the proceeds of a "parade of 12,000 dimes" conducted among fans were presented to Root before the game. They included a live pig, a station wagon, golf set, traveling bags, fishing tackle, and a check for 1 per cent of his 16 years' earnings with the Cubs. He is the oldest active player in the Major Leagues.

Rep. Randolph, 3 D. C. Net Stars In Md. Tourney

Two local juniors and at least one local woman will compete in the twentieth annual Mountain Lake Park tennis championships in Western Maryland, together with Representative Jennings Randolph, who has played in it every year. The tournament opens today.

The definite local entries are Bobby Bensinger, former national boys' indoor titleholder and recent runnerup in the District public parks; Charlie Free, with whom Bensinger won the D. C. public park doubles, and Hazel Bishopp, one of the city's top women's players.

Wins Title

Welsh Holds Both D. C. Net Titles

By Jack Munhall

Barney Welsh, the Rockville squire who lords it over District tennis and takes great delight in chipping through the glamour surrounding new challengers for his honors, did it twice yesterday at Edgemoor and successfully defended his District singles and doubles titles for the eighth successive year.

In singles the lean and lanky Rockville barrister pounded second-seeded Don Leavens, the newcomer from Milwaukee, to a straight-set defeat for the third time in as many final matches this season, 6—2, 6—4, 6—4. And in doubles he took Hugh Lynch, a comparatively strange but surprisingly strong partner, and polished off Dick Bennion and Bob Underwood, the flashy team from the Coast, 6—2, 10—8, 4—6, 6—2.

There was nothing startling about the way Welsh breezed through Leavens, but even the fans most-hardened to Barney's invincible performances were a bit astonished by the skill and teamwork that he and Lynch exhibited in turning back the bid of Underwood and Bennion, who had been the sensations of the tournament.

First Title

It was the first District doubles title for Lynch, and also the first time that Welsh had taken it with Lynch, although Welsh had won it seven times before, with three different partners—Bud Markey, Frank McElvenny and Dooly Mitchell. It was with Mitchell that Welsh took the doubles title last year.

Lynch, never before regarded as an offensive player, was the surprise of the day yesterday, for in view of an unusually large gallary it was he and not Welsh who really put the skids under the hard-hitting Bennion and Underwood. Specifically, Lynch swung the tide of a hard and swiftly-changing battle by his unexpectedly high success in holding service and with his accurate down-the-middle placements. With this latter shot Lynch passed Bennion and Underwood no less than a dozen times. In the final game of the fourth set when Bennion and Underwood were still providing stiff opposition, Hugh four times sent his specialty zooming

Nats Split 2 Games With Bosox, 6-7, 8-2

Carrasquel Pitches for 5th Straight Win; Sundra Is Loser in First Game

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

Boston, Aug. 10.—The Nats messed around in the first game of a double-header with the Red Sox today and then they let Alex Carrasquel go to work in the second game. The big Venezuelan fetched 'em an even break for the day by beating Boston, 8 to 2, following the Nats 7-to-6 licking in the opener.

With 25,858 fans on the scent of a double triumph for the Red Sox after they had pasted Steve Sundra in the first game, Carrasquel cooled 'em off. He kept the Nats in the ball game through six innings of a 1-to-1 pitching duel with young Muckey Harris, and then knew what to do when the Nats gave him a lead.

It was the fifth straight victory for the virulent Venezuelan. He gave up ten hits to the Red Sox, but rarely when they could be translated into runs. The second game was called at the end of eight innings on account of the Sunday baseball law here that forbids the start of an inning after 6:15 o'clock, but by that time Alex's lead was prohibitive.

The Nats, generally, got tough in that second game. They gave Mickey Harris a burst in the seventh inning that won the ball game, rattling out six hits that drove four runs across the plate to put asunder the 1-1 tie at that point. George Archie, Jake Early and Roger Cramer contributed important two-baggers to the uprising.

Steve Sundra Routed

In that first game, Steve Sundra was no good. Knocked out of the box in the first game of the series here on Friday, Sundra was given another starting chance and muffed it badly. He gave up three runs in the first inning, and three more in the fourth. Sundra was serving up an extra-base pitch. The Red Sox banged him for three home runs, two by Bobby Doerr, and two triples.

Young Earl Johnson, a left-hander, started the first game for Boston but the Nats routed him out of there in the fifth inning. They banged old Mike Ryba around, too, but couldn't quite wipe out what was once a 6-1 lead of the Red Sox.

In that second game, though, Carrasquel's pitching was positively in-

Yanks Take Twin Bill From A's

By International News Service

Philadelphia, Aug. 10.—The New York Yankees beat Philadelphia in both ends of a double-header today winning the first, 11 to 2, and the second, 4 to 1.

The Yanks lambasted Jack Knott for five runs in the opening inning to sew up the first affair immediately. Knott remained on the mound, however, and finally went out under a 16-hit lashing over the route with Marius Russo, who gave the A's nine hits, the winning pitcher.

Atley Donald and Luman Harris tangled in a pitchers' duel in the finale, both going the distance.

The game was decided in the last inning when New York rallied for three runs, having tied the score with a single marker in the fourth.

WASHINGTON, AUG. 11, 1941

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Boston, Aug. 10.—The kindly faced little man who gave 'em the mark to shoot at 47 years ago thinks that Ted Williams is the fellow most likely to wipe it off the books. Hughy Duffy, now 73, has grown old gracefully and with no rancor whatsoever he speculates freely on Williams' chances to break the all-time high batting average of .438 he amassed in 1894.

POVICH

"Until Williams came along, I thought my record was safe forever," Duffy was saying. "The funny thing about it is, I never did set much store by that .438 average until Rogers Hornsby threatened to better it in 1924. For more than 30 years I virtually forgot about it. Folks weren't so excited about batting averages those days. They didn't make so much fuss over 'em. Then when Hornsby came along in 1924 and hit .424 they started checking up on the old records and there mine was.

"Then I began to take some pride in my .438 and of course I was kind of glad that Hornsby didn't outdo it. When he failed, I thought it was safe for all time, because Hornsby was just about the greatest of the modern-day hitters. I didn't think anybody would come close, but now this Williams comes along and I don't think it's out of his reach."

For three years now, Duffy has been appraising Williams as a hitter. As boss of the Red Sox's baseball school at Fenway Park, the little man has seen Williams swing a bat in more than 200 games. From his perch in the honorary row of the press box he gazes upon Williams and marvels at the things the tall boy does with the bat.

Williams Mostly Pull-Hitter

"I've never seen a better hitter," says Duffy frankly. "He's got everything to hit with. A great head on the ball, the courage to stand up there and the best arms and wrists I ever did see. The amazing thing is he's mostly a pull hitter. He gets a lot of home runs and extra base hits that way, but the high-average hitters are usually the fellows who hit straight-away where there is more room for hits. That's where I made most of my hits, toward center field."

If, perchance, Williams does surpass Duffy's .438, and the betting is a conservative 10 to 1 that he won't, because it seems entirely too far out of range, it would prove that there is no mold for great hitters. Williams is a 6-foot-2-inch 180 pounder, and Duffy was a midget of 5 feet, 6 inches who never weighed more than 160 pounds in full dress. For almost every good hitter, there is in rebuttal a little guy who hit for the same average.

Old timers, of course, will never concede that a .438 average by Williams would rate with Duffy's record. The lively ball would be their chief argument. There was no rabbit in the ball that Duffy was hitting in 1894. Hits that now rocket through the infield or against the fences would be easy outs, and that argument has merit.

But, conversely, Duffy was compiling his .438 in an area when the hitter had an advantage not available to modern day batters. Foul balls didn't count as strikes. The old timers were adept at fouling 'em off and spoiling the good ones. Williams must take his foul balls and like 'em.

Duffy Received $2400 as Salary

"There is one other difference between us old timers and the modern ball players," said Duffy slyly. "When I was banging that ball for .438 with the old Braves in 1894 I wasn't getting $20,000 a year. I was getting $2400. That was the top salary a man could get in those days. Of course it didn't help or hurt your hitting, but we weren't exactly being pampered."

The three best hitters in the league, says Duffy, are Williams, Joe DiMaggio and Cecil Travis. When it was pointed out that the averages indicate as much, Duffy nodded. "That's right," he said, "the averages don't lie. They tell a more truthful story than any other set of figures I've ever seen. If the averages say a man is a .300 hitter, then he is a .300 hitter. He had to make those hits to hit .300. Some of 'em may be lucky hits, but for every lucky hit there's always a hit he's been robbed of. If the averages said a man was hitting .500, I'd believe it."

Duffy doesn't think, though, that any other man except Williams has a chance to better his record. He says DiMaggio has been around for six years now and has not come close to hitting .400. Travis has been around for most of eight years and never batted better than .344. Williams, however, recommends himself as a .400 hitter. Says Duffy "he's got the eye, the arms and the wrists. And he seems to be more hungry for those hits than the others. That's a help, too."

'Lower Than a Worm' Says The Magistrate—$10 Please

Brooklyn Fan Who Tossed a Pop Bottle Draws Magistrate's Ire in New York Court

By the United Press

New York, Aug. 10.—The moral of this tale is: Don't throw a pop bottle onto Ebbets Field and try to explain it to Brooklyn Magistrate John F. X. Masterson.

Edward Armstrong, 20, of Hartford, Conn., appeared before Masterson in night court tonight charged with disorderly conduct because he tossed out an empty pop bottle during the first game of a double-header between Brooklyn and Boston at a time when fans were resenting the fact that three Brooklyn men had been hit by pitched balls.

"It was the first game I've ever seen at Ebbets Field," Armstrong explained. "In the excitement about the players getting beaned I guess I threw a bottle. I don't know why, or . . ."

"Horse feathers," interrupted the magistrate. "You sit in the security of the upper stand and throw a bottle out. It could have hit a ball player who was out there trying to earn his living. Your type is lower than a worm and can wear a high hat and still walk under a worm. Ten dollars fine or three days in jail."

Armstrong paid.

Travis' Errorless Streak Ends on 'Tainted' Decision

Boston, Aug. 10.—Cecil Travis was charged with an error in the last inning of the second game today, bringing to a halt his record of 104 errorless chances in the field.

The misplay occurred on a hard-hit ball by Tabor which skittered off Travis' shoe, and press box opinion was that it should have been scored as a hit.

Ted Williams fattened his batting average during the double-header today with four hits in seven times at bat. Travis improved his own average with three hits in eight times at bat.

The Nats learned today that the scheduled game with the Athletics tomorrow has been postponed to a future date, thus reducing their series in Philadelphia with the A's to a single game on Tuesday before the move into New York for a pair of double-headers with the Yankees on Wednesday and Thursday.

MeadowbrookTops Texas, 9-4, in Upset

Ligonier, Pa., Aug. 10 (AP).—The brilliant riding of Walter Hayden carried the Meadowbrook Club of Long Island to a surprise victory over the hard-driving Houston, Tex., Polo Club in the final of the East-West tournament today.

Hayden drove home five goals as the Easterners surprised a crowd of 10,000 by upsetting the favored Houston riders, 9-4.

Dodgers Batter Braves Twice, Hold Lead

17-Hit Onslaught Captures First; Fred Fitzsimmons Pitches Shutout

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, Aug. 10.—The battering Brooklyn Dodgers cashed in on their power and the guile of Freddy Fitzsimmons today to retain their hold on the top rung in the humpty-dumpty National League pennant race as they knocked down the Boston Braves in both ends of a double-header, 14-4 and 4-0, before a happy crowd of 29,445.

Pounding three Boston pitchers for 17 hits in the first game, the Dodgers won going away behind the 13-hit hurling of Luke Hamlin, who hung up his seventh victory of the season.

The Dodgers included in their barrage four doubles and Joe Medwick's fourteenth homer of the year in a tumultuous battle which saw police twice intervene to prevent what approached a riot between the two teams.

In the fifth inning Dick Errickson, second Brave pitcher, clipped Medwick on the right elbow with a pitched ball and then struck Dolph Camilli, the next batter, on the back of the head. Quick action by the umpires and police averted trouble.

Fitz Allows 6 Hits

The pitching wizardly of Fitzsimmons was too much for Boston in the nightcap. The big round man with the turnaround delivery and the puzzling knuckle ball shut out the losers with six hits to notch his fifth win of the campaign without a loss.

Starting on Tom Earley in the third, the league leaders soon put the game away. A walk, Pee Wee Reese's triple and Sibby Sisti's bobble brought two Dodger scores. Lew Riggs' homer accounted for the third and a single by Herman Franks followed by Riggs, doubled closed out the scoring.

Greiner, O'Brien Rally but Lose At Mamaroneck

By the Associated Press

Mamaroneck, N. Y., Aug. 10.—After leading by seven holes at the twentieth tee, William Y. Dear, jr., and Karl F. Kellerman of the Forsgate Club, Jamesburg, N. J., had to play to the thirty-sixth today to defeat Otto Greiner and Donald O'Brien, of Baltimore, 1 up, in the final of the John G. Anderson best-ball golf tournament at the Winged Foot Club.

Dear and Kellerman each played the east course in 67 this morning to put together a best-ball card of 63 and lead their opponents by six holes. After a birdie three start on the afternoon round, the match took a sensational turn. By the eighth hole Greiner and O'Brien had cut the Jersey team's lead to 1 up. They went 3 up again, only to lose two more holes and to be carried to the home green.

With Greiner driving and approaching magnificently and holing putts up to 60 feet, the Baltimore pair, who also were runners-up on the tournament last year, rapidly cut into their rivals' lead.

Sears, Allan Burton Beat Quantico Team

Jim Huntt Upsets Ault at Indian Spring; Kerr Has 9 Threes at Kenwood; Naylor Wins

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Army and Navy Club pro Allan Burton called on Lieut. R. H. Sears as a last minute substitution for Ralph Bogart yesterday and the southpaw stroker proceeded to play the service club layout in par 72 strokes as he and Al defeated Danny Burton and Al Zarracina, of Quantico, 4 and 2.

Bogart and Allan were scheduled to play the third match with the Quantico pro-am duo but Bogart wired from New York last Saturday night that he would be unable to play. Danny and his 19-year-old partner had won the last match after the first one was halved.

There was little doubt as to the ultimate result yesterday after the first few holes as the eldest of the Burton brothers and Sears took an early lead, increased it to three up at the turn and went on to win, 4 and 2, with a best ball of 68. Burton was right back of his amateur partner with a legitimate 73, one over standard figures.

Danny and Zarracina had a best ball 71, both with approximate 75s. They had but one birdie, the fifteenth, where Zarracina halved Sears with a four but the latter came right back with another birdie 4 on the sixteenth to clinch the match.

Allan Burton just missed a double birdie on the second hole. His drive caught the trees to the right of the fairway and as the ball carried through the trees a cat-bird fell out, dead. Allan then knocked his second shot three feet from the pin but missed the putt.

INDIAN SPRING

Jim Huntt, whose game has improved several strokes of late due to consistent practice, knocked out Medalist Eddie Ault in the second round of the Indian Spring Club Championship to record his second upset victory in as many weeks. Last Sunday he won over two-time Champion Buddy Sharkey, 1 up, the same margin he posted over Ault.

Huntt was within a stroke or two of regulation figures as he advanced to the semifinals along with Dick Melvin, who went to the eighteenth hole to post a 1 up victory over Earl Clary in another well-played match. The other two matches have not been played as yet.

Indian Spring women members opened qualifying rounds for the club championship with Mrs. K. S. Giles taking temporary charge of medalist honors with a 50-41, 91. Mrs. Frank Mirth, 48-52, 100, and Mrs. Earl Clary, 51-51, 102, were next in line. Mrs. Phil Berman played one of the best shots of the day, a seven-iron out of a trap on the seventeenth hole which ducked into the cup for a birdie deuce.

KENWOOD

Starting with the sixth hole Kerr posted five consecutive treys, including three pars and and two birdies, and then from 14 through 17 he had four more, including three birdies in a row.

In the finals in all five flights of the Board of Governor's play, Henry Cohen won the first flight over William Woodward, 4 and 3; Dr. J. W. Nesbitt the second over H. J. Cooper, 2 up; G. M. Price the third over C. M. Dinkins, 3 and 2; F. C. Hale the fourth over C. Sjolin, 2 and 1, and Richard Nash the fifth over W. C. Lentz, also 2 and 1.

BANNOCKBURN

Mrs. Tom Robertson and Mrs. E. Mossberg came through in the Piper Cup finals, defeating Mrs. Wayne Smith and Sadie Glanz, 5 and 4, after posting a like margin of victory over Mrs. H. E. Davies and Mrs. T. E. Barefoot. The winners received the trophy at a banquet last night.

Pat Martino and E. R. Ferguson, jr., swept all three points from Billy Houghton and Ken Spencer to pace the Groaners to a 14-13 victory over the Moaners in another of the intra-club matches at Bannockburn.

MANOR

Manor Club's seven-weeks sweepstakes tournament was concluded with E. E. Naylor winner of the grand prize in the final week's competition with an 85—19, 66.

J. L. Maddocks had 81—14, 67, and A. L. Lynn, 95—26, 69, to finish second and third.

CONGRESSIONAL

Mrs. H. J. Klossner and J. M. Strait had both low net and gross scores in the mixed Scotch foursome play at Congressional with an 81-13, 68. They took the net, however, leaving the gross to Mrs. Marvin Johnston and P. J. Winkler with an 86.

V. P. Simmons and H. S. McDonald won the Blind Partner best ball competition with a 73-12, 61.

BEAVER DAM

John R. Miller again led the gross scorers in the sweepstakes play at Beaver Dam with a three-over par 5 while net winners were: Chick Heimer, 80-9, 71; Fred Cross, 92-20, 72; J. W. Childs, 82-10, 72; J. C. Johnson, 80-8, 72; Sid Kearns, 79-7, 72, and Billy Grimm, 80-8, 72.

EAST POTOMAC

Thelma Parker and Art Myers put together a pair of 42's to win the mixed Scotch foursome play at East Potomac with a gross 84. Betty Burton and Miles Appleberry had 87 for second place while two tied for third, Grace Long and Earl Marcey and Tommie Thomas and Mac McNeil, both with 88s.

Dick Jennings, runner-up for the city public links title last year, played the championship layout at East Potomac in 66 strokes, six under par, over the weekend, while his conqueror, Roy Smith, played the easier F and G nines also in 66.

WOODMONT

Dr. Max Hurston won the Class A sweepstakes at Woodmont with an 88, '19—69, over Sam Wheeler's 88, 17—71. Malcom Mintz and Bob Phillipson tied for third with 89, 17—72, and 83, 11—72, respectively.

Dr. Louis Shere easily topped the Class B players with 87, 26—61.

Oscar Goess Makes First Hole-in-One In Ace Tourney

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 10.—For the first time in 10 years of competition the New York World-Telegram's Hole-in-one Tournament achieved its goal today when Oscar Goess, of Bellmore, N. Y., sank the second of his five allotted tries in the Long Island division of the tourney.

Goess used a No. 7 iron on the specially-constructed 141-yard hole. His ball landed beyond the cup but had been hit with sufficient backspin to pull it back and into the hole.

Old Dominion Crews Sweep Rowing Titles

Special Dispatch to The Post

Alexandria, Va., Aug. 10.—The Old Dominion Boat Club's smoothly working crews won the championship of the Southern Rowing Association for the first time since its reorganization in 1939 today. The Alexandrians recorded a clean sweep in three-cornered competition with the Virginia Boat Club, of Richmond, and the Potomac Boat Club of Washington defending champions.

By virtue of their victory, in which they won preliminary heats and final victories in the eight-oared shell, four-oared gig and quadruple-oared sculls, the Alexandria oarsmen scored the perfect total of 27 points to finish up the season with a grand total of 61.

The Virginia Boat Club, finishing second with 9 points in today's races, wound up the season with 36 points, while the Potomac Boat Club, scoring 6 points, took third place with 29 points. The Arundel Boat Club, of Baltimore, fourth member of the association, forfeited at the start of the season, and failed to compete in any of the three regattas.

The Alexandrians climaxed their perfect performance in the quad final, in which they established a new course record of 2 minutes and 5 seconds against the Potomac crew. In the preliminary heat, they defeated Virginia with ease, covering the course in 2 minutes and 38 seconds.

The eight-oared shell race, feature event of the day, saw Old Dominion sweep to victory over Potomac in the preliminary, and then take the final from Virginia by two lengths.

Four-oared gig—Preliminary heat: Old Dominion (Burroughs, Campbell, Grant Edwards and Hayden defeated Virginia. Time—3:34.5. Final: Old Dominion defeated Virginia (Burch, Haseltine, Stillman, Duffy and Pulman). Time—3:15.2.

Quadruple-oared sculls—Preliminary heat: Potomac (Burch, McSweeney, Miller and Duffy) defeated Virginia. Time—2:38. Final: Old Dominion (Davis, Franklin, Weiner and Roach) defeated Potomac. Time—2:05 (new course record; old record 2:07).

Eight-oared shell—Preliminary heat: Old Dominion (Davis, Roach, Burroughs, Grant, Campbell, Weiners, Edmonds, Whitestone and Franklin) defeated Potomac. Time—2:35. Final: Old Dominion defeated Virginia (Harmon, Cox, Cash, Hopes, Williams, Wagner, Kramer, Holden and Bingham). Time—2:33.

Kovacs Whips Sabin, 7-5, 6-4, 6-2, at Rye

Pauline Betz Upsets Mrs. Sarah Cooke In Three-Set Match for Women's Crown

By Jack Guenther

United Press Sports Writer.

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 10—Frank Kovacs, a grinning young giant from Oakland, Calif., won the most important title of his colorful tennis career today when he crushed Wayne Sabin, of Reno, Nev., in the finals of the Eastern Grass Courts championships—a tournament rated as the best preview of the National Amateurs at Forest Hills.

The tall, tanned Westerner, displaying the most masterful court generalship he has shown this season, turned back his stocky rival, 7—5, 6—4, 6—2, after Pauline Betz, another Californian, had defeated Mrs. Sarah Cooke, of New York, 2—6, 8—6, 7—5, for the women's crown after a stubborn fight that lasted two full hours.

Kovacs, stroking so accurately that he won almost half his points on placements, ground Sabin down with a solid performance that kept 700 spectators at Westchester Country Club applauding almost continually. Only in the first set was the match a contest. As the engagement progressed Sabin became the more discouraged.

Breaks Sabin's Service

The gangling Californian opened by breaking Sabin's service. After a close, hard fight through the next nine games he broke again in the eleventh, then clinched the set in the twelfth with a score of 38 points to 35. Seventeen of Kovacs' points were gained on placements, while Sabin was able to collect only 7 the same way.

Sabin's downfall started in the second set when Kovacs again broke his opening service and took a 2—0 lead before lapsing momentarily while the grim-faced Nevadan ran the count to 3—2. Kovacs then won four of the next five games for a point advantage of 34-25. The third set was so one-sided Sabin was talking to himself.

Sabin won the first game, then dropped five in a row as Kovacs passed him with a brilliant series of baseline shots and sharp angle chops. In the seventh Kovacs missed match point three times as Sabin eventually won, 7-5, but in the eighth he swept four straight points and a love game for the first major victory he ever has scored on grass footing.

Miss Betz's Comeback

The women's finals were notable only for the stubborn comeback of Miss Betz, whose occasional brilliance eventually counted more than the steady play of Mrs. Cooke. For the most part the ladies slammed at the baselines in studied attempts to manuever each other out of position.

National Champions Ted Schroder and Jack Kramer, of California, won the men's double title by defeating Robert Riggs, of Clinton, S. C., and C. Gee Mako, of Los Ageles, 9-7, 9-7, 6-2, in a match that found their opponents ragged at the end.

Blunt-Poland Bout Meets With Approval

Definite announcement of the staging of the first scheduled 25-round boxing bout featured in the United States within the past 25 years for Griffith Stadium, on Wednesday night, August 27, met with a whirlwind response yesterday as Promoter Joe Turner prepared for the advance ticket sale for the all-star heavyweight carnival which is to be headlined by Bill Poland, terrific punching Jewish protege of Jack Kearns, and Eddie Blunt, clever North Carolina Negro conqueror of Abe Simon and Buddy Baer.

One of the first to wire both Kearns and Turner congratulations upon setting a bout for the marathon distance was William A. Brady, the veteran theatrical producer who once managed World Heavyweight Champions Jim Jeffries and Jim Corbett.

The advance sale will be inaugurated at Turner's Arena and downtown points, to be announced tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and tickets will be priced at $1.20, $2.40, $3.60 and $5.50. Turner predicts that the show will drawn between $25,000 and $40,000 and that Blunt and Poland, backed by such warriors as Lee Savold, Pat Comiskey, Claudio Villar, Buddy Scott, Tony Musto, Buddy Walker, Big Ben Morez and Buddy Knox will set a new high for action among the big fellows.

Rallies to Take Eastern Tennis Title

With CONSIDINE

Amagansett, N. Y., Aug. 10.—America's foremost couple in sports, Dan and Sonja Topping, are building a cottage down here on the dunes that look out on the once-peaceful Atlantic. They hope it is going to be a place where Sonja can rest between ice skating tours and movies, and where Dan can figure out new ways to make the Brooklyn football Dodgers the best team in the National League.

CONSIDINE

They're a nice couple, these Toppings—about as far removed from the rich blade and the Hollywood glamour girl as they can conscientiously get. They've got enough dough to order a string of streamlined cottages from Old Orchard Beach, Me., to Key West, but they are doing everything except hammer the nails into the one they are building. Sonja's been giving those five and ten cent stores a terrific pounding. Topping, whose forte is buying 200-pound fullbacks, even came home yesterday with two small white lampshades with ridiculous wedding cake roses on the side of them, and was crushed when the lady of the joint loudly ordered them removed, with tongs.

Topping retreated back into football. "Sutherland opens our training season this week," he told us, "with only 15 men from last year's team and 35 new ones. We sold Banks McFadden, you know, and Uncle Sam's got the others. I guess the Dodgers have been hit harder by the draft than any other team in any sport, not that that's anything to squawk about.

"We've lost George Cafego, Sam Francis, Ralph Kercheval and Ben Kish out of our backfield and Wally Young, our end. At the winter meeting of the league we drafted three centers—Frick, of Penn; Whitlow, of Rice and Jackson, of Texas. Then Uncle Sam drafted them. We lost 14 men in all.

Ace Parker in Top Shape

"But if we can come up with a good center—we'll still be 30 per cent better than we were last year. Don't forget that Jock Sutherland was hired long after we had picked a ball club last season. He didn't even see a lot of our guys until a few days before the season opened. We lost two out of our first three games, then finished the season winning seven out of eight."

Topping reports that "the greatest all around football player in the world,"—Ace Parker, of course—is so much on the mend that he may even appear in the exhibition game between the Dodgers and Chicago Bears early next month at Ebbets Field. Parker broke his ankle again in June, but it isn't nearly as severe a break as last year's. He isn't even using a cane now.

"Funny thing," Topping says, "I had a 'no baseball' clause in his contract for this year, you know, like George Marshall put in Sam Baugh's. Ace was keeping his word, too. He became a nonplaying manager for Portsmouth, but one day his team got in a jam and he was the only available man left to pinch-hit. He got up, knowing that nothing could happen to him, and hit the first pitched ball. It was a single, but Ace saw an opening. You know the kind of guy he is. He lit out for second. It was a close play so he slid. It broke his ankle, but he was safe. That's like him, isn't it?"

Poulton Captures Shoot-Off In All-Gauge Skeet Match

Texan Peppers 250 for Tie, Then Hits Another 175 Straight to Beat Kerr

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis, Aug. 10.—A straight-shooting Texan from old San Antonio, 41-year-old C. H. Poulton, won the national all-guage skeet championship at the seventh annual tourney today, beating 28-year-old Alex Kerr, of Beverly Hills, Calif., in the longest shootoff the clay target classic has ever witnessed.

The Lone Star sharpshooter, after breaking 250 straight in the regular event to tie with the West Coast star, powdered another 175 in a row to take the laurels, Kerr missing the 155th target, a high house clay from the No. 3 station.

Kerr, however, had plenty to cheer him up, despite the loss of the big title, which he also lost in a shoot-off a year ago at Syracuse.

The blond Californian annexed the sub-small gage title with 99 of 100, a new record: Took the all-around championship with 543 of 550, one off the record pace; captured the world's long run record of 545 with the 12-guage to erase the 512 set in 1938 by Max Marcum, of Louisville, Ky., and wound up by winning the captaincy of the 1941 All-American skeet team selected by Jimmy Robinson of Sports Afield Magazine.

Record Unfinished

Mrs. M. L. Smythe, of Aurora, Ohio, made a runaway race of the women's all-guage contest, breaking 245 of 250 to build up a five-target edge over the feminine foes. Mrs. Barr Patterson, of Chicago, finished second, beating 21-year-old Jane Hofmann, of Lake View, Ohio, 24 to 22, after they had tied at 240 of 250. Pat Laursen, of Akron, Ohio, champion of the women the last three years, wound up in a fourth-place tie with Ruth McCutchan, of Evansville, Ind., with 239.

Mrs. Smythe, who weighs only 98 pounds, also captured the feminine over-all honors with 527 of 550 with all-caliber guns, a new record for the girls.

Al Houghton Names Dates For Pro Golf

September dates for the pro-amateur match play championship for the Grosner Cup were among those announced by Al Houghton yesterday, District tournament chairman of the Middle Atlantic P. G. A.

Manor Club will again be the won last year by Joe Kirkwood, jr., 16 and 17. The tournament was won last year by oe Kirkwood, jr., and Otto Greiner, of Baltimore.

The Lady-pro, originally scheduled for next Monday but postponed due to a conflict with the Lancaster, Pa., pro-amateur, will be played September 2 at Congressional.

Other pro-amateur dates announced by Houghton included one at Columbia, September 8 and another at Manor October 6. Both one-day, 18-hole affairs.

Houghton also announced that he has assisted in naming the dates for the annual Eastern Shore Open championship, to be played October 12 at Chestertown, Md., for prize money which this year will reach the $500 mark. A pro-amateur will precede the open on Saturday, October 11.

Middle Atlantic P. G. A. members will compete in a pro-amateur at Woodholme today, at Pikesville, Md. D. C. pros who will compete include Leo Walper, George Diffenbaugh, Houghton, Cliff Spencer, Bob Barnett, Gene Larkin, Mel Shorey and Lewis Worsham.

Amateur Team Routs Dizzy Dean

La Crosse, Wis., Aug 10 (AP).—Dizzy Dean, once a great pitcher, was touched for ten hits and four runs today in four innings of an exhibition game against an amateur team of Wisconsin-Minnesota Baseball League All-Stars.

Dean started on the mound for the La Crosse team of the Wisconsin State Pro League. La Crosse lost, 7 to 6, but Dean was not the losing hurler.

Hyden Victor

Oakley Captures Title on Coast

Long Beach, Calif., Aug. 10 (AP).—In a blaze of pars and birdies, including one nine-hole round of 31, 5 under perfect figures, Bud Oakley, of Palos Verdes, won the eighteenth annual southern California P. G. A. championship today, defeating Olin Dutra, 8 and 7, in the 36-hole finals of the three-day tournament.

Hawaiians Set Two Records, Win Swim Meet

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 10.—The crack dominating Hawaiian island swim team wrapped up its third National A. A. U. tank title today as two of its all-star squad established a pair of new American records.

Kiyoshi Nakama, defending champion, slid through the water in 10:36.2 in the 880-meter race, shaving off eight-tenths of a second from the standard Ralph Flanagan, of Miami, Fla., set in 1932.

In the day's final event Jose Balmores churned up the suburban Maplewood pool's surface for a victory in the 200-meter individual relay in 2:50.9. One and one-tenth seconds faster than Adolph Kiefer's 1940 mark.

In building up their top-heavy total the Hawaiians won first places in eight of the 10 swimming races with Kiefer breaking their monopoly in the 100-meter back stroke and the Chicago Towers Club in the 300-meter relay.

The islanders finished with 71 points to 21 for Chicago Towers. Earl Clark, winner of both diving competitions, brought Ohio State third with 20 points.

Clark won the spectacular 10-meter platform diving laurels for the second straight year between showers in which spectators as well as competitors got wet.

Three of the Alexander House team—Smith, Nakama and Balmores—tied in the individual point making activities. Each won two firsts and a second.

Schrafft's Chrissie IV Captures Solomons Regatta Honors

Thurston, Glennon Tie For 2d Place

John Hyde Registers Fastest Speed of Day; Robinson Wins Gov. O'Conor Cup

By the Associated Press

Solomons, Md., Aug. 10.—George Schrafft, Westbury, N. Y., candy manufacturer, late today outbid all rivals in the 225 cubic inch hydroplane race, climax of the Solomons Island Yacht Club's fifth annual regatta.

Schrafft's Chrissie IV, one of the faster hydroplanes in the East, won both heats of the feature event, skimming along the smooth 5-mile Patuxent River course at a top speed of 52.417 miles an hour.

Tommy Glennon, West Chester, Pa., and Jack Thurston, Richmond, Va., tied for second place.

The division two 225-cubic-inch event for less powerful hydroplanes was annexed by Jerome Waltjen, Baltimore, in his Wasp. C. Merritt Twilley, Baltimore, was third in St. Paul's Pup.

The fastest speed of the afternoon was registered by John Hyde, jr., of Washington, whose Gypsy Lass snared the 135 cubic inch hydroplane competition at a 55.727 mile an hour clip.

Robinson Wins

Elwood Robinson, Solomons, won the coveted Gov. O'Conor Cup in a 5-mile race of commercial fishing boats over 30 feet in length. Kenneth Lore, Solomons, was second, and J. C. Lore, a brother, third. Dick Lore, another brother, who won the event in the last three years in his Penguin, did not compete today.

The Sasscer Cup, offered by Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (Democrat), of Maryland, was annexed by W. Earle Orem, Cambridge, in his Pacific one-design Sea flea. No other class vied for the trophy.

One mishap occurred in the Class E runabout race, won by Seymour Ewell, Cambridge. The Gladys C., driven by Ogle Cannon, Cambridge, hit an obstruction in the water and sank. Cannon was uninjured.

Henry Brylawski, Washington, skippered the Numbus to victory in the Comet Class, and Francis Lore, Washington, in his Sailalong, finished first in the free for all race for sailboats under 30 feet.

Princeton Grid Broadcasts Get Sponsor

By the Associated Press

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 10.—Princeton University announced today it had leased broadcasting rights for all six home games on its 1941 football schedule to an oil refining company of Newark.

The move shattered a precedent as old as football broadcasting. Never before has Princeton permitted a commercial broadcast of a Tiger game, although several contests have been aired on a noncommercial basis.

Since Yale signed a lease agreement with Atlantic in 1938, however, campus publications at Old Nassau have frequently advocated commercial broadcasts as a solution to declining sports income. Princeton's sports budget has shown a profit for only four years since 1931 and listed a deficit of $125,000 at the end of last season.

Princeton said in a statement that commercial sponsorship "was decided upon by the university after careful consideration over a period of years," and added:

"The sponsors have made it clear that existence of oil shortages in the East may result in the commercial time of the broadcasts being given in part to recommendations for oil conservation and to other aids to the national defense program, such as recruiting appeals."

Riverton, N.J., Man Wins Top Prize In Oxford Regatta

By the Associated Press

Oxford, Md., Aug. 10.—R. Lippencott of Riverton, N. J., sailed his Comet around a lengthened two-lap course today to win the Gaetine Bowl in the final event of the Red Avon-Chesapeake Bay Yacht Clubs' annual joint regatta.

A south Jersey fleet skipper, Ace G. Brown, rolled up 46 points to win the cup donated for star boat races by the late Sir Thomas Lipton.

Speedsters Meet At West Lanham

Speed specialists may step up the tempo of the midget automobile racing on the steeply banked, macadamized track tomorrow night when a seven event program involving an all star field steps out at the West Lanham, Md., Speedway at 8:30 o'clock.

Ted (The Kid) Tappett, who has been burning up Eastern tracks within the past month, and Henry Banks, the Royal Oak, Michigan daredevil and leading point scorer of the American Racing Drivers Association, will be challenged by a starting field that includes Bill Schindler, Mike Joseph, Lyle Dickey and Bill Troutwine.

Newport News Tops Lynchburg, 5 to 3

Newport News, Va., Aug. 10 (AP).—Newport News took advantage of Dick Tate's wildness in the eighth inning to score three runs and take their third straight from Lynchburg's Senators, 5 to 3, here this afternoon.

It was the builders' fourth straight victory in league competition. It was also their fourth triumph in 12 starts against the Senators in Newport News.

Bill Bennings

In as much as most of his followers lost their shirts last week, laundering should be a simple matter.

If there are any kinks in your bankroll, Bill will be back to iron them out in tomorrow's Post.

Browns Whip Detroit, 7-3; Muncrief Hurls

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Aug. 10.—The St. Louis Browns bucked Bob Muncrief with enough power in their bats to stay in front all the way and defeat the Detroit Tigers 7 to 3 today to split a two-game series.

In winning his seventh game this season, the St. Louis right-hander scattered 10 hits and neither walked nor whiffed a single batter. He has been beaten six times.

Louis (Bobo) Newsom, touched for nine hits in four innings, but his sixteenth game. Manager Del Baker sent in Lyerwood (Schoolboy) Rowe to calm the Brownies, but they plastered him with six safeties.

Johnny Berardino opened a four-in inning splurge for the Browns which proved to be enough. He doubled to left and scored on Bob Swift's single. Harlond Clift tripled, sending Swift home, and George McQuinn drove in Clift with a single.

80 Entries Compete in A. A. U. Swim

Upward of 80 entries from six local clubs will compete at Greenbelt Community Pool tonight in the final District A. A. U. swimming meet of the outdoor season at 8 p. m.

Two senior and six junior championships are scheduled, with feminine swimmers seeking junior titles for the first time. They include breaststroke, backstroke and free style, each at 300 yards.

In the men's 440-yard free style, favored Harry Palmer, local Y. M. C. A. captain, will vie with Howard McAdoo of the Airport, and Gordon Mastin of Washington Golf Club.

Outstanding in the men's junior events are Lee Jarboe, Gene Cuney, Bill Bruce, Charles Rogers and Art Cavanaugh. Jarboe and Cuney have just returned from North Carolina, where they established new records in an open A. A. U. meet.

between his rivals, three of them going for clean placements and the fourth being fully as effective since Underwood was able only to get his racquet on the match point.

Service Broken

In a match that was conspicuous for the frequent break of service among four players, three of whom are credited with having particularly strong serves, Lynch alone was consistent in this respect. In the first set Hugh won two of two services, in the second two of four, in the third two of three, and in the fourth one of two.

Welsh held only four of the 11 times he sent his famed cannonball or tricky twists over the net; Bennion, who was supposed to have the best doubles service of the four, proved the worst, holding in but two of 11 games. Underwood rated next to Lynch, with five victories in his 11 services.

In singles Welsh sprang off to a fast start in each set, putting all the pressure on Leavens, and his tactics carried through very successfully. In the opening set Welsh held a 4-0 advantage. Leavens finally got a game when he held in a long, deuced fifth game and he also won the sixth by breaking through Barney. But Welsh regained his touch and with the aid of a pair of drop shots and three overhead placements closed out in the seventh and eighth games. In this first set Welsh was credited with nine placements to a lone one for Leavens.

A Little Closer

That the 6—4 second set was much closer may be revealed by its placement, which showed the large total of 18 for Welsh, and an equally surprising aggregate of 9 for Leavens. This one found Welsh starting at a pace even faster than the first set, taking a 5—0 lead before Leavens began to play his top tennis for the first time in the match. When Don found himself, he did so spectacularly and with placement after placement, usually on passing shots following drop shots, he ran off four straight games.

Threatened for the first time in the match by Leavens' hot streak, Welsh ended his rival's bid for the second set by holding service in the tenth game with four placements against one for Leavens.

The final set was the closest. Welsh led, 3—0, but dropped the fourth and fifth games. The champion won the sixth, dropped the next two and the set was squared at 4—4. But then, as always, Welsh applied the necessary pressure and Leavens got only one point in each of the ninth and tenth games. The placements in the third set were seven more Welsh, four for Levens.

Flashy, but Erratic

Bennion and Underwood made the doubles match one of the most exciting in years, but for every spectacular shot they executed, they flubbed at least two setups. Their inconsistency plus Lynch's steadiness and Welsh's occasional hot streaks, which luckily for them came when most needed, told the story of the doubles. It was all Welsh and Lynch in the 6—3 first set. The second set found Bennion and Underwood wasting a 4—0 lead and then, after many close scores, finally losing, 10—8, when Welsh held his service in the nineteenth game and Bennion lost his in the twentieth.

The losers took advantage of a string of Welsh and Lynch errors to clinch the second set by taking the first three games. Welsh and Lynch came up to 3—4, but thereafter games went to service and Bennion and Underwood scored at 6—4.

The fourth and final set rocked along fairly evenly, but with Welsh and Lynch having slightly the best of it, mainly due to Lynch's passing shots between his opponents. The winners took a 2—0 lead. Bennion and Underwood pulled up to 2—3, but got no further. Lynch and his new-found power was too much for them, especially in that last game when he worked his pet passing shot four times in succession.

Hustlers Beat Motors Nine

Frederick, Md., Aug. 10.—The Frederick Hustlers scored their fourteenth victory of the season today by measuring the Village Motors nine of Washington, 8-3, at McCurdy Field. The game was won in the first inning when the Hustlers got to Lefty Porter for four runs on a double by Wagner, Steele's single, a base on balls and two errors. Silverman, who succeeded Porter, held the Hustlers well in check, but his mates were unable to solve Frederick's three hurlers.

The Frederick club will leave Friday for Wichita, Kans., to represent Maryland in the National semi-pro tournament being held there.

Post League Champ Draws Opening Game in Play-Offs

Industrial League Titlist Will Face Government Champion in Tourney Opener

Though its second half schedule is far from complete, the top team in The Washington Post-Industrial League, perennial winner of the District of Columbia sandlot championship, has been given one of the opening assignments in the local National Capital Amateur Baseball Federation tournament starting a week from today.

The Post circuit champion, it was decided at a meeting of the Federation last week, will face the winner of the Times-Herald Government League on August 18 in the game which will launch this year's D. C. title race and eventually decide Washington's representative in the national tournament in Youngstown, Ohio.

Under the supervision of W. P. Griffith for the third consecutive year, every game of the title tourney will be played on the Ellipse. Play is expected to extend over at least eight day, two defeats necessary to eliminate a club.

Following is the schedule as planned for the first five days:

August 19—Runner-up Post Industrial League vs. Departmental League.
August 20—Federal-Commercial League vs. loser of first day's round.
August 22—Winner of second day's round vs. winner of third day's round.

Because of the power shown in previous years, The Post League titlist again will be favored, but strong competition is expected from Naval Air Station; the United States Government League club which needs one more victory to clinch the crown in its circuit.

Already certain of gaining a tourney berth are Center Market, of the Departmental League, and St. Elizabeths, of the Federal Commercial League. In the Times-Herald Government loop the Veterans Administration nine holds the inside track, having won the first half title, but it still faces contention from Department of Justice.

The team which will represent The Post-Industrial League is still a deep mystery, the standings at this point being in what President Bill Fiester calls "the worst mess in league history." Any one of six teams have a mathematical chance to cop the second-half belt and earn a play-off with Heurich, last year's city champ, for a tournament place.

Most probably victors in the second half race, however, are Little Tavern and Camco Furniture, at present ranking in that order in the standings. Three games involving these clubs will start this week's schedule, and if nothing is settled it may be necessary to play doubleheaders later in the week.

Giants, Phils Split to Close Tight Series

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 10.—Winding up a three-game series in which each game was decided by one run, the Giants and last-place Phillies broke even in a double-header today before a small Sunday crowd of 9,577 at the Polo Grounds.

In the opener Young Tommy Hughes pitched good ball for seven innings and the Phils, with Bob Bragan hitting a homer, worked up a 4-1 lead at that point. But in the eighth pinch-hitter Gabby Hartnett and Harry Danning hit home runs, each with a man on base, to give the Giants a 5-4 victory.

The Phils, winning the second game by 4-3, got all their runs in the sixth. Danny Litwhiler accounted for two tallies by clouting a four-bagger with a mate on base, and a triple by Merrill May and singles by Bragan and Stan Benjamin drove in the others.

Veteran Si Johnson, meanwhile, kept the Giants' 11 hits well spaced to record his fourth victory. The game also broke an eight-game Philadelphia losing streak.

Brewer Nine Halts Miller Streak, 6 to 5

Putting everything they could muster in a five-run spree in the sixth inning, the Heurich Brewers yesterday broke Miller Furniture nine's nine-game winning streak in the National City Baseball League. The score, after an exciting battle on the Ellipse, was 6-5.

Three Heurich pitchers proved ineffective against Miller power before young Doz Olson, Washington-Lee High, came in with one out in the sixth to protect the Brewers' 5-5 lead. He hurled two-hit ball the remainder of the game, winding up in the ninth by striking out Pinch Hitter Cliff Keyser with two Millermen on base.

The victory gave Heurich a tie for the "A" Section lead with Orange Disc, which also eked out a 6-5 margin over Frank Small Motors. Webb and Kimmell combined for a 7-hit pitching performance for the winners. Other "A" Section winners were Naiman Photos, 11-0, over Prince Georges Boys Club, and Jacobsen Florists by a 10-9 count in a 10-inning clash with Taft A. C.

Central Branch Nine, of the Boys Club of Washington, took the Junior Section first-half title, beating the Brookland Merchants, 5-1. The winners were never headed as Pitcher Harrell set the Merchants down with 4 hits and featured Central's 11-hit slugging along with Green, Spirodoupolis, Koester and Brewer.

Gibson Grays Win

Behind the seven-hit pitching of Williams, the Gibson Grays downed the Chevy Chase Dodgers, 14-5, yesterday at Chevy Chase Playground. Barney Gibson's three safeties featured the winners' platework.

Pitcher Pace Stars

Grays Beat All-Stars By 9-4, 3-0

The Washington Homestead Grays, first-half champions in the Negro National League, yesterday defeated the Philadelphia All-Stars, 9-4, and 3-0 in a double-header before 2,000 fans at Griffith Stadium.

The Grays started the offensive in the second inning, when Buck Leonard drew a pass, was sacrificed to second, and came home on Carlisle's double to deep center. Carlisle scored on Gaston's double to the same spot.

Their big third inning annexed enough runs to win the game. Watley was safe on Jordan's error, and scored on Easterling's double to right field. Easterling crossed the plate on Benjamin's triple to the bleacher wall, and came home on Vic Harris' double against the right field fence.

Bill Brown, in rare form, struck out eight, and allowed but seven scattered hits. Wright, who followed him on the mound in the second game, a 7-inning affair, struck out six. The Stars played their usual heady game, but were outpitched, and suffered a costly error in each of the clashes.

UAW Control Fight Nears Showdown

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 10.—The bitter contest for control of what is probably the key union in the national defense picture and certainly one of the most powerful unions in the Congress of Industrial Organizations, the United Automobile Workers, was moving toward a showdown today, as the U. A. W.'s convention enters its second week.

During the past week, the group led by Walter P. Reuther, director of the union's General Motors department, won clear cut victories over the opposing faction, headed by George F. Addes, secretary-treasurer of the U. A. W. The Reuther faction favors capacity expansion of the defense program and all-out aid to Great Britain and Russia. It is solidly behind President Roosevelt and favors cooperation in the defense program so far as possible, with Sidney Hillman, associate director of the Office of Production Management.

The Addes group, on the other hand, has been hand-in-glove with John L. Lewis, who has publicly expressed his disagreement with President Roosevelt, Sidney Hillman and the Nation's foreign policies. The Addes group, furthermore, includes the Communist minority within the union.

The principle struggle will be for Addes' position as secretary-treasurer. The Reuther caucus last night decided to run Richard T. Leonard, executive board member from the Detroit area, against Addes, who claims to have the blessing, however, was conferred by Allan Haywood, C. I O. director of organization, who has been operating in Lewis' behalf at the convention from a Buffalo hotel room.

Most U. A. W. leaders agree that, aside from his political activities, Addes has been an excellent secretary-treasurer. However, the anti-Communist temper of the convention delegates has developed so strongly that the Reuther faction feels that it can unseat Addes and elect Leonard.

The same anti-Communist faction also hopes to gain control of the union's international executive board, in which it is now in a minority, by a margin of nine to ten.

Other issues which are facing the convention include a proposed ban against Communists and Nazis holding office in the union; suspension of Lew Michener, West Coast regional director, for his role in the allegedly Communist-inspired strike at the North American Aircraft Corporation last June; the question of whether there shall be one vice president, as proposed by John L. Lewis' lieutenants, or none, as proposed by the Reuther caucus.

W. H. Newton, Former Aide Of Hoover, Dies

Walter Hughes Newton, 56, former Minnesota Congressman and White House secretary, died at his home in Minneapolis early yesterday.

Born in Minneapolis, Mr. Newton resided in Washington for many years. He was elected to the Sixty-sixth Congress from the Fifth District of Minnesota in 1918, and served in the House of Representatives from then until 1929. At that time he resigned to become President Hoover's secretary.

When Hoover left the White House in 1933, he personally requested President Roosevelt to see that his former secretary received some Government appointment. The new Chief Executive complied and named Mr. Newton to the Federal Home Loan Bank Board over a storm of protest from Democratic and Progressive Republican Senators. When his term ran out a year later, he returned to Minneapolis to resume a private law practice. Funeral services will be held there Tuesday afternoon.

He leaves his wife, Cora N. Newton; a daughter, Mrs. Philip C. Murray, of St. Paul, and two sons, Lieut. Walter H. Newton, jr., of the Navy Air Station, Pensacola, Fla., and John H. Newton, of Minneapolis.

After more than a year's absence from the radio airlines—in his own show, that is— Orson Welles is to be heard regularly over WJSV and the Columbia network in a new Thursday night variety-dramatic series, starting September 15.

The Broadway and Hollywood wonder boy, who's also fairly well known in radio—he had something to do with a radio play having something to with an invasion from Mars, they tell me—has been given a free hand by his sponsor to do what he chooses.

Already he has sent notice to the members of his famed Mercury Theater group in New York to join him in Hollywood for the series. And, although he's keeping the details somewhat secret as is his wont —witness "Citizen Kane"—he has let it be known that infinite variety will be his aim. When he is in the mood to put on a serious dramatization, he'll do so. And when he wants to cut up with experiments, musical shows, comedies or what have you, he'll do what he pleases.

There was a rumor current during Mr. Welles' last series over CBS that he was relatively unhappy because his sponsors sort of insisted on his having all his productions happy and gay, while Orson, himself, sort of leaned to grimness and heavy drama.

But now the rumor is that he's a pretty cheerful young man. Incidentally, his reported new salary is said to be much greater than previously.

850 More Selects Asked of Virginia For September

Richmond, Aug. 10 (AP).—Maj. Gen. W. S. Grant, commanding the Third Corps Area, called on the State Selective Service headquarters yesterday for an additional 633 white and 217 Negro selectees to be delivered during September to make up previous shortages in Virginia.

This requisition will be in addition to the 751 white and 333 Negro selectees requisitioned under Call No. 19 for delivery in September.

Lieut. Col. Mills F. Neal, State Selective Service director, said the new total for September would be 1,384 white and 550 Negro selectees. Virginia fell short of its quota in making deliveries required by Calls Nos. 12 to 17, between May 11 and July 31. Neal said some local boards found it impossible to process sufficient men to meet their quotas during that period.

Of the quota announced today 47 Negroes will be inducted September 5, 158 whites September 8 and 159 whites September 11 at Roanoke. In Richmond, 158 white men will be inducted September 11, 158 on September 12 and 170 Negroes on September 22.

Tobacco Disease In Pittsylvania County

Danville, Va., Aug. 10.—A virulent tobacco disease, known as "black shank," has made its appearance in Pittsylvania County.

It strikes at matured tobacco and causes leaves to wilt overnight. The malady consists of a growth inside the stem of the tobacco which impairs the circulation of vegetable oils and juices needed to nourish the leaves. Agents of the Department of Agriculture made the discovery.

La Plata Police Hold Man After Slaying

William Hyman, 30, Negro, of North Carolina, was under arrest at the La Plata (Md.) Jail last night in connection with the fatal shooting of Ernest Mae, 32, Negro, of Waldorf, at a Waldorf beer garden Saturday night.

Mae was shot in the chest and left arm with a revolver. He died yesterday at Casualty Hospital.

Meeting Set To Urge Hospital

Representatives of 42 civic and professional groups of Prince Georges County will sponsor a mass meeting tonight to urge immediate construction of a Prince Georges County Hospital. The meeting will be held at Bladensburg (Md.) High School at 8 o'clock.

The Maryland General Assembly last spring authorized a $100,000 bond issue for erection of a hospital, but left the determination of the need to the discrimination of the county commissioners.

The county rulers have hesitated to authorize construction of the hospital for fear that maintenance funds would not be enough and the county would be forced to post further funds for this purpose. Those in favor of the early construction of the hospital contend that the money now expended by the county and county organizations in Washington hospital would defray operating expenses.

The commissioners estimated that $100,000 will be required annually to finance maintenance but county residents point out that $75,000 is paid annually by the county commissioners and $62,000 by other county and civic agencies with hospitals in Washington.

Possibility that Federal funds might be obtainable also is being investigated by the hospital committee urging the project. The county medical society also has indorsed the movement.

Musicale Tonight At Treasury House

A musicale revue will be presented from Treasury House, adjoining Post Square, tonight at 8:30 o'clock, produced by Charles Demma. It was announced yesterday. The revue, featuring a group of Washington youngsters, will follow a concert by the Army Band to begin at 7:30 p. m.

Peggy Moran, moving picture starlet, will appear at Treasury House tomorrow as guest of Alexandria Post, 24, American Legion, at 9 a. m. She will be presented with an inscribed baton and be made an honorary majorette in the Alexandria Post.

Red Cross Classes Start Tomorrow In Clarendon

Arlington County Chapter of the American Red Cross yesterday announced a series of evening classes in first aid to be given Tuesdays and Fridays for ten weeks, starting tomorrow.

The classes are to be given by A. B. Murphy, assistant director of first aid and life saving for the American Red Cross, and will be held in the Bowen classroom of Clarendon Baptist Church, from 7 to 9 p. m.

Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the Washington branch of the American Automobile Association, will be the speaker at an Arlington chapter's motor corps luncheon at 1 p. m. today, at the Washington Country Club.

Religious Rites Set Near Leonardtown

Special Dispatch to The Post

Leonardtown, Md., Aug. 10.—A monument to commemorate the priests and brothers of the Society of Jesus, buried in the church cemetery of St. Francis Xavier, oldest Roman Catholic Church in Maryland, located at Newtown, about 5 miles from here, will be unveiled on Sunday, August 17.

A sermon will be delivered by the Right Rev. Msgr. McAdams, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Washington.

THAT LOOK LIKE GOOD CABIN—I THINK WE STOP THERE!
YES, IS VERY GOOD CABIN—AN' SO QUIET—MAYBE NOBODY HOME!

1941 Building Likely to Hit 10-Billion Mark

The Commerce Department predicted yesterday that new construction, boomed by defense plant building, would total $10,200,000,000 this year compared with $6,850,000,000 in 1940.

It estimated that 1941 private construction would total $4,900,000,000 and public construction $5,300,000,000 compared with $4,183,000,000 and $2,667,000,000 respectively last year.

"It now seems apparent," the department said in making public the estimates, "that possibly before the end of 1941 and certainly in 1942 shortages of construction materials, particularly metals and metal products, will become a serious problem. The institution of priorities because of these shortages will tend to concentrate construction activity in fields essential to defense, including defense housing."

Despite the increased construction, rent increases have averaged more than 20 per cent since March of last year in more than half of 58 communities surveyed by the Works Project Administration, according to a table issued yesterday by Howard O. Hunter, commissioner of works projects. In the other half of the communities more than 30 per cent showed substantial increases in rents.

The rent rises have been particularly conspicuous in small industrial cities where defense contracts are being handled, and in towns and cities near Army camps, the survey shows. In two out of every five of the areas surveyed the housing situation was rated as "critical," with less than 5 per cent of existing housing accommodations unoccupied and about half of those either not for rent or uninhabitable due to neede drepairs or improper sanatary conditions. At Leesville, La., average rents have increased 109 per cent since the defense program was begun. At Brownwood, Tex., more than three quarters of all rentals had advanced an average of nearly 64 per cent.

Cudahy Calls On U. S. to Use Force for Peace

By the Associated Press

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 10.—John Cudahy, former Ambassador to Belgium, tonight broadcast a plea that the strength and prestige of the United States be used in the cause of peace.

"Let the President, with the approval of Congress, propose an American program of peace, a peace with a new world order based on an association of nations, the inauguration of a sovereign international government with power to enforce its decrees for the solution of the economic, social and political tensions at the bottom this and all the endless wars in Europe," Cudahy said in an address prepared for delivery over the NBC Red network.

"Back of this new world government, uet us place the sanction of all the moral prestige and force of America.

Language of Force

"You tell me that the word of Hitler is worthless, and that such an effort would be futile and of no avail. But we will speak a language to enforce this peace, a language Hitler can understand, the language of force.

"We are forging in the foundries and factories of this country a vast armament. We have the greatest Navy in the world, soon we will have the greatest air armada.

"Let us mobilize in the interests of peace. In the self interest of America let us give sanction to our word. It is a duty dictated by common sense and the tragic experience of this war and the other war. Only in self deception and wishful thinking can we believe that we can live in America on a fancied Atlantic isolated from the revolutionary movement which is sweeping the world. We must play our part. We must accept our responsibility with the knowledge that the duty we assume is the only hope for peace, permanent peace.

No Time to Lose

"This is not a program of war, it is a program of peace. But there is no time to lose. Soon it will be too late. With hurrying pace the tragedy of Europe moves to a climax and before another winter Germany will try with supreme effort for the knockout blow. Whether the Russian campaign ends in a stalemate or German victory, the time will soon come for a sober stock-taking.

"If we let this opportunity for peace go by, it will never come again. If we enter the war without making this effort, the American people will be more confused and disunited than they are today."

How Many Quarts of Blood Has the Average Person?

It is an accepted fact that normally we have 3 to 3½ quarts of blood.

Although our blood constitutes about 1/12 of our body weight, most folks pay no attention to it whatsoever. When they feel tired or under the weather, they always blame it on something else. Actually, at the first sign of fatigue, lack of energy, strength, or when you feel yourself slipping physically, check up on your blood right away.

You know, if your blood is thin, pale and watery, and unable to feed the hungry tissues with life-giving oxygen, sickness and disorders set in more quickly. But if blood is rich and pure, it contains chemical substances and cells capable of repairing damaged body tissues and replenishing our strength and energy.

So don't take chances. Do something about your blood today. Get a bottle of Bonoquet (pronounced Bon-Kay) Tablets. Here is an amazing new discovery, by an eminent bio-chemist, that is designed to build rich red fighting blood. It contains, in concentrated quantities, the raw materials so woefully lacking in the modern diet, and so urgently needed by the body tissues . . . the most important being the active principle of raw liver (the red blood cell maturing factor), organic vegetable iron and other minerals, vitamin B complex, fortified with pure crystalline vitamins B and G, and assimilable calcium and phosphorous. This "liver principle" is sometimes called anti-anemic substance.

Try Bonoquet Tablets for 9 days. If you wish, have your blood count taken by your physician before and after this test. If you don't feel better, look better, and have general all-around improvement . . . and most of all, show a marked increase in your red blood cell count . . . your money will cheerfully refunded. Introductory size 150 Bonoquet tablets enough for two weeks, $2.00. Large economy size 400 tablets, $4.00. Sold at
